UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

ISAIAS ALVARADO,
Plaintiff,
v.
COLLECT ACCESS, LLC ET AL.,
Defendants.

Case No. 16-cv-1198 DMS (MDD)

ORDER (1) DENYING IN PART AND GRANTING IN PART
DEFENDANTS' MOTION TO DISMISS AND (2) DENYING
STRIKE

Pending before the Court are Defendants Zee Law Group, Tappan Zee, and Kimberly Barrientos's motion to dismiss Plaintiff Isaias Alvarado's Second Amended Complaint ("SAC") pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6), and motion to strike state law claims pursuant to California Code of Civil Procedure § 425.16. Plaintiff filed a response, and Defendants filed a reply. For the reasons set forth below, Defendants' motion to dismiss is granted in part and denied in part, and Defendants' motion to strike is denied.

I.

BACKGROUND

Plaintiff, a member of the United States Navy, is currently stationed in Japan. (SAC ¶¶ 18–19.) Plaintiff has been on active duty since July 16, 1999 to the present. (Id. ¶ 19.)

1 In January 2005, Plaintiff purchased a 2004 Ford Explorer with a loan secured
2 from HSBC Auto Finance (“HSBC”). (SAC ¶ 31.) In February 2007, when Plaintiff
3 fell behind on his payments, HSBC repossessed and sold the vehicle at an auction 4 for $15,080.64. (Id. ¶¶ 32–33.) The sale proceeds were not enough to satisfy the 5 outstanding balance. (Id. ¶ 33.)

6 Subsequently, HSBC assigned the deficiency balance to Glass Mountain 7 Capital (“Glass Mountain”) for collection. (SAC ¶ 37.) In April 2008, Plaintiff 8 negotiated an agreement with Glass Mountain to settle the alleged debt for a total of 9 $5,600, consisting of an initial payment of $5,000, and six monthly payments of 10 $100. (Id. ¶ 38.) Plaintiff made all payments and believed the debt was resolved.
11 (Id. ¶ 39.) Glass Mountain, however, did not close Plaintiff’s account, nor did it 12 credit the payments to his account. (Id. ¶ 54.) Sometime thereafter, Cascade 13 Receivables Management, LLC (“Cascade”) purchased Glass Mountain along with 14 all of its rights and liabilities. (Id. ¶ 42.) Cascade likewise failed to close Plaintiff’s 15 account or to account for the payments made. (Id. ¶ 43.)

16 Cascade later assigned the alleged debt to Collect Access, LLC (“Collect”) 17 for collection. (SAC ¶ 48.) Upon acquisition of Plaintiff’s account, Collect did not 18 conduct an investigation into the account to verify its accuracy. (Id. ¶¶ 52–53.) 19 Thereafter, Collect retained Defendants to initiate a legal action against Plaintiff to 20 collect the alleged debt. (Id. ¶ 54.) On January 2, 2009, Collect filed a complaint 21 against Plaintiff in the Superior Court of California, San Diego County, seeking to 22 recover a deficiency balance of $15,080.64, plus interest. (Id. ¶¶ 55–56.)

23 While the state court action was pending, Plaintiff filed a complaint against 24 Defendants in this Court on May 18, 2016. In the complaint, Plaintiff alleges the 25 following five grounds for relief: (1) violation of Fair Debt Collection Practices Act
26 (“FDCPA”), 15 U.S.C. § 1692 et seq., (2) violation of Rosenthal Fair Debt
27 Collection Practices Act (“RFDCPA”), Cal. Civ. Code §§ 1788–1788.32, (3)
28 violation of Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (“SCRA”), 50 App. U.S.C. §§ 501–

1 597b, (4) negligence, and (5) negligence per se.

2 II.

3 MOTION TO DISMISS

4 A. Legal Standard

5 A motion to dismiss pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil 6 Procedure tests the legal sufficiency of the claims asserted in the complaint. Fed. R.
7 Civ. P. 12(b)(6); Navarro v. Block, 250 F.3d 729, 731 (9th Cir. 2001). In deciding 8 a motion to dismiss, all material factual allegations of the complaint are accepted as 9 true, as well as all reasonable inferences to be drawn from them. Cahill v. Liberty 10 Mut. Ins. Co., 80 F.3d 336, 338 (9th Cir. 1996). However, a court need not accept 11 all conclusory allegations as true. Rather, it must “examine whether conclusory 12 allegations follow from the description of facts as alleged by the plaintiff.” Holden 13 v. Hagopian, 978 F.2d 1115, 1121 (9th Cir. 1992) (citation omitted); see Benson v.
14 Ariz. State Bd. of Dental Exam’rs, 673 F.2d 272, 275–76 (9th Cir. 1982) (court need 15 not accept conclusory legal assertions). A motion to dismiss should be granted if a 16 plaintiff’s complaint fails to contain “enough facts to state a claim to relief that is 17 plausible on its face.” Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007). “A 18 claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the 19 court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct 20 alleged.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009) (citing Twombly, 550 U.S. at 21 556).

22 B. Younger Abstention

23 Defendants move to dismiss the SAC on the ground that all of Plaintiff’s 24 claims are barred by Younger abstention. Defendants argue abstention applies 25 because Plaintiff is attempting to circumvent the pending state action by litigating in 26 this Court. Plaintiff responds abstention does not apply because “[t]he matters 27 before the San Diego Superior Court relate only to the adjudication of the alleged 28 debt, not whether Defendants violated federal and state laws in their effort to collect

1 on the alleged debt.” (Opp’n to Mot. at 13.)

