UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

D.H.,	)	Civil No. 09cv2621-L(NLS)
Plaintiff,	)
	)	ORDER DENYING PLAINTIFF’S
v.	)	MOTION FOR SUMMARY
	)	JUDGMENT
POWAY UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT,	)
Defendant.	)

This is an action brought by a hearing-impaired eighth-grade student pursuant to Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act and the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (“IDEA”). After an unfavorable administrative decision, Plaintiff filed a complaint in this court, asserting causes of action for violation of the Rehabilitation Act and IDEA and for reversal of the administrative decision. She has moved for summary adjudication on the third cause of action to reverse the decision of the Office of the Administrative Hearings of the State of California, which denied Plaintiff’s request for computer assisted real time captioning (“CART”) as a part of her free appropriate public education. Defendant opposed Plaintiff’s motion. For the reasons which follow, Plaintiff’s motion is DENIED.

“The IDEA provides federal funds to assist state and local agencies in educating children with disabilities, but conditions such funding on compliance with certain goals and procedures. [Its] primary purpose is to assure that all children with disabilities have available to them a free appropriate public education which emphasizes special education and related services designed

1 to meet their unique needs. This purpose is achieved through the development of an 2 individualized education program (“IEP”) for each child with a disability. The IEP is crafted 3 annually by a team that includes a representative of the local educational agency, the child's 4 teacher and parents, and, in appropriate cases, the child. The IEP document must contain: 5 information regarding the child's present levels of performance; a statement of annual goals and 6 short-term instructional objectives; a statement of the specific educational services to be 7 provided and the extent to which the child can participate in regular educational programs; and 8 objective criteria for measuring the student's progress.” Ojai Unified Sch. Dist. v. Jackson, 4 9 F.3d 1467, 1469 (9th Cir. 1993) (internal quotation marks, ellipsis, brackets and citations 10 omitted).

11 “In addition to these substantive provisions, the IDEA contains numerous procedural 12 safeguards. In particular, [it] requires that the parents or guardians of a disabled child be notified 13 of any proposed change in the identification, evaluation, or educational placement of the child, 14 or the provision of a free appropriate public education to the child, and that they be permitted to 15 bring a complaint about any matter relating to such evaluation and educational placement. When 16 a complaint is made, the child's parents are entitled to an impartial due process hearing 17 conducted either by the state or local educational agency, or an intermediate educational unit, as 18 determined by state law. In California, the hearing is conducted by a person knowledgeable in 19 the laws governing special education and administrative hearings. After the administrative 20 hearing officer renders a decision, any party aggrieved by the findings and decision has the right 21 to bring a civil action in state or federal court.” Id. (internal quotation marks, ellipsis, brackets 22 and citations omitted).

23 Plaintiff’s third cause of action for reversal of the administrative decision is based entirely 24 on the administrative record. The relevant facts are undisputed. Plaintiff is eligible for special 25 education because she has moderate to profound hearing loss. She has a cochlear implant in her 26 right ear and a hearing aid in her left. She uses speech and listening as her primary mode of 27 communication. She attends school in a general education classroom with non-disabled peers; 28 however, she does not hear everything spoken in the classroom. She relies on visual strategies,

1 such as lip reading and observation of the activities of her peers, and educated guesses to fill in 2 for the sentences she does not hear. Plaintiff is not always aware when she has not heard 3 something. In addition, she has some difficulty communicating in that she sometimes mumbles, 4 speaks very softly and has difficulty producing certain sounds. Nevertheless, she has earned 5 excellent grades and is an active participant in class and in social life at school.

6 Defendant's IEP for Plaintiff provided Plaintiff with deaf and hard of hearing services, 7 audiological services, and FM system,<sup>1</sup> among other supports to try to meet her needs. At the 8 April 20, 2009 IEP team meeting, Plaintiff's parents requested CART services. CART is a 9 transcription service in real time, which displays words on a computer screen as they are spoken.
10 Plaintiff argues that this would allow her better to follow the lectures as well as other students' 11 contributions and class discussions. The IEP team denied the request as unnecessary to provide 12 Plaintiff with a free appropriate public education.

13 On May 28, 2009 Plaintiff filed a due process hearing request under the IDEA. The only 14 issue raised was Defendant's failure to offer CART services. Prior to the hearing, in an August 15 10, 2009 letter, Defendant offered to give Plaintiff transcription services similar to CART, 16 however, the speech would be summarized rather than transcribed word-for-word. This service 17 would be provided on condition that Plaintiff's parents consented to it as a part of the IEP. On 18 September 14, 2009 Defendant filed its own due process hearing request, seeking a declaration 19 that the August 10, 2009 offer of transcription service provided Plaintiff with free appropriate 20 public education.

