INFORMATION PAPER

SUBJECT: SEXUAL ASSAULT AND SEXUAL HARASSMENT ALLEGATIONS AT MARINE BARRACKS
WASHINGTON

Background: The Senate Armed Services Committee Minority Counsel has requested a summary information paper of allegations and dispositions of sexual assault and sexual harassment at Marine Barracks Washington. The Marine Barracks Washington Legal Advisor conducted a search through systems of records for relevant files dating back two years. The following summarizes the findings from the search but is edited to comply with The Privacy Act of 1947, Title 5 U.S.C. § 552(a):.....

1. Sexual Assault Allegations

- a. 19 August 2009: A female Marine alleged that a male Marine sexually assaulted her in her barracks room on 18 August 2009. The Command immediately notified the Naval Criminal Investigative Service (NCIS) and NCIS immediately conducted an investigation. On 14 May 2010, the alleged victim wrote a letter informing the Command that she did not wish to participate in any prosecution of the accused and requested that the government not pursue charges. As a result, the Command was unable to proceed with the matter.
- b. 16 April 2010: A civilian female alleged that a male Marine raped her on 27 March 2010. The Command immediately reported the incident to NCIS. NCIS immediately opened an investigation and interviewed all relevant witnesses. The alleged victim decided that she no longer wished to participate in the investigation. Without her participation, the Command was unable to proceed with the matter.
- c. 11 July 2010: A female civilian alleged that a male Marine sexually assaulted her at her residence on 10 July 2010. The Command immediately notified NCIS. NCIS immediately conducted an investigation. Based on the results of the investigation and the lack of evidence of sexual assault, the Command was unable to proceed with the matter.
- d. (1) 20 September 2010: A female Marine alleged that a male Marine sexually assaulted her in December 2009. The Command immediately contacted NCIS upon receiving the allegation. NCIS immediately initiated an investigation. Based on the results of the investigation and the lack of evidence of sexual assault, the Command was unable to proceed with the matter.

(2) 20 September 2010: The same female Marine alleged that a male Marine raped her at her residence in August 2010. The Command immediately contacted NCIS upon receiving the allegation. NCIS immediately initiated an investigation. Upon receiving the NCIS investigation, the Command initiated an Article 32 investigation (military equivalent of a grand jury). The Article 32 Investigating Officer (IO) found reasonable grounds to believe that the accused committed certain offenses for which he recommended referral of charges to a general court-martial; with regard to the rape allegation, however, the IO recommended that, based on the evidence presented, the Command not pursue further action. Despite the IO's recommendation, the Command forwarded the rape charges to the Commanding General, Marine Combat Development Command for referral to general court-martial. At trial, the accused pleaded guilty to having had an adulterous relationship with the female Marine. A military judge found the accused guilty of indecent language but not guilty of rape.

2. Sexual Harassment Allegations

- a. December 2009: A female Marine alleged to her civilian supervisor that a male Marine had made her feel uncomfortable. She also informed the civilian supervisor that she did not want to inform the Command. The civilian supervisor asked another male Marine to informally counsel the accused male Marine.
- b. 22 June 2010: A Marine reported through the chain of command a rumor that a male Marine had made a sexually harassing remark to a female Marine. The Command initiated an investigation into the alleged sexual harassment. The IO found that, although the comment was inappropriate under the circumstances, it did not constitute sexual harassment as defined by the Department of the Navy Policy on Sexual Harassment. The Command took administrative action against the accused Marine.
- c. 27 June 2010: A female civilian alleged that a male civilian sexually harassed her with an inappropriate comment. The Command initiated an investigation upon receiving the claim. The IO found that, although the male employee's comment was inappropriate, it did not rise to the level of sexual harassment defined by the Department of the Navy Policy on Sexual Harassment. As a result, the male employee received a letter of caution.
- d. 20 September 2010: A female Marine alleged that a male Marine sexually harassed her in April 2010. The Command immediately appointed an IO from outside her unit to conduct the investigation. At the conclusion of the investigation, the IO found that the accusations against the male Marine were unsubstantiated. Upon review of the IO's report, the Command found the investigation to be insufficient and ordered another investigation by another IO. The Command found that the second investigation was sufficient. That investigation found that the sexual harassment allegations were unsubstantiated.
