UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

GUADALUPE GONZALEZ, NORMA LOPEZ
JUAN, individually and on behalf of others similarly situated,

Plaintiffs,

v.

MILLARD MALL SERVICES, INC., THE
MILLARD GROUP, AND DOES 1
THROUGH 50,

Defendants.

Civil No. 09cv2076-AJB(WVG)

ORDER GRANTING IN PART AND DENYING IN PART PLAINTIFFS'
MOTION FOR CLASS CERTIFICATION

[Doc. No. 48.]

Before the Court is Plaintiffs' motion for class certification of the claims in their second amended complaint. Plaintiffs allege seven causes of action which include Defendants' failure to pay split shift pay in violation of Wage Order 4-2001¹; failure to provide meal periods as required by California Labor Code ("Labor Code") §§ 226.7, 512 and Wage Order 4-2001; failure to provide rest periods as required by Labor Code § 226.7 and Wage Order 4-2001; violation of Labor Code § 212; failure to pay all wages earned upon termination of employment in violation of Labor Code § 202; violation of California Business and Professions Code ("UCL") § 17200; and civil penalties pursuant to the Private Attorneys General Act of 2004 ("PAGA") for issuing improper out-of-state checks in violation of Labor Code section 212. The motion is submitted on the papers without oral ¹The Court notes that in the Second Amended Complaint, the Wage Order is listed as 7-2001 and 5-2001. It appears that these are typographical errors as the Wage Order filed in support of the motion for certification is listed as Wage Order No. 4-2001 and cited as such in the points and authorities in support of Plaintiffs' motion for class certification. (Dkt. No. 52-10.)

1 argument, pursuant to Civil Local Rule 7.1(d)(1). After a review of the briefs, supporting 2 documentation, and applicable law, the Court GRANTS in part and DENIES in part Plaintiffs' 3 motion for class certification.

4 Procedural Background

5 This action was originally filed in the Superior Court of California for the County of San 6 Diego on April 1, 2009. On September 22, 2009, the case was removed to this Court pursuant to the 7 Class Action Fairness Act. (Dkt. No. 1.) On February 11, 2010, Defendants filed a motion for 8 judgment on the pleadings. (Dkt. No. 16.) On April 7, 2010, the Court issued an order denying 9 motion for judgment on the pleadings and granted Plaintiffs' request to file a second amended 10 complaint. (Dkt. No. 28.) A second amended complaint ("SAC") was filed on April 12, 2010.
11 (Dkt. No. 31.) On October 29, 2010, Plaintiffs filed a motion to certify class action. (Dkt. No. 48.)
12 An opposition was filed on January 31, 2011. (Dkt. No. 68.) Plaintiffs filed a reply on April 1, 13 2011. (Dkt. No. 83.) On March 14, 2011, the case was transferred to the undersigned judge. (Dkt.
14 No. 82.) On August 1, 2011, both parties filed a joint statement on Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Dukes, 15 -U.S.-, 131 S. Ct. 2541, 2553-54 (2011). (Dkt. Nos. 86, 87.)

16 Factual Background

17 Defendant Millard Mall Services, Inc.² ("Millard") is a major corporation providing janitorial 18 services to shopping malls and other commercial facilities. Millard is based in Lincolnwood, Illinois 19 and employs more than 4,000 workers in 32 states, including California.

20 Individually named Plaintiffs are two former janitorial employees of Defendant. Plaintiff 21 Guadalupe Gonzalez performed janitorial services from November 2007 to September 2008.
22 (Joseph Decl. ¶ 3.) Plaintiff Normal Lopez Juan performed janitorial services from April 2005 to 23 July 2008. (Id.) They were both terminated after failing to report to work for several consecutive 24 days. (Id.) Gonzalez' last day worked was September 10, 2008 and she was terminated on 25 September 18, 2008. (Joseph Decl., Ex. 1.) Juan's last day worked was July 10 or 19th, 2008 and 26 she was terminated on August 11, 2008. (Id.) They allege that Defendants regularly scheduled them

27 28 ²Defendants argue that Millard Mall Services Inc., not the Millard Group, Inc. employed the alleged putative class. On February 4, 2011, Defendants filed a motion for summary judgment on this issue.

1 to work a split-shift and were never paid the premium of one hour's pay at the minimum wage; 2 Defendants regularly failed to provide them with a 30 minute, uninterrupted meal period for work of 3 more than five hours and failed to pay them an additional hour's pay; Defendants regularly failed to 4 provide a 10 minute rest period per four hours of work and failed to pay them an additional hour's 5 pay; Defendants failed to provide a paycheck with an address of a California bank and Defendants 6 failed to issue them final paychecks according to applicable law and the paychecks did not include 7 any unpaid wages for failure to provide meal and/or rest periods and unpaid split shift pay. (SAC ¶¶ 8 4, 5.)

9 From April 1, 2005 through November 16, 2011, Millard Mall employed 2,624 hourly-paid 10 janitorial/housekeeping employees (315 current employees and 2,015 former employees) in 11 California. (Dkt. No. 68-6, Joseph Decl. filed 1/31/11 ¶ 2.) The company's employment policies 12 and procedure originate from the corporate offices in Lincolnwood Illinois. Payroll is handled 13 centrally in Lincolnwood, Illinois and all payroll checks are cut there. Pay raises and employee 14 termination must be approved by the Human Resources Department in Lincolnwood, Illinois.

15 At each location, Millard employs a Project Manager whose is responsible for scheduling the 16 janitorial employees' work schedules as well as their meal and rest times. As Plaintiffs state "[a]s a 17 matter of company-wide policy and practice, the employees' work schedules, as well as the meal 18 and rest times are controlled by Millard's Project Managers." (Dkt. 48-1 at 9.) Millard requires that 19 all of its hourly employees clock in and out for each work period as well as each meal period taken.

20 Plaintiffs seek an order certifying two Classes and four sub-Classes.

- 21 1. Class A to include "[a]ny and all persons who have been employed directly or 22 indirectly by The Millard Group, Inc. and/or Millard Mall Services, Inc. in California 23 at any time from April 1, 2005 to the present." (Dkt. 48 at 2.)
- 24 2. Class B to include "[a]ny and all persons who have been employed directly or 25 indirectly by The Millard Group, Inc. and/or Millard Mall Services, Inc. as 26 janitorial/housekeeping employees in California at any time from April 1, 2005 to the 27 present." (Id.) Within Class B are four subclasses.

