UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

COURTNEY DENNIS,

Plaintiff,

v.

RALPH LAUREN CORPORATION;
RALPH LAUREN RETAIL, INC.;
DOES 1-20, inclusive.

Defendant.

CASE NO. 16cv1056-WQH-BGS

ORDER

HAYES, Judge:

The matter before the Court is the motion to dismiss filed by Defendants Ralph Lauren Corporation and Ralph Lauren Retail, Inc. (ECF No. 20).

I. Procedural Background

On May 2, 2016, Plaintiff Courtney Dennis initiated this action by filing a complaint on behalf of herself and all others similarly situated. (ECF No. 1).

On July, 18, 2016, Plaintiff filed the amended complaint, the operative pleading in this matter (the “FAC”). (ECF No. 13). Plaintiff on behalf of herself and others similarly situated, asserts the following causes of action against Defendants: (1) violations of California’s Unfair Competition Law (“UCL”), Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200 et seq.; (2) violation of California’s False Advertising Law (“FAL”), Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17500 et seq.; (3) violations of the California Consumer Legal Remedies Act (“CLRA”), Cal. Civ. Code §§ 1750 et seq.; and (4) violations of the consumer protection laws on behalf of classes in states with similar laws. Id. Plaintiff

1 alleges that this Court has original jurisdiction pursuant to the Class Action Fairness
2 Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1332 (d)(2). Id. at ¶ 7.

3 On August 22, 2016, Defendants filed a motion to dismiss for failure to state a 4 claim. (ECF No. 20). On September 12, 2016, Plaintiff filed a response in opposition.
5 (ECF No. 23). On September 19, 2016, Defendants filed a reply. (ECF No. 24).

6 II. Allegations of the Complaint

7 Plaintiff alleges that “Defendants operate Ralph Lauren and related outlet Ralph 8 Lauren Polo stores as well as the ralphlauren.com website, and advertise, market, 9 distribute, and/or sell clothing and clothing accessories in California and throughout the 10 United States.” (ECF No. 13 at ¶ 13).

11 “On or around November 19, 2015, Plaintiff went shopping at the Ralph Lauren 12 Polo Factory store in Carlsbad, California . . .” Id. at ¶ 15. “Upon examining a 13 particular children’s polo short, she observed signs that declared “SALE” with the shirt 14 was advertised at “40% off.” Id. Plaintiff alleges that she “observed signage within the 15 store and the price tag on the shirt . . . represent[ing] that the shirt was ‘40% off.’” Id.
16 Plaintiff alleges that she purchased the shirt for $44.99, $48.59 with sales tax included, 17 because she believed “she was receiving a significant value by purchasing [a] polo shirt 18 for $44.99 that had an original or ‘market’ price of $74.99.” Id. at ¶¶ 15-16. Plaintiff 19 alleges that she received a receipt “stating that the item ‘Price’ was ‘[$]74.99,’ but due 20 to the ‘Promo Price ([$]30.00)’ discount, the shirt was $44.99.” Id. at ¶ 16. “These 21 purported ‘market prices’ and corresponding price ‘discounts’ and savings were false 22 and misleading, as the prevailing retail price for the shirt during the three months
23 immediately prior to Plaintiff’s purchase was not the $74.99 ‘market’ price advertised 24 by Defendants.” Id.

25 “Plaintiff’s counsel tracked the pricing on various consumer goods at various 26 retail stores, including Polo outlet store for several months preceding and subsequent 27 to [Plaintiff’s] purchase.” Id. at ¶ 17. “Plaintiff’s counsel’s investigation revealed that 28 the ‘market price’ ($74.99) of the girl’s Polo shirt [Plaintiff] purchased was never the

1 prevailing market price at the Polo outlet store within the 90 days preceding [Plaintiff's] 2 purchase, nor was the shirt offered for sale at the 'market' price at any time during the 3 investigation at the Polo outlet store." Id. Plaintiff alleges that Defendants offered the 4 shirt at discounted prices during this time period, including the price of $44.99. Id.