2 Younger abstention requires a federal court to abstain from granting injunctive 3 or declaratory relief that would interfere with pending state judicial proceedings.
4 Younger v. Harris, 401 U.S. 37, 40–41 (1971). Pursuant to Younger, abstention is 5 required when the following four elements are satisfied: (1) “there is an ongoing 6 state judicial proceeding,” (2) “those proceedings implicate important state 7 interests,” (3) “there is an adequate opportunity in the state proceedings to raise 8 constitutional challenges[,]” and (4) “[t]he requested relief must seek to enjoin—or 9 have the practical effect of enjoining—ongoing state proceedings.” ReadyLink
10 Healthcare, Inc. v. State Comp. Ins. Fund, 754 F.3d 754, 758 (9th Cir. 2014)
11 (citations and internal quotations marks omitted). Younger abstention, however, 12 does not extend to “all parallel state and federal proceedings” that satisfy the four 13 elements, even “where a party could identify a plausibly important state interest.”
14 Sprint Commc’ns, Inc. v. Jacobs, 134 S. Ct. 584, 593 (2013). Rather, Younger 15 abstention is limited to “only three exceptional categories” of state proceedings: (1) 16 “state criminal prosecutions,” (2) “civil enforcement proceedings,” and (3) “civil 17 proceedings involving certain orders that are uniquely in furtherance of the state 18 courts’ ability to perform their judicial functions.” Id. at 588 (quoting New Orleans
19 Pub. Serv., Inc. (“NOPSI”) v. Council of City of New Orleans, 491 U.S. 350, 367–
20 68 (1989)); see Potrero Hills Landfill, Inc. v. Cty. of Solano, 657 F.3d 876, 882 (9th 21 Cir. 2011) (“Though recognizing ‘important state interests’ in a wide variety of civil 22 proceedings, neither we nor the Supreme Court has held Younger to apply generally 23 to ordinary civil litigation.”).

24 Here, Defendants argue abstention is required because three of the four 25 Younger elements are satisfied. This is insufficient to warrant abstention. The Ninth 26 Circuit has expressly held abstention under Younger is proper “only if all four 27 Younger requirements [are] strictly satisfied.” AmerisourceBergen Corp. v. Roden, 28 495 F.3d 1143, 1149 (9th Cir. 2007). Indeed, even if the three Younger elements are

1 satisfied, abstention is not appropriate because the last Younger element is not 2 satisfied. Plaintiff does not seek to enjoin the pending state action nor does the 3 requested relief have the practical effect of enjoining the pending state action.

4 Moreover, even if the Court were to find all four Younger elements satisfied, 5 abstention is not warranted because the pending state action does not fall within any 6 of the “three exceptional categories” of cases identified in Sprint and NOPSI. The 7 pending state action is certainly not a state criminal prosecution nor is it a civil 8 enforcement action. It also does not appear to be a civil proceeding involving 9 “orders that are uniquely in furtherance of the state courts’ ability to perform their 10 judicial functions.” NOPSI, 491 U.S. at 368; cf. Marshall v. Marshall, 547 U.S. 293 11 (2006) (prohibiting federal courts from adjudicating rights that would interfere with 12 the state probate court’s administration of a decedent’s estate); Juidice v. Vail, 430
13 U.S. 327, 336 n.12 (1977) (civil contempt order); Pennzoil Co. v. Texaco Inc., 481 14 U.S. 1, 13 (1987) (requirement for the posting of bond pending appeal). Therefore, 15 Younger abstention does not apply to the present action. Accordingly, Defendants’ 16 motion to dismiss the SAC based on Younger abstention is denied.

17 C. FDCPA Claim

18 Defendants move to dismiss the FDCPA claim, contending they are immune 19 from civil liability pursuant to the Noerr-Pennington doctrine.¹ Specifically, 20 Defendants argue Plaintiff’s “allegations against [them] are a direct result of the 21 judicial proceedings in the State Action, which clearly constitute protected 22 petitioning activity under the Noerr-Pennington doctrine.” (Mem. of P. & A. in 23 Supp. of Mot. at 19.)

24 The Noerr-Pennington doctrine derives from the Petition Clause of the First 25 Amendment, which protects an individual’s right to petition the government for 26

27 ¹ Although Defendants contend “all of [Plaintiff]’s claims against [them] are barred 28 by the Noerr-Pennington doctrine,” Defendants appear to limit this argument to the FDCPA claim. (Mem. of P. & A. in Supp. of Mot. at 19.)

1 redress of grievances. Sosa v. DirectTV, 437 F.3d 923, 929 (9th Cir. 2006). The 2 Noerr-Pennington doctrine provides that “those who petition any department of the 3 government for redress are generally immune from statutory liability for their 4 petitioning conduct.” Id. However, “the First Amendment does not shield lawyers 5 engaged in litigation from FDCPA liability.” Hartman v. Great Seneca Fin. Corp., 6 569 F.3d 606, 616 (6th Cir. 2009) (citing Heintz v. Jenkins, 514 U.S. 291, 294 7 (1995)).