- 28 A. Sub-Class 1 includes "[a]ny and all members of Sub-Class B who

1 worked at least one work schedule, which was interrupted by non-paid 2 non-working periods established by the employer, other than bona fide 3 rest or meal periods.” (Id.)

4 B. Sub-Class 2 includes “[a]ny and all members of Sub-Class B who 5 worked more than five hours in a day without receiving a meal period 6 of 30 minutes or longer.” (Id.)

7 C. Sub-Class 3 includes “[a]ny and all members of Sub-Class B who 8 worked a work period of four hours or more without receiving a 10-9 minute paid rest period.” (Id. at 3.)

10 D. Sub-Class 4 includes “[a]ny and all members of Sub-Class B who are 11 no longer employed by The Millard Group, Inc. and/or Millard Mall 12 Services, Inc.” (Id. at 3.)

13 A. Requests for Judicial Notice

14 Defendants request that the Court take judicial notice of three documents: 1) California 15 Division of Labor Standards Enforcement’s (“DLSE”) February 3, 1995 Opinion Letter; 2) DLSE’s 16 October 23, 2008 Memorandum; and 3) DLSE website’s answers regarding waiting time penalty.
17 (Dkt. No. 68-1.) Plaintiffs request that the Court take judicial notice of the DLSE’s August 13, 2003
18 Opinion Letter. (Dkt. No. 83-2.)

19 A court may take judicial notice of a fact “not subject to reasonable dispute in that it is either 20 (1) generally known within the territorial jurisdiction of the trial court or (2) capable of accurate and 21 ready determination by resort to sources whose accuracy cannot reasonably be questioned.” Fed. R.
22 Evid. 201. The content of records and reports of administrative bodies are proper subjects for 23 judicial notice under Rule 201(d). Interstate Natural Gas Co. v. S. Cal. Gas Co., 209 F.2d 380, 385 24 (9th Cir. 1953). Since the parties have not disputed the taking of judicial notice of these documents, 25 and the documents are subject to judicial notice, the Court GRANTS Defendants’ and Plaintiffs’
26 requests for judicial notice.

27 B. Evidentiary Objections

28 In their opposition, Defendants filed objections to evidence submitted by Plaintiffs in their

1 motion for class certification. (Dkt. No. 68-2.) In their reply, Plaintiffs responded to Defendants’
2 evidentiary objections. (Dkt. No. 83-1.)

3 Since a motion to certify a class is a preliminary procedure, courts do not require strict 4 adherence to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure or the Federal Rules of Evidence. See Eisen v.
5 Carlisle and Jacquelin, 417 U.S. 156, 178 (1974) (The class certification procedure “is not 6 accompanied by the traditional rules and procedures applicable to civil trials.”). At the class 7 certification stage, “the court makes no findings of fact and announces no ultimate conclusions on 8 Plaintiffs’ claims.” Alonzo v. Maximus, Inc., 275 F.R.D. 513, 519 (C.D. Cal. 2011) (quoting Mazza
9 v. Am. Honda Motor Co., 254 F.R.D. 610, 616 (C.D. Cal. 2008). Therefore, the Court may consider 10 inadmissible evidence at the class certification stage. Keilholtz v. Lennox Hearth Prods, Inc., 268 11 F.R.D. 330, 337 n. 3 (N.D. Cal. 2010). “The court need not address the ultimate admissibility of the 12 parties’ proffered exhibits, documents and testimony at this stage, and may consider them where 13 necessary for resolution of the [Motion for Class Certification].” Alonzo, 275 F.R.D. at 519.

14 Recently, the United States Supreme Court, in dictum, expressed its “doubt” about a district 15 court’s conclusion that “Daubert did not apply to expert testimony at the certification stage of 16 class-action proceedings.” Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Dukes, — U.S. —, 131 S. Ct. 2541, 17 2553–54 (2011). Although the Ninth Circuit has recognized that “Supreme Court dicta have a 18 weight that is greater than ordinary judicial dicta as prophecy of what that Court might hold,” dicta 19 from the Supreme Court are still not binding on lower courts. United States v. Montero-Camargo, 20 208 F.3d 1122, 1132 n. 17 (9th Cir. 2000); Newdow v. Rio Linda Union Sch. Dist., 597 F.3d 1007, 21 1106 (9th Cir. 2010) (Supreme Court dicta . . . are not binding”). The court of appeals is required to 22 “follow binding Supreme Court cases unless and until the Supreme Court overrules them.”
23 Newdow, 597 F.3d at 1106.

24 Here, Defendants present evidentiary objections to evidence submitted by Plaintiffs in 25 support of their motion for class certification. Of importance are 112 questionnaire responses by 26 putative class members. Defendants object because the responses are not signed under penalty of 27 perjury and 68 of them are in Spanish and not translated. At this stage of preliminary proceedings, 28 the Court need not require strict adherence to the Federal Rules of Evidence. See Eisen, 417 U.S. at 1 178. Accordingly, the Court overrules Defendants’ evidentiary objections.

2 C. Legal Standard for Class Certification

3 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23 (“Rule 23”) governs the certification of a class. See Fed.
4 R. Civ. P. 23. A plaintiff seeking class certification must affirmatively show the class meets the 5 requirements of Rule 23. Dukes, 131 S. Ct. at 2551. To obtain certification, a plaintiff bears the 6 burden of proving that the class meets all four requirements of Rule 23(a)—numerosity, 7 commonality, typicality, and adequacy. Ellis v. Costco Wholesale Corp., 657 F.3d 970 979-80 (9th 8 Cir. 2011). If these prerequisites are met, the court must then decide whether the class action is 9 maintainable under Rule 23(b). This case involves Rule 23(b)(3), which authorizes certification 10 when “questions of law or fact common to class members predominate over any questions affecting 11 only individual class members,” and “a class action is superior to other available methods for fairly 12 and efficiently adjudicating the controversy.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3). The Court exercises 13 discretion in granting or denying a motion for class certification. Staton v. Boeing Co., 327 F.3d 14 938, 953 (9th Cir. 2003).