5 "Plaintiff's counsel's investigation also revealed that this was a pervasive 6 practice at the Polo Outlet stores." Id. "At least several other items remained 7 continuously discounted from their 'market price,' or they were not offered for sale at 8 their market price for any substantial period of time, including, both men's and 9 women's Polo shirts and men's tee shirts." Id. Plaintiff alleges that the Polo outlet 10 store "engages in a systematic scheme to continuously discount its merchandise without 11 ever offering the merchandise for sale at its 'market' prices at the outlet store." Id.
12 Plaintiff alleges that her counsel's investigation revealed that "the merchandise sold at 13 the Polo outlet stores is primarily out-of-season, made for distribution through the Polo
14 outlet store or includes their lesser-quality lines of product." Id. at ¶ 18. "Plaintiff's 15 investigation revealed that the Polo shirt purchased by Plaintiff was not offered at its 16 full retail price within the 90 days prior to her purchasing it within the relevant market." 17 Id. Plaintiff alleges that "Defendants know that their comparative price advertising is 18 false, deceptive, misleading and unlawful under California law." Id. at ¶ 20.

19 Plaintiff alleges that she "brings this action on behalf of herself and all other 20 similarly situated Class members pursuant to Rule 23(a), (b)(2), and (b)(3) of the 21 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure." Id. at ¶ 26. Plaintiff seeks certification of a 22 Nationwide Class of "all persons who purchased one or more items from Defendants 23 offered at a purported discount from an 'original,' 'regular,' or 'market' price" at any 24 time during the class period, as well as a California Class of "[a]ll persons residing in 25 the state of California who purchased one or more items from Defendant offered at a 26 purported discount from an 'original' or 'regular' price." Id. at ¶¶ 26-29. Plaintiff 27 alleges that she "also brings this action on behalf of all persons located within states 28 with similar consumer protection laws." Id. at ¶ 30. Plaintiff alleges that Defendants

1 have violated consumer protection statutes in forty states and the District of Columbia.
2 Id. at ¶70.

3 III. Legal Standards

4 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6) permits dismissal for “failure to state 5 a claim upon which relief can be granted.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6). Federal Rule of 6 Civil Procedure 8(a) provides that “[a] pleading that states a claim for relief must 7 contain . . . a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled 8 to relief.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a)(2). “A district court’s dismissal for failure to state a 9 claim under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6) is proper if there is a ‘lack of a 10 cognizable legal theory or the absence of sufficient facts alleged under a cognizable 11 legal theory.’” Conservation Force v. Salazar, 646 F.3d 1240, 1242 (9th Cir. 2011)
12 (quoting Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dep’t, 901 F.2d 696, 699 (9th Cir. 1990)).

13 “[A] plaintiff’s obligation to provide the ‘grounds’ of his ‘entitle[ment] to relief’ 14 requires more than labels and conclusions, and a formulaic recitation of the elements 15 of a cause of action will not do.” Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007) 16 (quoting Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a)). “To survive a motion to dismiss, a complaint must 17 contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to ‘state a claim to relief that is 18 plausible on its face.’” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009) (quoting Twombly, 19 550 U.S. at 570). “A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual 20 content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable 21 for the misconduct alleged.” Id. (citation omitted). “[T]he tenet that a court must 22 accept as true all of the allegations contained in a complaint is inapplicable to legal 23 conclusions. Threadbare recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported by 24 mere conclusory statements, do not suffice.” Id. (citation omitted). “When there are 25 well-pleaded factual allegations, a court should assume their veracity and then 26 determine whether they plausibly give rise to an entitlement to relief.” Id. at 679. “In 27 sum, for a complaint to survive a motion to dismiss, the non-conclusory factual content, 28 and reasonable inferences from that content, must be plausibly suggestive of a claim

1 entitling the plaintiff to relief.” Moss v. U.S. Secret Serv., 572 F.3d 962, 969 (9th Cir.
2 2009) (quotation omitted).

3 Claims sounding in fraud or mistake must additionally comply with the 4 heightened pleading requirements of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 9(b), which 5 requires that a complaint “must state with particularity the circumstances constituting 6 fraud or mistake.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 9(b). Rule 9(b) “requires ... an account of the time, 7 place, and specific content of the false representations as well as the identities of the 8 parties to the misrepresentations.” Swartz v. KPMG LLP, 476 F.3d 756, 764 (9th Cir.
9 2007) (quotation omitted); see also Vess v. Ciba-Geigy Corp. USA, 317 F.3d 1097, 10 1106 (9th Cir. 2003) (averments of fraud must be accompanied by “the who, what, 11 when, where, and how of the misconduct charged”) (quotation omitted). “To comply 12 with Rule 9(b), allegations of fraud must be specific enough to give defendants notice 13 of the particular misconduct which is alleged to constitute the fraud charged so that they 14 can defend against the charge and not just deny that they have done anything wrong.” 15 Bly-Magee v. California, 236 F.3d 1014, 1019 (9th Cir. 2001) (citation and internal 16 quotations omitted). “[A] plaintiff must set forth more than the neutral facts necessary 17 to identify the transaction. The plaintiff must set forth what is false or misleading about 18 a statement, and why it is false.” Vess, 317 F.3d at 1106.