21 On October 28, 2009 the administrative judge ("ALJ") found that the April 20, 2009 IEP
22 in its original form provided Plaintiff with a free appropriate public education and that CART
23 services were not required. Plaintiff appealed this decision to this court and moves for summary 24 adjudication of her claim that the ALJ's decision was erroneous and should be reversed.

25 In an action challenging an administrative decision, the IDEA provides that "the court 26

27 <sup>1</sup> With an FM amplification system, the teacher wears a microphone when speaking 28 to the class. The microphone works in connection with an amplification system in the student's hearing aid and cochlear implant to amplify the teacher's voice. The effect is to bring the teacher's voice closer to the student.

1 shall receive the records of the administrative proceedings; [¶] shall hear additional evidence at 2 the request of a party; and [¶] basing its decision on the preponderance of the evidence, shall 3 grant such relief as the court determines is appropriate.” 20 U.S.C. § 1415(i)(2)(C). As the 4 party seeking relief in federal court, Plaintiff bears the burden of demonstrating that the ALJ's
5 decision should be reversed. J.W. v. Fresno Unif. Sch. Dist., 626 F.3d 431, 438 (9th Cir. 2010)
6 affirming and attaching J.W. v. Fresno Unif. Sch. Dist., 611 F. Supp. 2d 1097 (E.D. Cal. 2009).
7 “In addition the party challenging the administrative decision bears the burden of persuasion on 8 each claim challenged.” Id.

9 “In review of an IDEA due process hearing, courts give less deference than is 10 conventional in review of other agency actions. How much deference to give state educational 11 agencies, however, is a matter for the discretion of the courts. The Court, in recognition of the 12 expertise of the administrative agency, must consider the findings carefully and endeavor to 13 respond to the hearing officer's resolution of each material issue. After consideration, the court 14 is free to accept or reject the findings in part or in whole.” Id. (internal quotation marks and 15 citations omitted).

16 “Due weight must be given to the administrative decision below and courts must not 17 substitute their own notions of sound educational policy for those of the school authorities which 18 they review. The amount of deference afforded the hearing officer's findings increase where 19 they are thorough and careful. This Court gives deference to an ALJ's decision when it evinces 20 his or her careful, impartial consideration of all the evidence and demonstrates his or her 21 sensitivity to the complexity of the issues presented.” Id. (internal quotation marks, brackets and 22 citations omitted).

23 Plaintiff objects to the ALJ's decision on two grounds. First, she argues that the ALJ 24 applied an incorrect legal standard by holding that the state law requirement of equal 25 communication access for hearing-impaired students was inapplicable. Second, she contends 26 that the ALJ erred when she found that Defendant's August 10, 2009 letter offering Plaintiff a 27 transcription service and its own due process complaint against Plaintiff did not constitute an 28 admission that Plaintiff needed speech transcription services such as CART and that the 1 evidence was irrelevant to the issue whether she does.

2 Plaintiff correctly argues that the IDEA’s free appropriate public education requirement
3 incorporates state law standards, including California law pertaining to equal communication 4 access for hearing-impaired students. Free appropriate public education is defined in the IDEA 5 as “special education and related services that [¶] (A) have been provided at public expense, 6 under public supervision and direction, and without charge; [¶] (B) meet the standards of the 7 State educational agency; [¶] (C) include an appropriate preschool, elementary school, or 8 secondary school education in the State involved; and [¶] (D) are provided in conformity with 9 the individualized education program required under section 1414(d) of this title.” 20 U.S.C.
10 § 1401(9) (emphasis added). “State standards that are not inconsistent with federal standards 11 [under the IDEA] are also enforceable in federal court.” J.L. v. Mercer Island Sch. Dist., 592 12 F.3d 938, 947 (9th Cir. 2010) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted, brackets in 13 original); see also J.W., 626 F.3d at 433 (“Both state and federal regulations supplement IDEA’s 14 procedural and substantive requirements.”); Bd. of Educ. of the Hendrick Hudson Central Sch.
15 Dist. v. Rowley, 458 U.S. 176, 203-04 (1982) (“The IDEA requirement of free appropriate public 16 education is satisfied “by providing personalized instruction with sufficient support services to 17 permit the child to benefit educationally from that instruction. Such instruction and services 18 must be provided at public expense, must meet the State's educational standards, must 19 approximate the grade levels used in the State's regular education, and must comport with the 20 child's IEP.”).

21 Plaintiff points to a number of California Education Code Sections which address the 22 needs of hearing-impaired students. Section 56000.5 contains legislative findings that “it is 23 essential that hard-of-hearing and deaf children, like all children, have programs in which they 24 have direct and appropriate access to all components of the educational process, including, but 25 not limited to, recess, lunch and extracurricular social and athletic activities;” and that they 26 “have an education in which their unique communication mode is respected” and “with a 27 sufficient number of language mode peers with whom they can communicate directly.” Cal.
28 Educ. Code § 56000.5(a)(2), (4) & (7).