15 The Court is required to perform a “rigorous analysis,” which may require it “to probe 16 behind the pleadings before coming to rest on the certification question.” Dukes, 131 S. Ct. at 2551.
17 “[T]he merits of the class members’ substantive claims are often highly relevant when determining 18 whether to certify a class. More importantly, it is not correct to say a district court may consider the 19 merits to the extent that they overlap with class certification issues; rather, a district court must 20 consider the merits if they overlap with Rule 23(a) requirements.” Ellis, 657 F.3d.at 981.
21 Nonetheless, the district court does not conduct a mini-trial to determine if the class “could actually 22 prevail on the merits of their claims.” Id. at 983 n.8; United Steel, Paper & Forestry, Rubber, Mfg.
23 Energy, Allied Indus. & Serv. Workers Int’l Union, AFL-CIO v. ConocoPhillips Co., 593 F.3d 802, 24 808 (9th Cir. 2010) (citation omitted) (court may inquire into substance of case to apply the Rule 23 25 factors, however, “[t]he court may not go so far . . . as to judge the validity of these claims.”).

26 The issues disputed by the parties are whether Plaintiffs have shown commons question of 27 law or fact sufficient to meet their burden under Rule 23(a)(2) and whether Plaintiffs have shown 28 that these common questions predominate over individual questions under Rule 23(b)(3).

1 D. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(a)(2)

2 Plaintiffs argue that there are common legal questions³ as to whether Millard’s 3 compensation system is consistent with Millard’s obligations as an employer to pay split-shift pay, 4 pay “premium” pay for unprovided meal and/or rest periods, and pay wages upon termination in a 5 timely manner. Defendants contend that Plaintiffs have not established commonality to support 6 class certification under the holding in Dukes.

7 Under the Rules, Plaintiffs must show that “there are questions of fact and law that are 8 common to the class.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(2). Commonality requires the plaintiff to demonstrate 9 that the class members ‘have suffered the same injury,’” Dukes, 131 S. Ct. at 2551 (quotation 10 omitted). “That common contention . . . must be of such a nature that it is capable of classwide 11 resolution – which means that determination of its truth or falsity will resolve an issue that is central 12 to the validity of each one of the claims in one stroke.” Id. ““What matters to class certification . . .
13 is not the raising of common ‘questions’ . . . but, rather the capacity of a classwide proceeding to 14 generate common answers apt to drive the resolution of the litigation. Dissimilarities within the 15 proposed class are what have the potential to impede the generation of common answers.” Id.
16 (emphasis in original) (citation omitted).

17 In Dukes, the plaintiffs alleged that Wal-Mart had a uniform corporate culture of bias 18 through the discretion of their local managers against women resulting in discriminatory pay and 19 promotions at its 3,400 retail locations. Id. at 2547-48. The District Court and the Ninth Circuit 20 approved class certification but the Supreme Court reversed holding class certification was not 21 appropriate because plaintiffs failed to establish the existence of a common question. Id. at 2556-57.
22 Wal-Mart’s corporate policy forbade sex discrimination and the company had penalties for denials 23 of equal opportunity. Id. at 2553. The evidence showed that the pay and promotion decisions were 24 made on a local level based on the discretion of individual managers. Id. at 2554. The local 25 supervisors had discretion over employment matters and in a company as large as Wal-Mart, the 26 Court determined that it is unlikely that all managers would exercise their discretion in a common

27 28 ³The Court notes that Millard does not argue that the claim under Labor Code section 212 was subject to the commonality analysis under Dukes. (Dkt. No. 86.) The analysis of Labor Code section 212 will be conducted when discussing Rule 23(b)(3).

1 way. Id. at 2554-55. The Court explained that the plaintiffs failed to identify a common mode of 2 exercising discretion that pervaded the entire company. Id. Therefore, the Court reversed the Ninth 3 Circuit holding that Plaintiff had failed to meet the commonality requirement under Rule 23(a)(2).
4 Id. at 2557.

5 1. Meal and Rest Periods

6 Plaintiffs argue that the common and predominant legal question is whether Millard’s 7 compensation system, including the lack of policy and procedures to pay additional “premium” pay 8 for unprovided meal or rest breaks, is consistent with its obligation under California law. Therefore, 9 according to Plaintiffs, if the time records show that a meal or rest break was not taken then those 10 employees should have been paid the “premium.” Defendants oppose arguing that the class 11 consisting of about 2,600 employees at 15-25 different locations in California was supervised by 12 different Project Managers at each location. Moreover, they contend that this claim is inherently 13 individualized because the Court will need to determine why meal periods were missed for each 14 employee.

15 California Labor Code section 226.7 provides “[n]o employer shall require any employee to 16 work during any meal or rest period mandated by an applicable order of the Industrial Welfare 17 Commission.” Cal. Labor Code § 226.7(a). “If an employer fails to provide an employee a meal 18 period or rest period in accordance with an applicable order of the Industrial Welfare Commission, 19 the employer shall pay the employee one additional hour of pay at the employee’s regular rate of 20 compensation for each work day that the meal or rest period is not provided.” Cal. Labor Code § 21 226.7(b). In addition, Cal. Labor Code section 512 provides:

22 (a) An employer may not employ an employee for a work period of more than 23 five hours per day without providing the employee with a meal period of not less 24 than 30 minutes, except that if the total work period per day of the employee is no more than six hours, the meal period may be waived by mutual consent of both the employer and employee.

25 Cal. Labor Code § 512.

26 According to Industrial Welfare Commission Order No. 4-2001, “[n]o employer shall 27 employ any person for a work period of more than five (5) hours without a meal period of not less 28 than 30 minutes, except that when a work period of not more than six (6) hours will complete the 1 day's work the meal period may be waived by mutual consent of the employer and the employee.”

2 (Dkt. No. 52-10, Wage Order 4-2001 § 11(A).) In addition, “[e]very employer shall authorize and 3 permit all employees to take rest periods, which insofar as practicable shall be in the middle of each 4 work period. The authorized rest period time shall be based on the total hours worked daily at the 5 rate of ten (10) minutes net rest time per four (4) hours or major fraction thereof.” (Dkt. No. 52-10, 6 Wage Order 4-2001 § 12(A).)