8 The Supreme Court has held the FDCPA “applies to attorneys who ‘regularly’ 9 engage in consumer-debt-collection activity, even when that activity consists of 10 litigation.” Heintz, 514 U.S. at 299. Since Heintz, many courts within the Ninth 11 Circuit have declined to apply the Noerr-Pennington doctrine to cases similar to the 12 present action. See, e.g., Nyberg v. Portfolio Recovery Assocs., LLC, No. 3:15-CV-13 01175-PK, 2016 WL 3176585, at *8 (D. Or. June 2, 2016) (“First Amendment does 14 not confer a right upon debt collectors to petition courts in a manner that violates the 15 FDCPA.”); Applewhite v. Anaya Law Grp., No. EDCV1400385JGBSPX, 2015 WL 16 11438097, at *5 (C.D. Cal. June 15, 2015) (Noerr-Pennington doctrine did not bar 17 the FDCPA claim against a law firm acting as a third-party debt collector); Truong
18 v. Mountain Peaks Fin. Servs., Inc., No. 3:12-CV-01681-WQH, 2013 WL 485763, 19 at *7 (S.D. Cal. Feb. 5, 2013) (“neither the Noerr-Pennington doctrine nor 20 California Civil Code § 47(b) shield Defendant from civil liability under the 21 FDCPA.”); Gerber v. Citigroup, Inc., No. CIV S07-0785WBSJFMPS, 2009 WL 22 248094, at *5 (E.D. Cal. Jan. 29, 2009) (Noerr-Pennington doctrine does not bar 23 actions against debt collector’s attorneys under the FDCPA); Irwin v. Mascott, 112 24 F. Supp. 2d 937 (N.D. Cal. 2000) (debt collector’s attorneys were not immune from 25 civil liability under the FDCPA and the California Unfair Business Practices Act by 26 virtue of their participation in administrative or judicial proceedings). In light of 27 these cases, the Court is unpersuaded by Defendants’ argument that the Noerr- 28 Pennington doctrine bars actions arising under the FDCPA.

1 Defendant further argues they are not debt collectors, and therefore, they are 2 “immune to FDCPA liability for [their] litigation related communications in the 3 State Action under the Noerr-Pennington doctrine[.]” (Mem. of P. & A. in Supp. of 4 Mot. at 10.) In support, Defendant relies on Satre v. Wells Fargo Bank, NA, 507 F.
5 App’x 655, 655 (9th Cir. 2013). In Satre, the Ninth Circuit in a one page 6 unpublished decision held that “[t]he district court properly determined that 7 [defendant] is immune from FDCPA liability under the Noerr–Pennington doctrine 8 because [plaintiffs’] factual allegations in their amended complaint failed to 9 establish that [defendant], who was defending his client from litigation initiated by 10 the Satres, was a ‘debt collector.’” Id. Contrary to the plaintiffs in Satre, Plaintiff 11 here has properly alleged Defendants qualify as debt collectors under the FDCPA.
12 As indicated, “a lawyer who regularly tries to obtain payment of consumer debts 13 through legal proceedings meets the [FDCPA’s] definition of “debt collector[.]” 14 Heintz, 514 U.S. at 291. In the SAC, Plaintiff has alleged “Defendants, each of them, 15 in the ordinary course of business, regularly, ... engage in debt collection as defined 16 by California Civil Code § 1788.2(b), and therefore [are] debt collectors as that term 17 is defined by California Civil Code § 1788.2(c).”² Therefore, the Noerr-Penning
18 doctrine does not shield Defendants from civil liability under the FDCPA.
19 Accordingly, Defendants’ motion to dismiss the FDCPA claim is denied.

20 D. RFDCPA Claim

21 Defendants move to dismiss the RFDCPA claim against Zee Law Group 22 (“ZLG”), arguing a law firm cannot be a “debt collector” under the RFDCPA.
23 Plaintiff responds that recent cases in the Ninth Circuit have held law firms, as 24 distinguished from individual lawyers, are not exempted from liability under the 25

26 ² Under California Civil Code § 1788.2(b) and (c), “debt collection” is defined as 27 “any act or practice in connection with the collection of consumer debts[.]” and “debt 28 collector” is defined as “any person who, in the ordinary course of business, regularly, on behalf of himself or herself or others, engages in debt collection.”

1 RFDCPA.

2 As noted, the RFDCPA defines a “debt collector” as “any person who, in the 3 ordinary course of business, regularly, on behalf of himself or herself or others, 4 engages in debt collection.” Cal. Civ. Code § 1788.2(c). The statute expressly 5 excludes “an attorney or counselor at law.” Id. The majority of district courts in the 6 Ninth Circuit have refused to exclude law firms from liability under the RFDCPA.
7 See, e.g., Huy Thanh Vo v. Nelson & Kennard, 931 F. Supp. 2d 1080, 1090–92 (E.D.
8 Cal. 2013) (collecting cases and holding RFDCPA applies to law firms); Do v.
9 Hollins Law, P.C., No. 3:13-CV-01322-JSW, 2013 WL 4013659, at *4 (N.D. Cal.
10 Aug. 5, 2013) (“this Court follows Vo as well the majority of the federal courts 11 within California that have concluded that the Rosenthal Act does apply to law 12 firms.”); De La Torre v. Legal Recovery Law Office, No. 12CV2579-LAB WMC, 13 2013 WL 5462294, at *8 (S.D. Cal. Sept. 30, 2013) (“A law firm that, in the ordinary 14 course of business regularly engages in debt collection can, however be a debt 15 collector [under the RFDCPA.]”); McNichols v. Moore Law Grp., No. 11CV1458-16 WQH-JMA, 2012 WL 667760, at *4 (S.D. Cal. Feb. 28, 2012) (similar); Thomas v.
17 Loomis-Therrien, No. 5:14-CV-00979-CAS, 2014 WL 5335913, at *6 (C.D. Cal.
18 Oct. 20, 2014) (similar). The prevailing rationale is that since the legislature 19 specifically excluded attorneys from the RFDCPA but was silent on law firms, and 20 where exceptions to a general rule are specified by statute, other exceptions are not 21 to be implied, it is presumed the legislature did not intend to exclude law firms. The 22 Court finds the reasoning of these courts persuasive and likewise concludes the 23 definition of “debt collector” encompasses law firms for purposes of establishing 24 liability under the RFDCPA.