19 IV. Discussion

20 A. UCL, FAL, and CLRA Claims

21 Defendants contend that Plaintiff does not satisfy the applicable pleading 22 standards under Rule 8 and Rule 9 (b) to provide them fair notice of the basis for 23 plaintiff’s claim. (ECF No. 20-1). Defendants contend that Plaintiff’s allegation that 24 she purchased a “girl’s Polo shirt” fails to identify the specific product purchased or 25 provide enough detail about the specific product purchased because Defendants sell 26 many varieties of Ralph Lauren branded and Ralph Lauren style shirts. Id. at 15.
27 Defendants contend that Plaintiff has not sufficiently identified the specific advertising 28 statements in question. Defendant contends that “without a depiction or detailed

1 quotation of the challenged advertising in the Amended Complaint, it is impossible to 2 determine what type of price comparison, if any, the advertising would convey to a 3 reasonable consumer, and therefore whether [Plaintiff] has plausibly alleged her claims 4 that Ralph Lauren violated the UCL, CLRA, and/or FAL.” Id. at 18. Defendants 5 contend Plaintiff’s allegations about counsel’s investigation of Defendants’ alleged 6 deceptive pricing scheme are vague, conclusory and lack the specificity required by 7 Rule 9(b). Id. at 19-20. Defendants contend that the FAC does not sufficiently allege 8 specific facts about the length of the investigation, the locations where counsel tracked 9 the prices of Ralph Lauren products, counsel’s methods of investigation, or how the 10 investigation showed that “the merchandise sold at the Polo outlet stores is primarily 11 out-of-season, made for distribution through the Polo outlet store or includes their 12 lesser-quality lines of product.” Id. at 22. Defendants contend that the FAC fails state 13 a claim because it does not allege that the girl’s polo shirt was not sold at the “higher, 14 advertised former price elsewhere in the locality during the 3-Month period.” (ECF No.
15 24 at 8).

16 Plaintiff contends that she has “sufficiently identified which shirt she bought; 17 fully describes Defendants’ deceptive advertising; and provided any necessary details 18 of counsel’s investigation.” (ECF No. 23 at 12). Plaintiff contends that although the 19 FAC “did not include a copy of Plaintiff’s receipt, it provided more than enough detail 20 to enable Defendants to identify the shirt that Plaintiff bought” because it alleges the 21 date of purchase, location where Plaintiff made the purchase, item she purchased, and 22 the advertising related to the shirt.¹ Id. Plaintiff contends that the “FAC specifies in 23 sufficient detail the contents of Defendants’ false advertising and also explains why the 24 advertising is false.” Id. at 16. Plaintiff contends that she is not required to plead the 25 process of their counsel’s investigations. Id. at 16-19. Plaintiff contends that her 26

27 ¹ Plaintiff files a copy of the receipt with her response in opposition to Plaintiff’s 28 motion. Plaintiff contends that it is proper for the Court’s consideration because “Plaintiff quoted from, referred to, relied on, and hence incorporated into her FAC.”
(ECF No. 23 at 13).

1 allegations regarding counsel’s investigation were sufficient because the Complaint 2 states that the shirt purchased by Plaintiff was never the prevailing market price at the 3 Polo outlet store within the 90 days preceding Plaintiff’s purchase. Id. at 19.

4 California’s UCL prohibits “any unlawful, unfair or fraudulent business act or 5 practice and unfair, deceptive, untrue or misleading advertising.” Cal. Bus. & Prof.
6 Code. § 17200. The UCL incorporates the prohibition on unfair advertising included 7 in California’s FAL. Id.; Hinojos v. Kohl's Corp., 718 F.3d 1098, 1103 (9th Cir. 2013), 8 as amended on denial of reh'g and reh'g en banc (July 8, 2013). California’s FAL 9 prohibits any unfair, deceptive, untrue or misleading advertising. Id. § 17500. The 10 FAL states, “No price shall be advertised as a former price of any advertised thing, 11 unless the alleged former price was the prevailing market price as above defined² within 12 three months next immediately preceding the publication of the advertisement or unless 13 the date when the alleged former price did prevail is clearly, exactly and conspicuously 14 stated in the advertisement.” Id. at § 17501. California’s CLRA prohibits “unfair 15 methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices.” Cal. Civ. Code § 16 1770. The CLRA specifically prohibits, “[a]dvertising goods or services with intent not 17 to sell them as advertised” and “[m]aking false or misleading statements of fact 18 concerning reasons for, existence of, or amounts of price reductions.” Cal. Civ. Code 19 § 1770(a)(9), (13).