7 In this case, it is undisputed that Millard employs a Project Manager at each location who is 8 responsible for scheduling employees' work schedules as well as their meal and rest times. (Mot. at 9 4; Opp. at 2-3.) The Project Manager's duties are described in the Employee Handbook. It 10 provides,

11 Each Millard supervisor/manager sets work days and hours for the members of 12 his/her department, based upon individual business needs and the needs of the 13 customer. The work hours at your facility and for your position may vary from 14 the standard office hours as well as from hours at other job sites, in other 15 departments or of other employees within your department. It is the responsibility of your supervisor/manager to set your work hours to meet the department's specific needs. Your lunch and break times will also be set by your supervisor/manager. Millard Management has the right to change these work hours at any time.

16 (Dkt. No. 54-1, Employee Handbook for Employees Covered by a Collective Bargaining 17 Agreement, pg. 10; see also Dkt. No. 54-2, California Employee Handbook for Hourly Service 18 Employees Not Covered by a Collective Bargaining Agreement, pg. 9.)

19 Millard Mall's handbook also provides the following:

20 If you work six or more hours in a day, you are required to take an off-duty meal 21 break of at least 30 minutes during which you must 'clock out.' If you work more 22 than three and one-half hours in a day, you are permitted to take a 10-minute rest 23 break for every four hour period of time you work. Rest breaks should be taken approximately in the middle of your work shift or the first four hour period.

24 (Dkt. No. 54-2, California Employee Handbook for Hourly Service Employees Not Covered by a 25 Collective Bargaining Agreement, pg. 9.)⁴ Millard Mall instructs its supervisory employees to 26 provide meal and rest breaks to their employees in compliance with California law. (Dkt. No. 68-6, 27 Joseph Decl. ¶ 4.) It is Millard's policy to provide legally required meal and rest breaks which are 28 ⁴The Court notes that the Millard handbook provides for a 30 minute meal break after six hours of work while Labor Code section 512 and Wage Order 4-2001 require a 30 minute meal break after five hours of work per day. The parties do not dispute this discrepancy.

1 contained in the Employee Handbook and reinforced by legally mandated postings and by Millard's 2 managers and supervisors. (Id. ¶ 4.) In addition, because Millard operates in different types and 3 sizes of shopping malls, the locations where each employee takes his/or meal or rest break varies.
4 (Id.)

5 Similar to the facts in Dukes, Millard had a meal and rest period policy conforming to the 6 applicable laws and wage orders. See Dukes, 131 S. Ct. at 2553. In addition, the Project Managers 7 at each location have discretion in scheduling the employees' work schedule and meal and rest 8 periods. See id. at 2554. Therefore, Plaintiffs have not shown that there was a common policy that 9 pervaded the entire company where Project Managers prevented employees from taking meal breaks 10 and did not authorize and permit employees to take rest breaks.

11 Furthermore, Plaintiffs incorrectly pose the commonality issue under Rule 23(a)(2) as 12 whether Millard's compensation system or policy and procedure of not paying a "premium" for 13 missed meal and rest is in compliance with California law.⁵ Plaintiffs ignore the underlying 14 threshold question of whether Defendants failed to "provide" meal breaks or "authorize and permit" 15 employees to take rest breaks and the reasons why meal and/or rest periods were not taken.

16 Under California law, an employer is required to "authorize and permit" employees to take a 17 10 minute rest break for every four hours worked and the employer is required to "provide" an 18 opportunity for employees to take a 30 minute meal break when they work more than five hours.
19 Cal. Labor Code § 226.7(a); (Dkt. No. 52-10, Wage Order 4-2001 § 12(A)). The meaning of 20 "provide" under Labor Code sections 226.7 and 512 is currently pending before the California 21 Supreme Court in Brinker Rest. Corp. v. Superior Court, 85 Cal. Rptr.3d 688 (2008).

22 While this issue is currently pending before the California Supreme Court and because the 23 California Supreme Court has not interpreted the meaning of "provide" in the Labor Code, district 24 courts have concluded that the California Supreme Court would adopt the interpretation of "provide" 25 to mean "make available" not "ensure taken." As a result, district courts have denied class 26 certification where a plaintiff has failed to show common proof that its employer prevented the

27
28 ⁵Plaintiffs cite to Ortega v. J.B. Hunt Transport, Inc., 258 F.R.D. 361, 367 (C.D. Cal. 2009) in support of their argument that the Court look at Defendant's compensation system. However, Ortega is distinguishable as it concerned truck drivers where there was no company wide policy on meal and rest breaks and no supervisors overseeing the truck driver's hours worked and meal and rest breaks.

1 putative class from taking required breaks. See Hadjavi v. CVS Pharm., Inc., 2011 WL 3240763
2 (C.D. Cal. 2011) (denying class certification because plaintiffs failed to establish existence of a 3 common core of facts or shared legal issues); Brown v. Federal Express Corp., 249 F.R.D. 580, 587 4 (C.D. Cal. 2008) (plaintiffs showed no method of common proof to establish Fed Ex’s policies 5 prevented the putative class from taking required breaks); Kenny v. Supercuts, Inc., 252 F.R.D. 641, 6 646 (N.D. Cal. 2008) (denying class certification because individual issues predominate as the court 7 would need to determine why each class member did not clock out for a meal break on any 8 particular day); Salazar v. Avis Budge Group, Inc., 251 F.R.D. 529, 534 (S.D. Cal. 2008) (denying 9 class certification because individual issues predominate to determine whether defendants forced 10 plaintiffs to forgo missed meal periods). Therefore, under the current caselaw, Plaintiffs must show 11 that Defendants forced the putative class to forego meal and/or rest periods.

12 Plaintiffs provided 112 questionnaires filled out by putative class members. (Dkt. No. 56-2, 13 112 Completed Questionnaires.) Of the 112 questionnaires, 94 indicated that they were not provided 14 with the required rest breaks and 56 indicated that they were not provided the required meal breaks.
15 (Dkt. No. 52, Jusuf Decl. ¶ 39.) In opposition, Defendants provide evidence that of the 112 16 questionnaire respondents, 13 released all wage and hour claims in connection with a settlement of 17 an unrelated union grievance. (Dkt. No. 68-6, Joseph Decl. ¶ 8; Joseph Decl., Ex. 3.) In addition, 18 Defendants identified that ten of the 112 questionnaires respondents provided conflicting statements 19 about meal and/or rest breaks. (See Dkt. No. 69-2, Exs. 105, 125, 127, 153, 174, 205, 206, 208 ; Dkt.
20 No. 69-1, Exs. 41, 86.) Defendants have also provided declarations from over 200 putative class 21 members disputing Plaintiffs’ claims. (Dkt. No. 69-1.)