25 In support of their motion, Defendants cite Carney v. Rotkin, Schmerin & 26 McIntyre, 206 Cal. App. 3d 1513, 1526 (Cal. Ct. App. 1988), for the proposition that 27 the exemption extends to law firms. Many district courts, however, have concluded 28 that Carney is not a persuasive precedent. See Vo, 931 F. Supp. 2d at 1092; Do,

1 2013 WL 4013659, at *4. In Carney, an attorney and a secretary of a law firm falsely 2 represented to the plaintiff that a bench warrant had issued for her arrest and that it 3 would remain in effect until she paid the law firm $1,000 on the underlying debt.
4 Carney, 206 Cal. App. 3d at 1513. The plaintiff brought a suit against the law firm, 5 its secretary, and its attorney, alleging numerous claims, including one violation 6 under the RFDCPA. Id. at 1526. The court initially noted the RFDCPA specifically 7 exempts attorneys from its coverage. Id. It then concluded that “the complaint 8 shows on its face that defendant attorney was not a ‘debt collector’ within the 9 meaning of the Act.” Id. However, the court in Carney did not “make clear whether 10 the plaintiff brought a Rosenthal Act claim against the defendant law firm,” and “did 11 not explicitly find that the term ‘attorney’ includes law firms, or even discuss the 12 issue.” Vo, 931 F. Supp. 2d at 1092. Therefore, the Court likewise declines to give 13 weight to Carney.

14 Plaintiff, as previously noted, has alleged ZLG engages in debt collection “in 15 the ordinary course of business, regularly, on behalf of themselves, or others” as 16 defined in California Civil Code § 1788.2(b) and is a “debt collector[] as that term 17 is defined by California Civil Code § 1788.2.” (SAC ¶ 29.) Because Plaintiff has 18 adequately pleaded that ZLG is a debt collector, ZLG is not exempt from liability 19 under the RFDCPA. Accordingly, Defendant’s motion to dismiss this claim against 20 ZLG is denied.

21 E. SCRA Claim

22 Defendants move to dismiss the SCRA claim on grounds that at the time of 23 Defendants’ alleged violation of 50 U.S.C. § 3931,³ the SCRA did not provide a 24 private right of action for damages, and the 2010 amendment to the SCRA, which 25 added a private right of action, 50 U.S.C. § 4042,⁴ does not apply retroactively.⁵

26
27 ³ Formerly 50 App. U.S.C. § 521.

28 ⁴ Formerly 50 App. U.S.C. § 4042.

⁵ Defendants also contend the SAC fails to state a claim for a violation of 50 U.S.C.

1 Plaintiff argues that an implied private right of action exists under § 3931, and even 2 if it does not, he is nevertheless entitled to pursue a private right of action because 3 § 4042 applies retroactively.

4 i. Private Right of Action Under § 3931

5 A plaintiff may “bring a cause of action to enforce a federal law if the law 6 provides a private right of action.” Nisqually Indian Tribe v. Gregoire, 623 F.3d 7 923, 929 (9th Cir. 2010) (citing First Pac. Bancorp, Inc. v. Helfer, 224 F.3d 1117, 8 1121 (9th Cir. 2000)). A plaintiff’s “ability to bring a private right of action may be 9 authorized by the explicit statutory text or, in some instances, may be implied from 10 the statutory text.” Id. (citing Touche Ross & Co. v. Redington, 442 U.S. 560, 568– 11 77 (1979)).

12 Plaintiff alleges Defendants violated § 3931(b)(1) when they filed false 13 affidavits, wherein they stated Plaintiff was of “nonmilitary status” and not entitled 14 to the benefits of the SCRA. (SAC ¶¶ 70, 72, 77, 136.) Section 3931 does not by 15 its terms provide a private right of action. Therefore, the Court must determine 16 whether § 3931 provides a private right of action by implication. “[A]n implied right 17 of action is only authorized when there is clear evidence Congress intended such a 18 right to be part of the statute.” Gregoire, 623 F.3d at 929 (citing Transamerica Mort.
19 Advisors, Inc. (“TAMA”) v. Lewis, 444 U.S. 11, 23–24 (1979)). “The starting point 20 in discerning congressional intent is the existing statutory text.” Lamie v. U.S. Tr., 21 540 U.S. 526, 534 (2004). “The judicial task is to interpret the statute Congress has 22 passed to determine whether it displays an intent to create not just a private right but 23 also a private remedy.” Alexander v. Sandoval, 532 U.S. 275, 286 (2001) (citing 24 TAMA, 444 U.S. at 15). Absent such intent, “a cause of action does not exist and 25 courts may not create one, no matter how desirable that might be as a policy matter, 26 or how compatible with the statute.” Id. at 286–87.

27 _____
28 § 3953, even though they acknowledge Plaintiff has not alleged such a violation.
Therefore, the Court declines to address this argument.