1           Accordingly, the IEP team is required, among other things, to “consider the pupil’s 2 language and communication needs, opportunities for direct communications with peers and 3 professional personnel in the pupil’s language and communication mode, academic level, and 4 full range of needs, including opportunities for direct instruction in the pupil’s language and 5 communication mode.” Id. § 56341.1(b)(4); see also 20 U.S.C. § 1414(d)(3)(B)(iv) (same). In 6 addition, the IEP team must consider “whether the pupil requires assistive technology devices 7 and services as defined in Section 1401(1) and (2) of Title 20 the United States Code.” Cal.
8 Educ. Code § 56341.1(b)(5); see also 20 U.S.C. § 1414(d)(3)(B)(v) (same).

9           In addition, California Education Code Section 56345(d) provides 10           it is the intent of the Legislature that, in making a determination of the services that 11           constitute an appropriate education to meet the unique needs of a deaf or 12           hard-of-hearing pupil in the least restrictive environment, the individualized education program team shall consider the related services and program options that provide the pupil with an equal opportunity for communication access.

13           The section requires the IEP team to specifically discuss the student’s communication needs, 14 including the student’s primary language mode, “which may include the use of spoken language 15 with or without visual cues, or the use of sign language, or a combination of both;” the 16 availability of a sufficient number of language peers; access to “special education teachers and 17 other specialists who are proficient in the pupil’s primary language mode;” and “[s]ervices 18 necessary to ensure communication-accessible academic instruction, school services, and 19 extracurricular activities.” Id. §56345(d)(1)-(4).

20           Plaintiff argues that CART service is required by California law for her to obtain “direct 21 and appropriate access” to education and an “equal opportunity for communication access.” She 22 contends that “[t]here can be no direct access or a fully accessible education when the deaf 23 student misses words spoken in the class because of their disability.” (Pl.’s Mem. of P.&A. at 24 16; see also id. at 23.) Plaintiff does not support this argument with citation to any legal 25 authority. The California Education Code Sections on which Plaintiff relies do not require that 26 any particular service or technology be provided. All that is required by these provisions is that 27 the IEP team consider Plaintiff’s needs and assistive services and programs to provide her with 28 an equal opportunity for communication access and that they discuss her needs and necessary

1 services in their effort to comply with the requirement of a free appropriate public education.

2 Plaintiff does not deny that the IEP team at the April 20, 2009 IEP meeting discussed her 3 communication needs and the effectiveness of the services and technology she was using, and 4 that it expressly considered and discussed her parents' request for the CART service together 5 with their concerns which led to the request. (See Admin. Record at 75-95.) Accordingly, the 6 ALJ correctly found that Defendant complied with the California educational standards for 7 hearing-impaired students. (See Compl. Ex. 1, Decision of Administrative Law Judge Susan 8 Ruff, Office of Administrative Hearings, dated Oct. 28, 2009 ("ALJ Decision") at 16.)

9 Compliance with State educational standards is one of several requirements for free 10 appropriate public education. See 20 U.S.C. § 1401(9). None of the other requirements 11 expressly listed in the IDEA are at issue in this case.

12 The substantive requirement prescribing the level of education to be accorded disabled 13 students under the free appropriate public education standard is not expressly stated in the IDEA, 14 but was established in Board of Education of the Hendrick Hudson Central School District v.
15 Rowley. J.L., 592 F.3d at 947;<sup>2</sup> see also Rowley, 458 U.S. at 189. Rowley held that "[i]mplicit in 16 the congressional purpose of providing access to a 'free appropriate public education' is the 17 requirement that the education to which access is provided be sufficient to confer some 18 educational benefit upon the handicapped child." Rowley, 458 U.S. at 200. Accordingly, the 19 States are not required to "maximize each child's potential commensurate with the opportunity 20 provided other children." Id. at 198 (internal quotation marks omitted); see also J.L., 592 F.3d at 21 947 ("states must provide a basic floor of opportunity to disabled students, not a potential-22 maximizing education"). An IEP which is "reasonably calculated to enable the child to receive 23 educational benefits" meets this standard. Rowley, 458 U.S. at 207 (footnote omitted). Even if 24 the services requested by parents would better serve the student's needs than the services offered 25 in an IEP, this does not mean that the services offered are inappropriate, as long as the IEP is

27 <sup>2</sup> Although the IDEA has been amended several times since Rowley was decided in 28 1982, "Rowley continues to set the free appropriate public education standard." J.L., 592 F.3d at 941; see also id. at 947-48.

1 reasonably calculated to provide the student with educational benefits. Gregory K. v. Longview 2 Sch. Dist., 811 F.2d 1307, 1314 (9th Cir. 1987). Furthermore, when the disabled student “is 3 being educated in the regular classrooms of a public school system, the achievement of passing 4 marks and advancement from grade to grade [is] one important factor in determining educational 5 benefit.” Rowley, 458 U.S. at 207 n.28.