22 As to the conflicting statements made on the questionnaire and in a prior declaration, Jose 23 Garcia answered on September 20, 2010, that he had not always been able to take a ten minute rest 24 break because the “[t]here was too much work to do, and I was not allowed to leave my work for a 25 rest break.” (Dkt. No. 56-2, Jose Garcia Questionnaire, page 90.) As to meal breaks, he answered 26 that he had not always been able to take a 30 minute uninterrupted meal break because “I was 27 permitted to clock out for lunch then the supervisor would make me work on my lunch break or 10 28 min breaks.” (Id.) However, in an earlier sworn declaration, Jose Garcia stated on February 2, 2010 that “I usually take my 30 minute uninterrupted meal breaks at 10:30 a.m. . . . I have always taken

1 my thirty minute meal break at the appropriate time in accordance with Millard’s policy. I have 2 never decided not to take my meal breaks. My thirty minute meal breaks are never interrupted by 3 work. . . . The supervisor informs me when to take my ten minute breaks, but the time is also written 4 in the schedule. I just have to notify the supervisor when I am going to take it. . . I do not work 5 during my ten minute rest breaks. I have never decided not to take my [ten/fifteen] minute rest 6 breaks. During my ten minute rest breaks, I usually rest in the break room. . . . None of my 7 managers at Millard have told me or given me the impression that I should not take my meal breaks 8 or rest breaks.” (Dkt. No. 69-2 at 34, Garcia Decl. ¶¶ 5, 7, 8.)

9 The conflicting evidence reveals that Millard did not have a uniform practice of denying 10 employees their meal breaks and/or rest breaks. Some employees stated that they missed meal and 11 rest breaks while others stated they always received their meal and rest breaks and others provided 12 contradictory statements. (Dkt. No. 56-2, Questionnaires; Dkt. Nos. 69-1, 69-2.) Because of the 13 varying declarations and conflicting facts of the putative class members, Plaintiffs have failed to 14 show that Defendants had a common policy that “prevented” employees from taking meal breaks 15 and/or failed to “permit and authorize” employees to take rest breaks under Rule 23(a)(2). See 16 Garcia v. Sun Pacific Farming Co-op, Inc., 359 Fed. Appx. 724, 726 (9th Cir. 2009) (affirming 17 district court’s conclusion that plaintiffs failed to show commonality because the conflicting 18 employee declarations showed the “[in]consistent application of the wage and hour laws”); Rosales 19 v El Rancho Farms, 2012 WL 292977 (E.D. Cal. Jan. 31, 2012) (plaintiffs failed to establish 20 commonality because of conflicting testimony of Plaintiffs’ and Defendant’s declarants).

21 2. Split Shift Pay

22 Plaintiffs argue that the common and predominant legal question is whether Millard’s 23 compensation system, including the lack of policy and procedure to pay split-shift pay for any split-24 shift worked by an employee, is consistent with Millard’s obligation under California Law to pay all 25 wages earned. (Mot. at 12.) In opposition, Defendants contend that Plaintiffs have not satisfied 26 commonality under Rule 23(a)(b).

27 A “split shift” is defined as “a work schedule, which is interrupted by non-paid non-working 28 periods established by the employer, other than bona fide rest or meal periods.” (Dkt. No. 52-10, Wage Order 4-2001 § 2(Q)). When an employee works a split shift, “one (1) hour’s pay at the 1 minimum wage shall be paid in addition to the minimum wage for that workday” (Id. § 4(C).)

2 It is Defendant’s policy to not schedule or require its employees to work split shifts. (Dkt 3 No. 68-6, Joseph Decl. ¶ 4.) Moreover, the union agreement specifically provides that the 4 employees’ shifts be continuous. (Id.) As described above, Millard employs a Project Manager at 5 each location who is responsible and has discretion in scheduling employees’ work schedules. (Mot.
6 at 4; Opp. at 2-3.) Plaintiffs have not shown that there was a common policy where Project 7 Managers scheduled split shift work to employees and failed to pay them.

8 Plaintiffs provided 112 questionnaires filled out by putative class members. (Dkt. No. 56-2, 9 112 Completed Questionnaires.) Out of the 112 questionnaires filled out by putative class members, 10 50 indicated that they worked split-shifts. (Dkt. No. 52, Jusuf Decl. ¶ 39.) In opposition, 11 Defendants provide additional evidence that of the 112 questionnaire respondents, thirteen released 12 all wage and hour claims in connection with a settlement of an unrelated union grievance and ten 13 provided conflicting statements about split-shift breaks. (Dkt. No. 68-6, Joseph Decl. ¶ 8; Joseph 14 Decl., Ex. 3; Dkt. No. 69-2, Exs. 105, 125, 127, 153, 174, 205, 206, 208; Dkt. No. 69-1, Exs. 41, 15 86.) Defendants have also provided declarations from over 200 putative class members disputing 16 Plaintiffs’ claims. (Dkt. No. 69-1.)

17 In addition, Defendants attempted to serve 43 questionnaire respondents with deposition 18 subpoenas but was only able to personally serve 23 individuals and only 10 appeared at the 19 deposition. (Opp. at 6.) These depositions demonstrate the contradictory responses provided by the 20 putative plaintiffs. One respondent stated on the questionnaire that she worked split shifts but at the 21 deposition she did not remember if she had worked a split shift or not. (Dkt. No. 68-4, Ex. 10, 22 Arcelia Pizano-DeVerduzco Depo. 57:5-25; 63:10-25; 64:1-4.) She also thought the question about 23 split-shift work was asking about working mid-day shifts, not a morning and evening shift. (Id.)
24 Another respondent stated that his response “yes” to the questionnaire regarding the split shift was 25 inaccurate because he never worked a split shift and probably read the question wrong. (Dkt. No.
26 68-4, Ex. 11, Miguel Rodriguez Depo. 43:7-10; 44:1-25; 45:1-22.) Two other respondents also 27 indicated that their “yes” response on the questionnaire regarding whether they worked split shifts 28 were inaccurate. (Dkt. No. 68-4, Ex. 8, Carlos Ortiz Mendez Depo. 5:25-51:19, 59:5-60:6; Ex. 12, Gilberto Solis Depo. 44:17-22.) Out of the ten depositions taken, four of the respondents indicated

1 that their responses to the questionnaire regarding whether they worked split shifts were not reliable 2 The conflicting declarations, differing questionnaire responses and contradictory deposition 3 testimonies failed to show that there are questions of fact and law that are common to the class.

