SUPPLEMENTAL DECLARATION OF THOMAS B. O'BRIEN, JR.

Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1746, I, Thomas B. O'Brien, Jr., declare the following statements to be true under the penalties of perjury:

1. I am over the age of 18 years and am fully competent to testify to the matters stated in this Declaration.
2. This declaration is based on my personal knowledge. If called to do so, I would and could testify to the matters stated herein.
3. I am Vice President and General Counsel at ASTM International ("ASTM"). I have worked at ASTM since 2003.
4. Prior to joining ASTM in 2003, I worked as outside counsel for ASTM between 1997 and 2003.

5. Attached as Exhibit 1 hereto is a true and correct copy of ASTM's online new membership form, which has been in place since 2005.

6. As shown in Exhibit 1, since 2005, new members to ASTM who completed their membership application online had to affirmatively click on a check box next to the following statement: "I agree, by my participation in ASTM and enjoyments of the benefits of my annual membership, to have transferred and assigned any and all interest I possess or may possess, including copyright, in the development or creation of ASTM standards or ASTM IP to ASTM."

7. Attached as Exhibit 2 hereto is a true and correct copy of ASTM's online membership renewal form, which has been in place since 2005.

8. Attached as Exhibit 3 hereto is a true and correct copy of instructions for registering a work item through ASTM's online system, which provides screen shots of each of the different screens a member will see when registering a work item.

9. ASTM has had a version of its "Form and Style for ASTM Standards" ("ASTM Form and Style Guide") since at least as early as 1957.

10. Attached as Exhibit 4 hereto is a true and correct copy of the version of the ASTM Form and Style Guide titled "Recommendations on Form of ASTM Standards," which was published in 1961 and references issuance in 1957.

11. Each version of the ASTM Form and Style Guide described certain components and provided the text for certain language that was required to be included in every ASTM standard during the relevant time period.

12. As part of the process of developing a draft standard, ASTM staff members added language and components that were required by the relevant ASTM Form and Style Guide to the draft prepared by the task group.

13. I have given training to ASTM employees and committee officers on use of the ASTM Form and Style Guide in connection with standards, in conjunction with Regulations Governing ASTM Technical Committees.

14. I have attended ASTM committee meetings in which the requirement to use certain language and information from the ASTM Form and Style Guide was discussed.

15. I supervise the ASTM employees who respond to requests to grant permissions to use ASTM's copyrighted materials, and I have personal knowledge of the circumstances and frequency with which these requests are granted and denied.

16. ASTM denies requests for permission to use its standards at no cost when the requester seeks to post the standard on a public website with no reasonable time limit and/or with no limitation on the number of people who can access it

17. I am not aware of any visually-impaired person who has informed ASTM that he/she was having difficulty accessing an ASTM standard due to a print disability. If a visually-impaired person requested access to an ASTM standard that was necessary due to a print disability, I would instruct the staff member who received the request to provide a copy of the ASTM standard in a format that accommodated the person's disability at no additional cost to the requester.

18. ASTM's practice was to obtain a copyright registration for every annual Book of Standards from 1980-2011. I am not aware of any circumstance in which ASTM deviated from this practice.

19. ASTM maintains records related to each ASTM standard that is proposed. Those records include information about the standard number, the committee that has jurisdiction over the standard, ballot items related to the standard, and the name of the technical contact for the standard. These records are kept in the ordinary course of ASTM's regularly conducted activity at or near the time at which any activities related to the standard took place by a person with knowledge of the activities related to the standard. I am familiar with these computer-stored records because I use these records to prove legal advice to ASTM. I recognize the documents referenced in paragraphs 20-23 below to be printouts from these computer-stored records and the printouts accurately reflect the computer-stored records.

20. Attached as Exhibit 5 is a true and correct printout from the computer-stored records described in paragraph 19 above with information regarding ASTM D86-07.

21. Attached as Exhibit 6 is a true and correct printout from the computer-stored records described in paragraph 19 above with information regarding ASTM D975-07.

22. Attached as Exhibit 7 is a true and correct printout from the computer-stored records described in paragraph 19 above with information regarding ASTM D396-98.

23. Attached as Exhibit 8 is a true and correct printout from the computer-stored records described in paragraph 19 above with information regarding ASTM D1217-98.

24. ASTM maintains records related to members who complete new membership and membership renewal forms each year. Those records include information such as the name of the member, the date on which the member completed the membership form, and for some of the members, whether the member completed the membership through ASTM's online system, a paper form, or another method. These records are kept in the ordinary course of ASTM's regularly conducted activity at or near the time at which the membership forms were completed by a person with knowledge of the completion of the membership forms. I am familiar with these computer-stored records because I use these records to prove legal advice to ASTM. I recognize the documents referenced in paragraphs 25-26 below to be printouts from these computer-stored records and the printouts accurately reflect the computer-stored records.

25. Attached as Exhibit 9 is a true and correct printout from the computer-stored records described in paragraph 24 above showing ASTM individual membership forms that were completed in 2007.

26. Attached as Exhibit 10 is a true and correct printout from the computer-stored records described in paragraph 24 above showing ASTM organizational membership forms that were completed in 2007.