1 The text of § 3931 reveals no intent on the part of the legislature to provide a 2 private right of action for damages arising from a violation of the statute. The intent 3 of § 3931(b) is to protect servicemembers against default judgments when they fail 4 to make an appearance due to their active duty military status. The language of 5 § 3931(b) “focuses exclusively on the court requiring a plaintiff to file an affidavit 6 informing it of a defendant’s military status.” Davis v. Hunt Leibert Jacobson P.C., 7 No. 3:12CV1102 (JBA), 2016 WL 2963418, at *9 (D. Conn. May 20, 2016).

8 Section 3931(b)(1) provides:

9 In any action or proceeding covered by this section, the court, before 10 entering judgment for the plaintiff, shall require the plaintiff to file with 11 the court an affidavit--

12 (A) stating whether or not the defendant is in military service and 13 showing necessary facts to support the affidavit; or

14 (B) if the plaintiff is unable to determine whether or not the defendant 15 is in military service, stating that the plaintiff is unable to determine 16 whether or not the defendant is in military service.

17 Section 3931(b) is phrased as a directive to the courts to require the plaintiff 18 to file an affidavit before entering judgment for the plaintiff. As a result, the focus 19 of § 3931(b) is “twice removed from the individuals who will ultimately benefit 20 from” it. Sandoval, 532 U.S. at 28; see California v. Sierra Club, 451 U.S. 287, 294 21 (1981) (statutes that focus on the person regulated rather than the individuals 22 protected create “no implication of an intent to confer rights on a particular class of 23 persons.”).

24 Moreover, § 3931 expressly provides a remedy and punishment for a violation 25 of § 3931(b), which further indicates Congress did not intend to allow an additional 26 private remedy for damages. For example, a person who knowingly makes a false 27 affidavit is subject to fines and/or imprisonment. 50 U.S.C. § 3931(c). If a default 28 judgment has been entered against a servicemember during his or her period of military service, the court must, “upon application by or on behalf of the servicemember, reopen the judgment for the purpose of allowing the servicemember

1 to defined the action[.]” Id. at § 3931(g). Because § 3931 provides for a remedy or 2 punishment other than private damages, it appears Congress did not intend for 3 private parties to pursue a claim for monetary damages based on a violation of 4 § 3931(b). The Court therefore declines to find an implied right of action in § 5 3931(b).

6 ii. Retroactivity Under § 4042

7 Effective October 13, 2010, a private right of action for damages, equitable 8 relief, declaratory relief, and attorneys’ fees and costs was provided for a violation 9 of § 3931. See 50 U.S.C. § 4042(a) & (b). Plaintiff contends Defendants filed false 10 affidavits in the state court on March 18, 2009, September 28, 2009, and June 1, 11 2010, in violation of § 3931. (SAC ¶ 70.) Because § 4042 was not enacted at the 12 time of Defendants’ alleged violation of § 3931, Plaintiff may bring a claim under 13 § 3931 only if § 4042 applies retroactively.

14 “Statutes are disfavored as retroactive when their application ‘would impair 15 rights a party possessed when he acted, increase a party’s liability for past conduct, 16 or impose new duties with respect to transactions already completed.’” Fernandez- 17 Vargas v. Gonzales, 548 U.S. 30, 37 (2006) (Landgraf v. USI Film Prod., 511 U.S.
18 244, 280 (1994)). Accordingly, it has become “a rule of general application” that “a 19 statute shall not be given retroactive effect unless such construction is required by 20 explicit language or by necessary implication.” United States v. St. Louis, S.F. & 21 T.R. Co., 270 U.S. 1, 3 (1926).

22 In determining whether a statute has retroactive effect, the Supreme Court has 23 stated:

24 [Courts should] first look to whether Congress has expressly prescribed 25 the statute’s proper reach, and in the absence of language as helpful as 26 that we try to draw a comparably firm conclusion about the temporal 27 reach specifically intended by applying “our normal rules of 28 construction[.] If that effort fails, we ask whether applying the statute to the person objecting would have a retroactive consequence in the disfavored sense of “affecting substantive rights, liabilities, or duties

1 [on the basis of] conduct arising before [its] enactment[.] If the answer 2 is yes, we then apply the presumption against retroactivity by 3 construing the statute as inapplicable to the event or act in question 4 owing to the absen[ce of] a clear indication from Congress that it intended such a result.

5 Fernandez-Vargas, 548 U.S. at 37 (internal quotation marks and citations omitted).

6 Here, it is undisputed that § 4042 is silent with respect to retroactivity. The 7 parties' dispute focuses on the second step of the retroactivity analysis, which is 8 whether retroactive application of § 4042 "to the person objecting would have a 9 retroactive consequence in the disfavored sense of 'affecting substantive rights, 10 liabilities, or duties [on the basis of] conduct arising before [its] enactment[.]'" 11 Fernandez-Vargas, 548 U.S. at 37 (quoting Landgraf, 511 U.S. at 278). Defendants 12 argue their alleged filing of false affidavits occurred prior to the enactment of § 4042, 13 when there was neither a private right of action under § 3931 nor a right to pursue 14 civil damages under California state law. Therefore, Defendants contend allowing 15 Plaintiff to pursue a claim for a violation of § 3931 based on a private right created 16 by § 4042 would have an impermissible retroactive effect by creating additional 17 liability on Defendants.