4 Plaintiffs also focuses on Defendants’ compensation system regarding whether Defendants 5 had a policy to pay split-shift work and does not look at whether the split shift work schedule was 6 established by Defendants and if employees worked split-shifts, then the reasons why the split-shifts 7 were worked. Individual inquiries will need to occur to determine whether split shift work was 8 established by Defendants and the reasons why they were worked. Accordingly, Plaintiffs have 9 failed to show that there is a common question of law or fact as to the split-shift work issue under 10 Rule 23(a)(2).

11 3. Waiting Time Penalty

12 Plaintiffs argue that Defendants are liable for the waiting time penalty for failing to pay 13 conceded wages within the time frame prescribed by statute.⁶ Defendants argues that class treatment 14 is inappropriate because this claim can only be litigated on an individual basis.

15 California requires employers to pay terminated employees’ wages within prescribed 16 timelines, and provide for penalties for the willful failure to do so. Cal. Labor Code §§ 201, 202 17 203. Specifically, Labor Code section 201 provides that if an employer discharges an employee, 18 wages earned and unpaid at the time of the discharge are due and payable immediately. Cal. Labor 19 Code § 201a. Section 202 provides that a quitting employee who gives more than 72 hours’ notice 20 is also entitled to receive wages on the last day of work or if no notice is given, the wages must 21 become payable within 72 hours. Cal. Labor Code § 202(a). The willful failure to pay wages 22 subjects an employer to penalties. Cal. Labor Code § 203.

23 Plaintiff Gonzalez’s conceded wages was not available for her to pick up until approximately 24 two weeks after she was discharged. (Dkt. No. 49, Gonzalez Decl. ¶ 8.) Lopez states that she did 25 not receive her final pay check until about a month after she was terminated. (Dkt. No. 50, Juan

27 ⁶Plaintiffs also contend that Defendants are liable for the waiting time penalty by not including 28 in the final pay checks the unpaid split-shift pay and/or “premium” pay due for unprovided meal and rest periods. Since this Court has concluded that there are no common issues as to the meal and rest periods and split-shift claims, the Court need not address whether Defendants’ failure to pay “premium” pay or split-shift pay is appropriate for class treatment.

1 Decl. ¶ 8.) Plaintiffs provide a schedule showing the termination dates and “date of the last check 2 received” on a small sampling of termination data provided by Millard. (Dkt. No. 55-7, Jusuf Decl., 3 Ex. 31; Dkt. No. 52-4, Jusuf Decl., Ex. 4, Joseph Depo. at 53:13-15.) Out of the total of 84 4 terminated employees, 23 employees did not receive their checks within the required statutory 5 period and 61 employees timely received their checks within the appropriate statutory period. (Dkt.
6 No. 55-2, Jusuf Decl., Ex. 31.) Specifically, Plaintiffs note that five employees that were 7 involuntarily terminated did not receive their paychecks immediately after termination. The Court 8 concludes that the small sampling of termination data does not show commonality that most or all 9 employees were not paid their wages timely after termination.

10 In addition, under Labor Code section 203, a waiting time penalty applies only if an 11 employer willfully fails to pay wages owed in accordance with sections 201 and 202. Cal. Labor 12 Code § 203(a). Willfulness “raises an inherently fact intensive inquiry focusing on state of mind and 13 surrounding circumstances. If a final pay subclass is certified, mini-trials would be required for each 14 class member to determine whether waiting time penalties should be imposed, including whether an 15 employer acted willfully and whether there is a good faith dispute that wages are due.” In re Taco 16 Bell Wage and Hour Actions, 2011 WL 4479730 at *5 (E.D. Cal. 2011) (citation omitted).

17 In this case, the evidence does not show that there are common issues of fact and law 18 regarding whether Defendants violated Labor Code section 203. In addition, a determination of 19 willfulness will require individualized examination as to each employee. Accordingly, Plaintiffs 20 have failed to demonstrate a common issue of fact or law regarding the waiting time penalty claim 21 under Rule 23(a)(2).

22 E. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(b)(3)

23 Plaintiffs also seek certification under Rule 23(b)(3). Under Rule 23(b)(3), certification is 24 appropriate if: (i) questions of law or fact common to the members of the class predominate over any 25 questions affecting only individual members; and (ii) a class action is superior to other available 26 methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3). When 27 the court must determine the merits of an individual claim to determine who is a member of the 28 class, then class treatment is not appropriate. Herrera v. LCS Fin. Servs. Corp., 274 F.R.D. 666, 672-73 (N.D. Cal. 2011); 5 James W. Moore, Moore’s Fed. Practice § 23.21[3][c] (2011). The 1 predominance is a more rigorous requirement than the Rule 23(a)(3) commonality prerequisite.

2 Amchem Prods., Inc. v. Windsor, 521 U.S. 591, 623-24 (1997).

3 The analysis under Rule 23(b)(3) “presumes that the existence of common issues of fact or 4 law have been established pursuant to Rule 23(a)(2). . . .” Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp., 150 F.3d 1011, 5 1022 (9th Cir. 1998). Therefore, since the Court determined that there was no commonality as to the 6 meal and rest period, split-shift, and waiting time penalty claims, the Court need not address whether 7 Rule 23(b)(3) requirements have been met.

8 1. Predominance

9 Plaintiffs argue that as to the incompliant paychecks claim, the common legal question of 10 whether Millard violated Labor Code section 212⁷ by failing to pay its California employees with 11 pay checks that display a California address where the checks could be cashed and failing to enter 12 into an arrangement to allow the employees to cash their pay checks without any fees or discount 13 until after March 1, 2010 predominates over any individual issues. Defendants contend that their 14 paychecks have contained the name and address of a California bank that could be cashed without 15 fee or delay since June 1, 2009.

16 “The predominance inquiry of Rule 23(b)(3) asks ‘whether proposed classes are sufficiently 17 cohesive to warrant adjudication by representation.’ The focus is on ‘the relationship between the 18 common and individual issues.’” Stearns v. Ticketmaster Corp., 655 F.3d 1013, 1019 (9th Cir.
19 2011) (quoting Mevorah v. Wells Fargo Home Mortg., 571 F.3d 953, 957 (9th Cir. 2009).