AMERICAN SOCIETY FOR TESTING MATERIALS
1916 Race St., Philadelphia 3, Pa.

~~ISSUED~~ RECOMMENDATIONS ON FORM OF ASTM SPECIFICATIONS

APRIL, 1957

PHILOSOPHY OF SPECIFICATIONS

A specification may be defined as a concise description, preferably in measurable terms, of the significant characteristics of a material. The determination of such needs in terms of characteristics that can be set up easily in a specification requires logical thought based on sound chemical and engineering principles.

Requirements should be set forth in a clear, detailed but concise manner and should be quantitative rather than qualitative to reduce to a minimum decisions based on personal opinion.

There are five important requisites of a specification:

1. Accuracy and precision
2. Workability
3. Suitability
4. Flexibility
5. Acceptability

A specification should never be considered as final or complete. Frequently an outmoded specification will prove a greater deterrent to progress than no specification at all. Any specification should be examined periodically, in view of technological advances in manufacture, testing, and use requirements.

Subject Headings of Text

The following list shows in sequence the subjects usually covered in a specification; all subjects may not be required for all materials, and in some instances there may be need for inclusion of sections on other subjects:

Title
Scope
Definitions or Descriptions of Terms
Optional Requirements (Basis of Purchase)
Materials and Manufacture
Chemical Requirements
Physical Requirements
Dimensions, Weights, and Permissible Variations
Workmanship and Finish
Sampling
Methods of Test
Number of Tests and Retests

Packing, Marking, Shipping, and Preservation
Inspection
Certification
Rejection and Rehearing
Supplementary Requirements
Explanatory Notes
Appendixes

Subject headings in boldface type should precede each section to orient the reader. Sections should be numbered consecutively with Arabic numbers. Subdivisions of a section, designated "Paragraphs," should have italic letters running consecutively throughout a section only. Subdivisions of a paragraph should be numbered with italic numbers in parentheses, the numbers running consecutively through each paragraph only.

Title

The title should be as concise as possible but complete enough to identify clearly the materials covered by the specification. Titles are used frequently in Lists, Tables of Contents, Indexes, etc., and it is accordingly most important that they be brief but inclusive.

NOTE 1.—The plural form "specifications" has been used for many years; however, the singular form "specification" is now preferred on the basis that the series of requirements constitute a single document.

Scope

1. The materials covered by the specification, the general uses or fields of application for which they are intended, and limitations of the specification should be stated. When the specification covers several types, classes, and grades, they should be described briefly in a separate paragraph under the section on Scope.

It is appropriate also in the scope section to state what materials are excluded or not intended to be covered by the specification. Attention should be called to any other special features of the specification.

In the general or "umbrella type" specification it is customary to point out that when there is conflict with a detailed purchase specification, the latter shall take precedence.

Definitions or Descriptions of Terms

2. Definitions or descriptions of terms used should be included, when necessary for proper interpretation of the specification. Unnecessary repetition should be avoided by making reference to existing standards covering applicable definitions.

Optional Requirements (Basis of Purchase)

3. When the specification covers optional requirements, such as various types, grades, alloys, sizes, and weights, etc., it is desirable that the purchase order or inquiry state which particular types, alloys, sizes, etc., are desired. Usually this is done in a separate section on Basis of Purchase.

A listing of each such optional feature, together with a reference to the applicable paragraph in the specification will be of assistance in the wording of orders. After the attention of the purchaser is directed to all of the options in the specification, his attention might be directed to what would be furnished by the supplier if the purchaser fails to specify one or more of the options.

Materials and Manufacture

4. General requirements regarding the materials and methods of manufacture to be used are frequently included, particularly when these may include reference to any particular processes of manufacture, such as the open-hearth, electric-furnace, or acid-bessemer processes generally specified for steel products. When the material or product specified is made from two or more materials, this section should state briefly the general requirements of the materials to be used and the process to be followed in manufacture, including items such as the nature and character of any alloys, fillers, saturants, anti-oxidants, coatings, and plasticizers.

Chemical Requirements

5. When necessary, detailed requirements should be given as to chemical composition and other chemical characteristics to which the material must conform. Frequently these are presented in a tabular form. It is most important that the following information be clearly indicated: (a) name of each constituent specified, (b) maximum, minimum, or range, (c) the units applicable, and (d) reference to explanatory notes when necessary for further clarification.

The sequence of items specified should be consistent within a related group of specifications.

The preferred introduction for this section is: "The material shall conform to the requirements as to chemical composition specified in Table I."

Physical Requirements

6. The requirements for mechanical, electrical, thermal, optical, and similar properties are presented in this section, usually in tabular form. The table should be introduced as follows: "The material shall conform to the (insert name of property group) properties prescribed in Table II." The table must clearly indicate the name of each property specified, whether maximum, minimum, or range and state the units for each. The sequence of items specified should be consistent when in a related group of specifications.

NOTE 2.—In preparing a specification it is of course essential to make sure that there is a test procedure for determining conformance in each instance.