6 The student in Rowley was in a similar situation as Plaintiff. She was a deaf student who 7 attended a regular public school. She was provided with an FM amplification system. She also 8 received specialized services from a tutor for the deaf and a speech therapist. The student 9 performed better than the average child in her class and advanced easily from grade to grade.
10 Her parents requested that she also be provided with a sign-language interpreter in her academic 11 classes. The school denied the parents’ request. Rowley, 458 U.S. at 184-85. The Court found 12 the student’s “academic progress, when considered with the special services and professional 13 consideration accorded by [her] school administrators, to be dispositive” on the issue whether 14 the IEP was reasonably calculated to provide her with educational benefits. Id. at 203 n.25. The 15 Court concluded that considering the student was performing above average, advancing easily 16 from grade to grade, and was receiving personalized instruction and related services calculated 17 by the school to meet her educational needs, the school complied with the substantive 18 requirement of free appropriate public education under the IDEA. Id. at 209-10.

19 Here, Plaintiff attended a regular public school. She received an FM amplification 20 system for classroom and school assemblies, including a pass-around microphone to capture the 21 input of her peers. She also received access to close captioning for video presentations at school.
22 (See ALJ Decision at 3-6). With these services she earned excellent grades, predominantly As 23 and some Bs. (Joint Statement of Undisputed Facts at 2.) These assistive technologies were 24 offered to her again with the April 20, 2009 IEP. (AR at 75, 80-81, 94-95). In addition, she was 25 provided with preferential seating away from noise, access to copies of her peers’ or teacher’s 26 lecture notes, written directions, an extra set of textbooks as needed, access to a quiet work 27 environment, and extra time for some assignments. Finally, her teachers were provided with 28 information packets and training regarding Plaintiff’s hearing loss and the necessary

1 accommodations, including the need to face Plaintiff when giving instruction, pass the 2 microphone around the class during other students' participation, and repeating or rephrasing
3 other students' responses. Plaintiff was also provided with specific deaf and hard of hearing 4 services and speech and audiological services.

5 Plaintiff's parents requested the CART service in addition to the services offered in the 6 April 20, 2009 IEP. Defendant declined to provide it. After the IEP team considered Plaintiff's 7 needs and progress on her goals, her parents' concerns, and the benefits offered by CART, they 8 concluded CART services were not necessary for Plaintiff at the time to benefit from her 9 education. (AR at 95; see also id. at 157.)

10 Plaintiff argues that Defendant admitted that she needed a transcription service when it 11 offered in an August 10, 2009 letter to provide her with a transcription service which would 12 summarize the words spoken in class. (See AR at 189.) Plaintiff also argues that Defendant's 13 own September 14, 2009 request for a due process hearing supports the admission, because 14 Defendant requested a finding that it had offered Plaintiff an appropriate transcription service.
15 (See id. at 157-58.) Neither of these documents states that Defendant or Plaintiff's IEP team 16 considered any transcription service necessary for Plaintiff to benefit from her education. The 17 August 10, 2009 letter states that the transcription service was offered "as a response" to the 18 parents' request for a CART service. (Id. at 189.) The September 14, 2009 hearing request 19 states that the IEP team considered necessary the services offered in the April 20, 2009 IEP, 20 which did not include any transcription service. (Id. at 157.) Defendant's requested finding that 21 the offered transcription service was appropriate is not inconsistent with a finding that is was not 22 necessary for Plaintiff to benefit from her education, because Defendant is free to offer more 23 than is required by the IDEA. All the IDEA ensures is "the basic floor of opportunity." See 24 Rowley, 458 U.S. at 201; J.W., 626 F.3d at 439. Although these documents show that Defendant 25 was willing to provide Plaintiff with some type of transcription service, they do not support an 26 inference that Defendant considered any transcription service necessary.

27 The court is sympathetic to the parents' view that the CART service would make it easier 28 for Plaintiff to follow the lectures and class discussions by capturing more words than she does

1 without it. However, the IDEA does not require States to “maximize each child’s potential 2 commensurate with the opportunity provided other children,” but only to “enable the child to 3 receive educational benefits.” Rowley, 458 U.S. at 198, 207 (footnote omitted).

4 Based on the foregoing, the ALJ did not err in concluding that the April 20, 2009 IEP 5 complied with the IDEA mandate of a free appropriate public education. To the extent the 6 ALJ’s interpretation of the IDEA’s requirement that the State comply with its own educational 7 requirements differs from this opinion, it is disapproved. Any error in this regard is harmless, 8 however, because the ALJ’s ultimate conclusion is affirmed. Plaintiff’s motion for summary 9 judgment on the third cause of action is DENIED.

10 IT IS SO ORDERED.