20 Labor Code section 212(a) provides:

21 No person, or agent or officer thereof, shall issue in payment of wages due, or to 22 become due, or as an advance on wages to be earned: 23 (1) Any order, check, draft, note, memorandum, or other acknowledgment of 24 indebtedness, unless it is negotiable and payable in cash, on demand, without 25 discount, at some established place of business in the state, the name and address 26 of which must appear on the instrument, and at the time of its issuance and for a 27 reasonable time thereafter, which must be at least 30 days, the maker or drawer 28 has sufficient funds in, or credit, arrangement, or understanding with the drawee for its payment.

⁷Although Defendants claim that they do not concede that Plaintiffs have met the requirements under either Rule 23(a) or Rule 23(b)(2), Defendants have not presented any argument that Plaintiffs have failed to meet the requirements of Rule 23(a) for violations of Labor Code section 212. (Opp. at 4.) Therefore, the analysis of violations of Labor Code section 212 begins with Rule 23(b)(3).

1 Cal. Labor Code § 212(a).

2 Defendants concede that their paychecks did not contain the name and address of a 3 California bank that could cash the paycheck without a fee or delay prior to June 1, 2009. (Dkt. No.
4 68-6, Joseph Decl. ¶ 6.) Prior to June 2009, the paychecks were drawn out of a bank located in 5 Lincolnwood, Illinois. (Dkt. No. 52-6, Jusuf Decl., Ex. 6, Wilk Depo. at 71:11-72:6.) Payroll was 6 also handled centrally in Illinois.

7 Around April 28, 2009⁸, Millard entered into a Payable if Desired (“PID”) agreement with its 8 bank, JP Morgan Chase (“Chase”) to allow Millard to print a California address of one of the 9 branches of Preferred Bank which would allow employees to cash their paychecks without fee or 10 delay at any California branch of the Preferred Bank. (Dkt. No. 53-2, Jusuf Decl., Ex. 14; Dkt. No.
11 68-4, Black Decl., Ex. 4, Wilk Depo. at 70:22-71:2; 77:11-25.) Thereafter, JP Morgan Chase 12 notified Millard that it would no longer offer the PID agreement in California after March 31, 2010 13 because Washington Mutual Bank was going to become Chase. (Dkt. No. 68-4, Black Decl., Ex 4, 14 Wilk Depo. at 117:4-8; 119:1- 120:1.) As a result, on March 1, 2010, Millard entered into an 15 agreement with Chase to allow its employees in California to cash their paychecks without any fees 16 or discount by authorizing Chase to include the check cashing charges as part of the Company’s 17 account reconciliation charges each month. (Dkt. No. 53-8, Jusuf Decl, Ex. 20; Dkt. No. 68-4, 18 Black Decl., Ex. 4, Wilk Depo. at 112:16-113:13.) As a result, the PID agreement was discontinued.
19 (Id., Ex. 21.)

20 As to the incompliant paychecks, the parties dispute whether the issue of whether 21 Defendants violated Labor Code section 212 during two time periods predominate over individual 22 ones.

- 23 1) April 1, 2005 to June 1, 2009 (Defendants concede that they issued out-of-state 24 paychecks.)

26
27 ⁸Although the PID agreement is dated April 28, 2009, Defendants state that it was after June 1, 28 2009 when a California address of one of the branches of Preferred Bank was printed on the paychecks.
(Dkt. No. 68-6, Joseph Decl. ¶ 6.) In his deposition, Wilks testified that the agreement was implemented in May 2009 shortly after its execution. (Dkt. No. 68-4, Black Decl., Ex. 4, Wilk Depo. at 109:1-4.)
Plaintiffs clarify the discrepancy stating the June 1, 2009 is the date that the April 28, 2009 PID agreement was implemented. (Reply at 5.)

1 2) June 1, 2009 to March 1, 2010⁹ (PID agreement phase)

2 The parties do not dispute the facts of the first phase; however, Defendants argue that 3 Plaintiffs have failed to show that common issues of fact predominate because there is no evidence 4 that a class of employees encountered delays and/or fees in cashing their paychecks because the 5 paychecks were issued from an out-of-state bank. However, Defendants' argument concerns the 6 penalty to be imposed and not liability. See Solis v. Regis Corp., 612 F. Supp. 2d 1085, 1087 (N.D.
7 Cal. 2007) (granting plaintiff's motion for summary judgment because defendants violated section 8 212 even though not every class member was injured). Prior to June 1, 2009, Defendants had a 9 company-wide policy emanating centrally from Illinois of issuing paychecks to all California 10 employees from an out-of-state bank. Therefore, common issues predominate over individual issues 11 regarding whether Defendants violated Labor Code section 212 prior to this time.

12 During June 1, 2009 to March 1, 2010, Plaintiffs argue that although Millard had an 13 agreement with Chase to allow Millard to print a California address of one of the branches of 14 Preferred Bank, it did not have an agreement with Chase to allow California employees to cash their 15 paychecks without any fees or discount. Defendants contend that no employee would have to pay a 16 fee or have a hold placed on their checks because of the PID agreement.

17 According to the 112 questionnaires presented by Plaintiffs, 58% indicated that they never 18 had to pay a check cashing fee to cash their Millard Mall paychecks while 42% indicated that they 19 paid a check cashing fee but did not state whether it was because they cashed their paycheck at a 20 check cashing place that normally charges a fee regardless of the information on the paycheck or 21 whether the fee was reimbursed with a coupon or voucher to be used towards the purchase of goods.
22 (Dkt. No. 68-4, Black Decl. ¶ 15.)

23 Ten of the respondents who stated that they paid a check cashing fee in their questionnaire 24 swore under penalty of perjury in a declaration that they never incurred a check cashing fee when 25 they cashed their paychecks. (See Dkt. No. 69-2, Exs. 105, 125, 127, 153, 174, 205, 206, 208 ; Dkt.
26 No. 69-1, Exs. 41, 86.) Defendants also provide a list of over 200 putative class plaintiffs that have 27 stated under penalty of perjury that they have never had a hold placed on their paychecks, never had

28 ⁹The effective date of the agreement was March 31, 2010. (Dkt. No. 68-4, Black Decl., Ex 4, Wilk Depo. at 117:4-8.)