18 The only court within the Ninth Circuit to address whether § 4042 is 19 retroactive is Williams v. U.S. Bank Nat. Assoc., No. ED CV12-00748-JLQ, 2013
20 WL 571844, at *3 (C.D. Cal. Feb. 13, 2013). In Williams, the court held that § 4042 21 does not apply retroactively with respect to § 3931. Id. The court noted that at the 22 time of alleged violation of § 3931, the plaintiff did not have relief under California 23 law or § 3931. Id. This is because § 3931 did not contain a private right of action 24 prior to the enactment of § 4042, and the "[p]laintiff did not have a right to pursue 25 civil damages under California state law for the filing of the false affidavit because 26 of the absolute litigation privilege[.]" Id. at *4. The court found that "[a]llowing 27 Plaintiff to rely on [§ 4042] would therefore have retroactive effect by increasing a 28 party's liability for past conduct." Id. Thus, the court held "Congress has not clearly

1 allowed for such retroactive application[,]” and denied the plaintiff’s claim for relief 2 under § 3931. Id.

3 Likewise, in Davis, a District Court for the District of Connecticut concluded 4 that § 4042 does not apply retroactively to permit a plaintiff to sue for violation of 5 § 3931. Davis, 2016 WL 2963418, at *6–7. The court reasoned, “Were the Court 6 to apply § 4042 retroactively, ... it would make actionable conduct that was 7 protected by the absolute immunity doctrine and not actionable at the time that it 8 occurred, enabling [the plaintiff] to seek monetary damages in relation to a section 9 of a statute that is wholly concerned with affidavit requirements and judicial stays, 10 thus imposing on Defendants ‘a new disability in respect to past conduct.’” Id. at *7 11 (quoting Landgraf, 511 U.S. at 283). The Court finds the reasoning of these courts 12 persuasive and similarly concludes § 4042 does not apply retroactively to allow 13 Plaintiff to bring a claim under § 3931. Accordingly, Defendants’ motion to dismiss 14 the SCRA claim is granted.

15 F. Negligence and Negligence Per Se Claim

16 Defendants contend the claims for negligence and negligence per se should 17 be dismissed because they are barred by the litigation privilege under California 18 Civil Code § 47(b). Specifically, Defendants argue all of the allegations giving rise 19 to these claims occurred in the context of litigation, and therefore, fall within the 20 scope of the privilege. Plaintiff contends his claims are not barred by the litigation 21 privilege because Defendants’ threat to contact his commanding officer in order to 22 collect the alleged debt and execution of two levies did not occur during the course 23 of litigation.⁶

24 The California litigation privilege applies to any publication or broadcast 25 made in any judicial proceeding. Cal. Civ. Code § 47(b). It applies to “any 26 communication (1) made in judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings; (2) by litigants or 27

28 ⁶ Plaintiff appears to concede the remaining allegations giving rise to negligence and negligence per se claims fall within the scope of the litigation privilege.

1 other participants authorized by law; (3) to achieve the objects of the litigation; and 2 (4) that have some connection or logical relation to the action.” Olszewski v.
3 Scripps Health, 30 Cal. 4th 798, 830 (Cal. 2003) (quoting Silberg v. Anderson, 50 4 Cal. 3d 205, 212 (Cal. 1990)). The purpose of the litigation privilege is to afford 5 “litigants and witnesses the utmost freedom of access to the courts without fear of 6 being harassed subsequently by derivative tort actions.” Silberg, 50 Cal. 3d at 213 7 (citations omitted). The privilege “promotes the effectiveness of judicial 8 proceedings by encouraging attorneys to zealously protect their clients’ interests.
9 ‘[I]t is desirable to create an absolute privilege ... not because we desire to protect 10 the shady practitioner, but because we do not want the honest one to have to be 11 concerned with [subsequent derivative] actions.’” Id. at 214 (quoting Thornton v.
12 Rhoden, 245 Cal. App. 2d 80, 99 (Cal. Ct. App. 1966)). Thus, it “places upon 13 litigants the burden of exposing during trial the bias of witnesses and the falsity of 14 evidence, thereby enhancing the finality of judgments and avoiding an unending 15 roundelay of litigation, an evil far worse than an occasional unfair result.” Id.
16 (citations omitted).

17 To accomplish these objectives, the privilege is “an absolute privilege, and it 18 bars all tort causes of action except a claim of malicious prosecution.” Flatley v.
19 Mauro, 39 Cal. 4th 299, 322 (Cal. 2006) (internal quotation marks and citation 20 omitted). The California Supreme Court has repeatedly held that “the policy of 21 encouraging free access to the courts was so important as to require application of 22 the privilege to torts [beyond] defamation,” including “negligence.” Silberg, 50 Cal.
23 3d at 215 (citations omitted). “Any doubt about whether the privilege applies is 24 resolved in favor of applying it.” Kashian v. Harriman, 98 Cal. App. 4th 892, 913 25 (Cal. Ct. App. 2002) (citing Adams v. Superior Court, 2 Cal. App. 4th 521, 529 (Cal.
26 Ct. App. 1992)).

