Dear Mr. Koch :

Pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), I hereby request disclosure of the following documents for inspection and possible copying:

Any and all documents related in whole or in part to the Popular Revolutionary Army or Ejército Popular Revolucionario (EPR), a leftist guerrilla movement that operates in the Mexican states of Guerrero and Oaxaca. The EPR surfaced on June 29th, 1996 in an act commemorating the first anniversary of the Aguas Blancas massacre (in which 17 peasants were killed). The EPR adheres to a Marxist-Leninist ideology and advocates revolution; it has conducted small-scale attacks, mostly against military and police outposts, public buildings and power stations. The administration of President Ernesto Zedillo categorized it as a terrorist group. The group founded a militarized political party, the Popular Revolutionary Democratic Party, which is not a registered party and thus does not contend in elections.

If you regard any of these documents as potentially exempt from the FOIA's disclosure requirements, I request that you nonetheless exercise your discretion to disclose them. As the FOIA requires, please release all reasonably segregable non exempt portions of documents. Dear Mr. Koch :

Pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), I hereby request disclosure of the following documents for inspection and possible copying:

Any and all documents related in whole or in part to the killing of 17 peasants at the Aguas Blancas ford in the Mexican state of Guerrero on June 28, 1995. The peasants, members of the Peasant Organization Sierra del Sur (OCSS), were on their way to attend a demonstration demanding the release of their leader Gilberto Romero Vásquez who had been forcibly disappeared. The peasants had boarded 2 trucks that were stopped by members of the motorized police of the state of Guerrero, at Aguas Blancas. There all passengers were ordered to leave the vehicles. Afterwards the police opened fire. This event sparked several confrontations in the following months between the indigenous communities in the area and state officials. More than three dozen people (political activists, peasants, and police officers) were killed in the aftermath of the Aguas Blancas massacre.

Re: Request under the FOIA, in reply refer to Archive# 20051655CIA223

Dear Mr. Koch :

Pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), I hereby request disclosure of the following documents for inspection and possible copying:

Any and all documents related in whole or in part to accusations that the Mexican ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI) committed electoral fraud in November 1990 municipal elections in the state of Mexico, and responses by both civil society and government in both Mexico and the United States to these charges. After the PRI announced that it had won 116 out of 121 municipalities in an area known to be a center of opposition politics, not only Mexican but U.S. journalists and academics protested to the U.S. government that political reform should be one of the issues addressed in negotiations for the proposed North American Free Trade Agreement. I am interested in the Bush administration's internal discussions in response to the vote and the allegations of fraud.

We do not seek publicly-released material such as congressional hearings, news clippings, public statements or documents, or FBIS reports on this matter.

If you regard any of these documents as potentially exempt from the FOIA's disclosure requirements, I request that you nonetheless exercise your discretion to disclose them. As the FOIA requires, please release all reasonably segregable non exempt portions of documents. To permit me to reach an intelligent and informed decision whether or not to file an administrative appeal of any denied material, please describe any withheld records (or portions thereof) and explain the basis for your exemption claims.

As you know, the National Security Archive qualifies for a waiver of search and review fees as a representative of the news media. This request is made as part of a scholarly and news research project and not for commercial use. Re: Request under the FOIA, in reply refer to Archive# 20051658CIA224

Dear Mr. Koch :

Pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), I hereby request disclosure of the following documents for inspection and possible copying:

Any and all documents related in whole or in part to reforms to Mexico's electoral system made by Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari in August 1990. These reforms, negotiated by the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI) with the opposition Party for National Action (PAN), produced a new Federal Code of Electoral Practices (COFIPE). The COFIPE instituted a new, more efficient Federal Electoral Institute with non-PRI members on its governing board, but also prohibited two parties from fielding the same presidential candidate, thereby preventing opposition electoral alliances, and, in a so-called "governability clause," guaranteed the PRI a 50% majority in Congress as long as the party won 35% of the vote. I am interested in U.S. agency documents discussing this move by Salinas and its implications for Mexico's political future and US-Mexican relations.

We do not seek publicly-released material such as congressional hearings, news clippings, public statements or documents, or FBIS reports on this matter.

If you regard any of these documents as potentially exempt from the FOIA's disclosure requirements, I request that you nonetheless exercise your discretion to disclose them. As the FOIA requires, please release all reasonably segregable non exempt portions of documents. To permit me to reach an intelligent and informed decision whether or not to file an administrative appeal of any denied material, please describe any withheld records (or portions thereof) and explain the basis for your exemption claims.

Dear Mr. Koch :

Pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), I hereby request disclosure of the following documents for inspection and possible copying:

Any and all documents related in whole or in part to the crackdown on the Zapatista National Liberation Army (EZLN) ordered by Mexican president Ernesto Zedillo Ponce de León on 9 February 1995. Declaring that the government possessed new intelligence regarding the identity of the Zapatista leaders and the nature of their plans and logistic capacity, Zedillo broke the ceasefire in the region and launched a military campaign to retake areas of Chiapas then under Zapatista control.

Over the next five days, the Mexican army carried out widespread arrests of civilians and blocked journalists' and human rights workers' access to the war zone. On 14 February 1995, Zedillo called a new ceasefire after bringing much of the Zapatistas' territory back under government control.

If you regard any of these documents as potentially exempt from the FOIA's disclosure requirements, I request that you nonetheless exercise your discretion to disclose them. As the FOIA requires, please release all reasonably segregable non exempt portions of documents.