1 to pay a fee to cash their paychecks, and those who paid a check cashing fee did so voluntarily by 2 cashing their paychecks at a check cashing business that charges a fee. (Dkt. No. 68-3 at 56-60.)

3 After June 1, 2009, Millard had a PID agreement with JP Morgan Chase. The parties dispute 4 whether the PID agreement was to provide a way for California employees to cash their paychecks 5 without any fees or discount or delays. As a company policy, Millard complied with California law 6 by providing a California address where employees could go to cash their paychecks. The 7 underlying issue is whether the fees that were charged, if at all, were due to Defendants' PID 8 agreement or the employees' decision to cash their checks at a check cashing place that normally 9 charges a fee or whether the fee was reimbursed with a voucher to be used to purchase goods.
10 Therefore, in resolving this question, individual issues will predominate over common questions of 11 law and fact. Therefore, between June 1, 2009 to March 1, 2010, Plaintiffs have not shown that 12 common issues of fact and law will predominate over individual claims under Rule 23(b)(3).

13 Accordingly, the Court concludes that as to the period from April 1, 2005, to June 1, 2009, 14 common issues predominate over individual issues as to Defendants' compliance with Labor Code 15 section 212. As to the period from June 1, 2009 to March 1, 2010, the Court concludes that 16 individual issues predominate over common questions of law and fact.

17 2. Superiority

18 Plaintiffs argue that the class action is the superior means to adjudicate the claim because the 19 putative class members are low wage earners who may not even be aware of their rights under the 20 Labor Code. In addition, since the potential recovery is relatively small, the costs necessary to 21 maintain a lawsuit makes individual suits not feasible. In opposition, Defendant contends that there 22 are enough monetary incentives as to damages, penalties and attorneys' fees so that an individual 23 plaintiff will be provided with complete relief.

24 A class action may be superior "[w]here classwide litigation of common issues will reduce 25 litigation costs and promote greater efficiency." Valentino v. Carter-Wallace, Inc., 97 F.3d 1227, 26 1234 (9th Cir. 1996). It is also superior when no realistic alternative to a class action exists. Id. at 27 1234-35. The Court considers the following factors in considering the superiority prong: (1) the 28 class members' interest in individually controlling the prosecution or defense of separate actions; (2) the extent and nature of any litigation concerning the controversy already begun by or against class

1 members; (3) the desirability or undesirability of concentrating the litigation and of the claims in the 2 particular forum; and (4) the likely difficulties in managing a class action. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3) 3 (A)-(D).

4 As to the claim under Labor Code section 212 from April 1, 2005 to June 1, 2009, a class 5 action would be the superior method for managing litigation as common issues exist. However, 6 from June 1, 2009 to March 1, 2010, the Court concluded that individual issues predominate.
7 Therefore, the more individual issues predominate, the less likely that a class action would be the 8 superior method of resolving the controversy.

9 The Court concludes that Plaintiffs have satisfied superiority as to the claim under Labor 10 Code section 212 from April 1, 2005 to June 1, 2009. The Court also concludes that Plaintiffs have 11 not satisfied superiority as to the claim under Labor Code section 212 from June 1, 2009 to March 1, 12 2010.

13 F. Unfair Competition Law, Cal. Business and Professions Code § 17200

14 The Unfair Competition claim is derivative of the claims under the Labor Code discussed 15 above. Therefore, since the Court has determined that the labor code violations, except Labor Code 16 section 212 as to the time period from April 1, 2005 to June 1, 2009, are not suitable for class 17 treatment, this claim is also not suitable for class treatment. See White v. Starbucks Corp., 497 F.
18 Supp. 2d 1080, 1089-90 (N.D. Cal. 2007) (dismissing section 17200 claim where underlying claims 19 were invalid); see also Norris-Wilson v. Delta-T Group, Inc., 270 F.R.D. 596, 611 (S.D. Cal. 2010) 20 (citing Ruiz v. Affinity Logistics Corp., 2009 WL 648973 *8 (S.D. 2009) (class wide adjudication of 21 unfair business practices claim turns on adjudicability of underlying causes of action).

22 In sum, the Court grants Plaintiffs' motion for class certification as to the UCL claim for 23 violation of Labor Code section 212 from April 1, 2005 to June 1, 2009. The Court denies 24 Plaintiffs' motion for class certification as to the UCL claims as to all remaining labor code 25 violations.

26 G. Civil Penalty Pursuant to the Private Attorneys General Act of 2004 ("PAGA")

27 The purpose of the PAGA is to create a "means of 'deputizing' citizens as private attorneys 28 general to enforce the Labor Code." Brown v. Ralphs Grocery Co., 197 Cal. App. 4th 489, 501 (2011). The relief is mainly "for the benefit of the general public rather than the party bringing the 1 action.” Id. (citation omitted). Under the PAGA, an employee may bring a private civil action for 2 Labor Code violations committed against the employee by his or her employer. Labor Code § 3 2699(c). The “aggrieved employee” may file a civil action “on behalf of . . . other current or former 4 employees against whom one or more of the alleged violations was committed.” Labor Code 5 2699(a). The PAGA provides no specific class certification requirements. Brown v. Ralphs Grocery 6 Co., 197 Cal. App. 4th 489, 501 (2011). In Aria v. Superior Court, the California Supreme Court 7 held that an employee does not need to satisfy class action requirements to bring a representative 8 action under PAGA. Aria v. Superior Court, 46 Cal. 4th 969, 981-985 (2009).

9 Plaintiffs bring a PAGA claim for Defendants’ alleged violation of Labor Code section 212.
10 (SAC ¶¶ 61-72.) Therefore, Plaintiffs need not satisfy the class action requirements and may bring a 11 representative action under PAGA. See Aria, 46 Cal. 4th at 981-85.

12 Conclusion

13 Based on the above, the Court GRANTS IN PART AND DENIES IN PART Plaintiffs’ 14 motion for class certification. Specifically, the Court GRANTS Plaintiffs’ motion for class 15 certification only as to Class A, as modified as, “[a]ny and all persons who have been employed 16 directly or indirectly by The Millard Group, Inc. and/or Millard Mall Services, Inc. in California at 17 any time from April 1, 2005 to June 1, 2009.” The Court DENIES Plaintiffs’ motion for class 18 certification as to all remaining claims. The Court also GRANTS Plaintiffs’ and Defendants’ 19 requests for judicial notice.