27 Plaintiff’s negligence and negligence per se claims are based on allegations 28 that Defendants (1) “threatened to call Alvarado’s command, and stated that the

1 Navy would make Alvarado pay and he would suffer consequences from the 2 navy[,]” and (2) placed two levies on Plaintiff’s bank account to collect on the 3 allegedly improper state court judgment. (SAC ¶¶ 85, 87, 90, 140.) As currently 4 pleaded, it appears Plaintiff’s negligence and negligence per se claims are based on 5 Defendants’ actions that occurred in connection with the state court collection 6 proceedings. Both the alleged threat and execution of levies occurred after 7 Defendants obtained a default judgment against Plaintiff in the state action. See Huy 8 Thanh Vo v. Nelson & Kennard, 931 F. Supp. 2d 1080, 1096 (E.D. Cal. 2013) (the 9 litigation privilege even “extends to post-judgment collection activity—even 10 attempts to enforce invalid judgments.”); Asia Inv. Co. v. Borowski, 133 Cal. App.
11 3d 832, 842 (Cal. Ct. App. 1982) (“The privilege attaches even though the 12 publication was made outside a courtroom, as many portions of a ‘judicial 13 proceeding’ occur outside of open court.”). Defendants’ actions clearly sought to 14 achieve the objects of the state court action. Therefore, Defendants’ alleged 15 wrongful debt collection practices fall within the scope of the privilege. See 16 Sepehry-Fard v. Dep’t Stores Nat’l Bank, No. 13-CV-03131-WHO, 2013 WL 17 6574774, at *10 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 13, 2013) (dismissing negligence claim because 18 “any actions taken by the Attorney Defendants in conjunction with the state court 19 collection proceedings (for example ... notice of levy following state court 20 judgment) are protected by the litigation privilege.”). Accordingly, the Court grants 21 Defendants’ motion to dismiss the negligence and negligence per se claims.

22 III.

23 MOTION TO STRIKE

24 A. Legal Standard

25 California’s anti-SLAPP statute is intended to provide a procedural remedy to 26 dispose of lawsuits that are brought to chill or punish an individual’s exercise of his 27 or her constitutional rights. See Rusheen v. Cohen, 37 Cal. 4th 1048, 1055–56 (Cal.
28 2006); Cal. Code Civ. P. § 425.16. The statute provides “[a] cause of action against

1 a person arising from any act of that person in furtherance of the person’s right of 2 petition or free speech under the United States Constitution or the California 3 Constitution in connection with a public issue shall be subject to a special motion to 4 strike, unless the court determines that the plaintiff has established that there is a 5 probability that the plaintiff will prevail on the claim.” Cal. Code Civ. P.
6 § 425.16(b)(1). An “act in furtherance of a person’s right of petition or free speech” 7 includes: “(1) any written or oral statement or writing made before a ... judicial 8 proceeding ...; (2) any written or oral statement or writing made in connection with 9 an issue under consideration or review by a ... judicial body ...; (3) any written or 10 oral statement or writing made in a place open to the public or a public forum in 11 connection with an issue of public interest; or (4) any other conduct in furtherance 12 of the exercise of the constitutional right of petition or the constitutional right of free 13 speech in connection with a public issue or an issue of public interest.” Id. at 14 § 425.16(e).

15 “A court considering a motion to strike under the anti-SLAPP statute must 16 engage in a two-part inquiry.” Vess v. Ciba–Geigy Corp. USA, 317 F.3d 1097, 1110 17 (9th Cir. 2003). First, “the defendant is required to make a prima facie showing that 18 the plaintiff’s suit arises from an act by the defendant made in connection with a 19 public issue in furtherance of the defendant’s right to free speech under the United 20 States or California Constitution.” Batzel v. Smith, 333 F.3d 1018, 1024 (9th Cir.
21 2003). Second, “[t]he burden then shifts to the plaintiff to establish a reasonable 22 probability that the plaintiff will prevail on his or her ... claim.” Id. If the defendant 23 prevails on a special motion to strike, she or he is “entitled to recover his or her 24 attorney’s fees and costs.” Cal. Code Civ. P. § 425.16(c)(1).

1 B. RFDCPA Claim⁷

2 Defendants move to strike the RFDCPA claim pursuant to the anti-SLAPP 3 statute. Defendants’ motion to strike is brought on grounds that: (1) the alleged 4 RFDCPA violation arises out of Defendants’ actions made in furtherance of its 5 constitutional right to petition, and (2) Plaintiff cannot prevail because ZLG is not a 6 “debt collector” under the RFDCPA. Plaintiff responds Defendants’ actions giving 7 rise to the RFDCPA claim are not protected activities under the anti-SLAPP statute, 8 and in any event, Plaintiff has demonstrated a probability of prevailing on the merits.

9 The first step in the anti-SLAPP analysis is to determine whether Defendants 10 have made the required threshold showing that the violation of the RFDCPA arises 11 from conduct “in furtherance of [their] right[s] of petition or free speech under the 12 United States Constitution or the California Constitution in connection with a public 13 issue[.]” Cal. Code Civ. P. § 425.16(b)(1). “A defendant meets this burden by 14 demonstrating that the [defendant’s] act underlying the plaintiff’s cause fits one of 15 the categories spelled out in section 425.16, subdivision (e).” Navellier v. Sletten, 16 29 Cal. 4th 82, 88 (Cal. 2002) (citation omitted). The Court finds that Defendants 17 have established the RFDCPA claim arises from their actions made in furtherance 18 of its right to petition.

19 Defendants are alleged to have violated the RFDCPA because they (1) 20 mislead the state court as to the amount of the alleged debt in the complaint, (2) 21 made a false statement to the state court that Plaintiff had been served through 22 substituted service, and (3) made a false statement to the state court that Plaintiff 23 was not in military service. (SAC ¶¶ 55–63, 65–69, 77–83.) Defendants’ alleged 24 conduct constitutes “communicative acts performed by attorneys as part of their 25 representation of a client in a judicial proceeding or other petitioning context [that]

26
27 ⁷ Because Defendant’s motion to dismiss the negligence and negligence per se 28 claims is granted, the Court declines to address Defendant’s motion to strike these claims pursuant to the anti-SLAPP statute.