20 Under these California statutes, conduct is deceptive or misleading if it is likely 21 to deceive an ordinary consumer. Williams v. Gerber Products Co., 552 F.3d 934, 938 22 (9th Cir. 2008). “California courts have recognized that whether a business practice is 23 deceptive will usually be a question of fact not appropriate for decision on demurrer.” 24 Id. at 939; accord Linear Tech. Corp. v. Applied Materials, Inc., 152 Cal. App. 4th 115, 25 134-35 (2007).

27 ² The statute states, “For the purpose of this article the worth or value of any 28 thing advertised is the prevailing market price, wholesale if the offer is at wholesale, retail if the offer is at retail, at the time of publication of such advertisement in the locality wherein the advertisement is published.” Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17501.

1 Plaintiff's UCL, FAL, and CLRA sound in fraud arising out of the same set of 2 facts surrounding Defendants' alleged pricing scheme and are subject to the heightened 3 pleading standard of Rule 9(b). See Kearns v. Ford Motor Co., 567 F.3d 1120, 1125
4 (9th Cir. 2009) (holding that Rule 9(b)'s heightened pleading standards apply to claims 5 for violations of the CLRA and UCL); Rubenstein v. Neiman Marcus Grp. LLC, No.
6 CV 14-07155 SJO JPRx, 2015 WL 1841254, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 2, 2015).

7 In support of the allegation that the advertised $74.99 market price is false, 8 Plaintiff states that her "counsel tracked the pricing on various consumer goods at 9 various retail stores, including Polo outlet store for several months preceding and 10 subsequent to Ms. Dennis' purchase" and concluded that the Polo shirt "was not offered 11 at its full retail price within the 90 days prior to her purchasing it in the relevant 12 market." (ECF No. 13 at ¶¶ 17-18). Plaintiff has not alleged facts to identify the 13 "various retail stores" and "various consumer goods" included in counsel's 14 investigation. Id. at ¶ 17. The only store that Plaintiff specifically identifies in the 15 counsel's investigation is the Ralph Lauren outlet store where Plaintiff purchased the 16 girl's polo shirt. Id. Plaintiff does not allege that Ralph Lauren girl's polo shirt was 17 unavailable at the $74.99 price at other locations offering Ralph Lauren products, such 18 as the "Polo retail stores[s], high-end department stores, and related online stores" 19 identified in the FAC. Id. at ¶ 18. Plaintiff's allegations that the girl's polo shirt is 20 unavailable elsewhere in the relevant market are vague and conclusory and fail to 21 provide facts to identify the relevant market.

22 The Court concludes Plaintiff does not state a claim under the FAL, CLRA, or 23 UCL, because Plaintiff does not allege facts to support an inference that the "original 24 or market" prices allegedly advertised by Defendant are false. See, e.g., Rael v. Dooney 25 & Bourke, Inc., No. 16CV0371 JM(DHB), 2016 WL 3952219, at *3 (S.D. Cal. July 22, 26 2016) (dismissing UCL, FAL, and CLRA claims in part because Plaintiff "alleges no 27 facts to illustrate why the 'original' price of the purchased handbag, or for that matter, 28 any other . . . product sold at the outlet was false or misleading"); Branca v. Nordstrom,

1 Inc., No. 14CV2062 MMA(JMA), 2015 WL 10436858, at*7 (S.D. Cal. Oct. 9, 2015)
2 (finding that Plaintiff did state a claim under the FAL, CLRA, and UCL in part because 3 “Plaintiff alleges why the ‘Compare At’ prices are false as former prices– because they 4 necessarily cannot be former prices or prevailing market prices, as the items were never 5 sold elsewhere for any other price besides the Nordstrom Rack retail price”).