1 are per se protected as petitioning activity by the anti-SLAPP statute.” Cabral v.
2 Martins, 177 Cal. App. 4th 471, 479–80 (Cal. Ct. App. 2009); see Rohde v. Wolf, 3 154 Cal. App. 4th 28, 35 (Cal. Ct. App. 2007) (“statements, writings and pleadings 4 in connection with civil litigation are covered by the anti-SLAPP statute, and that 5 statute does not require any showing that the litigated matter concerns a matter of 6 public interest.”) (citing People v. Birks, 19 Cal. 4th 108, 115 (Cal. 1998)).
7 Therefore, they constitute protected activities under the anti-SLAPP statute. See, 8 e.g., Washington v. Richards, 2011 WL 3564432, *2-3 (S.D. Cal. Aug. 11, 2011)
9 (granting anti-SLAPP motion to strike RFDCPA claim arising out of the filing of a 10 debt collection action); Scott v. Kelkris Assocs., Inc., No. 2:10-1654 WBS DAD, 11 2010 WL 4393274, at *2 (E.D. Cal. Oct. 29, 2010) (concluding that improper service 12 in the underlying debt collection suit that gave rise to the RFDCPA claim was 13 protected activity under the anti-SLAPP statute).

14 Because Defendants have satisfied their initial burden of showing the 15 RFDCPA claim arises from their conduct in connection with their free speech rights, 16 the burden shifts to Plaintiff to demonstrate “a probability of prevailing on [his] 17 claim.” Navellier, 29 Cal. 4th at 88. “[P]laintiff must demonstrate that the complaint 18 is both legally sufficient and supported by a sufficient prima facie showing of facts 19 to sustain a favorable judgment if the evidence submitted by the plaintiff is credited.” 20 Id. at 88–89 (citations omitted). In making its determination, the “court must accept 21 as true all evidence favorable to the plaintiff and assess defendant’s evidence only 22 to determine if it bars plaintiff’s submissions as a matter of law.” Browne v. McCain, 23 611 F. Supp. 2d 1062, 1068 (C.D. Cal. 2009) (citing Overstock.com, Inc. v. Gradient 24 Analytics, Inc., 151 Cal. App. 4th 688, 699–700 (Cal. Ct. App. 2007)). “[A] cause 25 of action may only be stricken under the anti-SLAPP statute if it arises from 26 protected speech or petitioning activity and lacks even minimal merit.” Mann v.
27 Quality Old Time Service, Inc., 120 Cal. App. 4th 90, 106 (Cal. Ct. App. 2004)
28 (citing Navellier, 29 Cal. 4th at 89).

1 “[A] defendant may defeat a cause of action by showing the plaintiff cannot 2 establish an element of its cause of action or by showing there is a complete defense 3 to the cause of action, and there is nothing in the language of section 425.16 or the 4 case law construing it that suggests one of these avenues is closed to defendants 5 seeking protection from a SLAPP suit.” Peregrine Funding, Inc. v. Sheppard Mullin 6 Richter & Hampton LLP, 133 Cal. App. 4th 658, 676 (Cal. Ct. App. 2005).
7 Defendants contend Plaintiff cannot demonstrate the requisite probability of 8 prevailing on his RFDCPA claim against ZLG because a law firm is excluded from 9 the definition of “debt collectors” under California Civil Code § 1788.2(c).⁸
10 However, as previously discussed, a law firm may be a “debt collector” for purposes 11 of establishing liability under the RFDCPA.

12 The RFDCPA provides, “No debt collector shall collect or attempt to collect 13 a consumer debt by means of judicial proceedings when the debt collector knows 14 that service of process, where essential to jurisdiction over the debtor or his property, 15 has not been legally effected.” Cal. Civ. Code § 1788.15(a). Plaintiff alleges 16 Defendants attempted to collect the debt when Plaintiff had not been properly 17 served. Specifically, Plaintiff alleges he was never served because he was on active 18 duty in Japan and Defendants attempted service at an “old address, which the process 19 server was notified of at the time of his attempted service.” (SAC ¶ 67.)
20 Nevertheless, Defendants filed a proof of service, stating that Plaintiff had been 21 properly served through substituted service. Accepting as true all evidence favorable 22 to Plaintiff, Plaintiff has demonstrated a reasonable probability of prevailing as 23 required by the second step of the anti-SLAPP analysis. Accordingly, Defendants’ 24 motion to strike the RFDCPA claim is denied, and therefore, Defendants are not 25 entitled to recover attorneys’ fees and costs incurred in bringing the anti-SLAPP

26 _____
27 ⁸ Although Defendants move to strike the RFDCPA claim against all defendants, 28 Defendants do not address whether Plaintiff has demonstrated a probability of prevailing on the claim against Zee or Barrientos.

1 motion.

3 CONCLUSION

4 For the foregoing reasons, Defendants’ motion to dismiss is granted in part 5 and denied in part, and Defendants’ motion to strike is denied.⁹ Plaintiff is granted
6 leave to file a Third Amended Complaint (“TAC”) that cures the pleading 7 deficiencies identified in this Order. See Eminence Capital, LLC v. Aspeon, Inc., 8 316 F.3d 1048, 1051 (9th Cir. 2003) (“leave shall be freely given when justice so 9 requires[,]” and “[t]his policy is to be applied with extreme liberality.”) (citations 10 and internal quotations omitted). The TAC shall be filed on or before May 10, 2017.