6 B. Claims Based on Items Not Purchased by Plaintiff

7 Defendants contend that Plaintiff’s “claims on behalf of consumers who 8 purchased other unidentified Ralph Lauren products also fail to satisfy the pleading 9 requirements of both Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a) and 9(b) and should be dismissed.” (ECF 10 No. 20-1 at 25). Defendants contend that Plaintiff fails to allege “ ‘any facts 11 regarding any [Ralph Lauren] products other than the [shirt Plaintiff] purchased,’ 12 much less any plausible factual allegation to show that any advertised discounts for 13 these other items are false or misleading.” Id. at 23. Defendants contend that 14 Plaintiff fails to provide sufficient facts to support the allegation that Defendants’ 15 outlet store engages in a systematic scheme to defraud. Id. at 19.

16 Plaintiff contends that she adequately pleads claims for other items sold.
17 Plaintiff contends that the Defendants’ arguments on this point are more “suitable 18 for discussion at class certification, and the distinctions are immaterial in light of 19 Defendants’ uniform scheme of pricing misrepresentations.” (ECF No. 23 at 19).
20 Plaintiff contends that she can assert claims for unnamed class members based on 21 products she did not purchase because the products and alleged misrepresentations 22 are substantially similar. Id. at 19-23.

23 In addition to allegations related to her purchase of the girl’s polo shirt, 24 Plaintiff alleges that, “At least several other items remained continuously discounted 25 from their ‘market price,’ or they were not offered for sale at their market price for 26 any substantial period of time, including, both men’s and women’s Polo shirts and 27 men’s tee shirts. The Polo outlet store engages in a systematic scheme to 28 continuously discount its merchandise without ever offering the merchandise for sale

1 at its ‘market’ prices at the outlet store.” (ECF No. 13 at ¶ 17). These allegations
2 are legal conclusions and suffer from the same defects as Plaintiff’s allegations
3 specific to the Ralph Lauren girl’s polo shirt at the outlet store in Carlsbad.
4 Plaintiff’s allegation that Defendants did not offer merchandise for sale at its 5 “market” prices at the outlet store fails to state facts to support a conclusion that the 6 advertising is false.

7 C. Standing to Bring Claims Under Law of Other States

8 Defendants contend that Plaintiff’s claims under the laws of states other than 9 California must be dismissed under Rule 12(b)(1) for lack of standing. (ECF No.
10 20-1 at 25-27). Defendants contend that Plaintiff lacks standing to bring these 11 claims because she has not alleged that she purchased any goods from Ralph Lauren 12 outlet stores outside of California or how “she suffered a cognizable injury due to 13 Ralph Lauren’s alleged violation of laws” of other states. Id. at 25.

14 Plaintiff contends that resolving the issue of standing is inappropriate at the 15 pleading stage of a proposed class action and is more properly addressed in a Rule 16 23 motion. (ECF No. 23 at 22-23).

17 Rule 12(b)(1) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure allows a defendant to 18 move for dismissal on grounds that the court lacks jurisdiction over the subject 19 matter. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(1). The burden is on the plaintiff to establish that the 20 court has subject matter jurisdiction over an action. Assoc. of Med. Colls. v. United 21 States, 217 F.3d 770, 778-779 (9th Cir. 2000). The party invoking federal 22 jurisdiction bears the burden of establishing Article III standing. Lujan v. Defenders 23 of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 561 (1992). This party must establish (1) an “injury in 24 fact”—an invasion of a legally protected interest which is (a) concrete and 25 particularized . . . and (b) ‘actual or imminent, not conjectural or hypothetical,’” (2) 26 “a causal connection between the injury and the conduct complained of”, and (3) a 27 likelihood that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision. Id. at 560-61 28 (citations omitted). “[A] plaintiff must demonstrate standing for each claim he seeks

1 to press.” DaimlerChrysler Corp. v. Cuno, 547 U.S. 332, 352 (2006). In the 2 absence of a Article III standing, a court lacks subject matter jurisdiction to entertain 3 the lawsuit. Steel Co. v. Citizens for a Better Env’t, 523 U.S. 83, 109-110 (1998).

4 Plaintiff has alleged no facts to show that she has standing to bring the non-5 California claims. Plaintiff’s multi-state claims are dismissed with leave to amend.
6 See also Rael, 2016 WL 3952219, at *5.

7 V. Conclusion

8 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Defendants’ motion to dismiss (ECF No. 20) 9 is GRANTED in its entirety. Plaintiff’s First Amended Complaint is dismissed.
10 (ECF No. 13). Plaintiff shall file any motion for leave to file a second amended 11 complaint on or before January 17, 2017.