When it is not feasible to tabulate the requirements, separate paragraphs may be used to specify the various requirements. These should be given appropriate headings consistent with the subject matter included.

Dimensions, Weights, and Permissible Variations

7. Details as to the standard shapes, weights, and size ranges usually are presented best in tabular form with brief reference in the text. Separate sections may be necessary with individual tables. The tables should clearly indicate where the various size ranges are divided, for example, ranges of 0 to 10 in., 10 to 20 in., 20 to 30 in. should be more properly stated as 10 in. and under, over 10 to 20 in., inclusive, over 20 to 30 in., inclusive, etc.

The permissible variations in dimensions, weights, etc., frequently can be included in the same tables with the nominal sizes. It should be made clear whether the tolerances specified are both plus and minus or only apply in one direction.

Workmanship and Finish

8. Requirements covering the workmanship and finish include such general requirements as the type of finish and general appearance, or color, whether of uniform quality and temper (for metals), clean, sound, free from scale and injurious defects. To avoid misunderstanding, these should be spelled out clearly. Provisions for removal or repair of minor surface imperfections which are not considered cause for rejection should be stated.

For pipe and tile it is usually customary to specify absence of defects such as fractures, large or deep cracks, checks, blisters, laminations and surface roughness. The finish and shape of the ends also should be specified.

Sampling

9. The Section on Sampling may describe in detail the procedure for obtaining the sample for testing, also the size of the sample, or preferably, when there are detailed sampling procedures in separate ASTM Methods, reference should be made to such methods. If any special type of container is necessary to protect the sample during transit to the laboratory, this should be specified. Other details such as the preparation of the sample for testing, the size of test specimens, and any preparation necessary are usually included only in the methods of testing.

NOTE 3.—Attention is called to the Tentative Recommended Practices for Probability Sampling (ASTM Designation: E 105)<sup>1</sup> and for Choice of Sample Size to Estimate the Average Quality of a Lot or Process (ASTM Designation: E 122)<sup>1</sup> prepared by ASTM Committee E-11 on Quality Control of Materials. One of the main functions of this committee is to serve in an advisory capacity and to assist other technical committees of the Society in this area.

Other publications of interest are:

Specification for Hard-Drawn Copper Wire (ASTM Designation: B 1)<sup>2</sup> which contains sampling provisions based on statistical quality control.

Method of Sampling Preformed Thermal Insulation (ASTM Designation: C 390).<sup>3</sup> Symposium on Usefulness and Limitations of Samples (Dec., 1948).<sup>3</sup>

Symposium on Bulk Sampling (Jan., 1952), STP 114.<sup>3</sup>

Symposium on Application of Statistics (July, 1950), STP 103.<sup>3</sup>

Symposium on Statistical Quality Control, STP 66.<sup>3</sup>

Methods of Test

10. Reference should be made to the ASTM Methods to be used in testing the material to determine compliance with the specification. This includes sampling, chemical analysis, mechanical, electrical, thermal, optical, and other testing procedures. When alternate procedures are given in the test methods, it is important to state which particular procedure shall be used as the basis for the specification requirement.

When there is no ASTM Method specified for a particular property, the test procedure to be followed should be described in detail in the specification, including definition and significance information. Test procedures should be described in the imperative.

Where a method of some other organization is being used and the committee has not approved the test as an ASTM Method then it is desirable to describe the test in detail in the specification and to include a footnote reference to the original source. References to test methods of other organizations by title only are not desirable and should be eliminated as just described. Such method should be subsequently reviewed and established as an ASTM Method, being published separately from the specification, if necessary.

Number of Tests and Retests

11. The number of tests that are required to determine conformance of the material to the specification should be stated. This usually includes the number of test specimens required to be selected and tested. Provisions for retest should be included, such as when a specimen shows defective marking, reveals casting defects, or other imperfections.

Packing, Marking, Shipping, and Preservation

12. Where it is customary to package, box, crate, wrap, or otherwise protect the material or product for shipment, the general requirements for such action shall be stated. If it is necessary to protect the material from damage in ordinary handling or from moisture or heat, etc., the general nature of the wrapping or packing should be stated. If the material is to be shipped in packages of definite sizes these should be specified. It is customary to state the nature of the information to be marked or included on the package or on a label or tag attached thereto. This usually includes such details as the name and brand or trade mark of the manufacturer, type of material, size, date of manufacture, and ASTM designation of the specification to which the material conforms. It is sometimes necessary to state the location of the marking on the article, such as of pipe, tubes, sheet, plate and shapes.

Requirements regarding the shipping of the material should be specified when necessary. If it is customary to keep the material in storage prior to shipment, any requirements regarding the conditions for such storage, such as protection from moisture, or other environmental conditions should be stated.

Inspection

13. The general provisions for inspection of the material, including the facilities to be afforded the inspector by the manufacturer, and who pays the costs of inspection should be stated. Whether the tests and inspection are to be made at the place of manufacture prior to shipment or at the point of delivery should be specified.

Certification

14. For a product manufactured in advance and accepted on the basis of certification by the manufacturer that the material conforms to the specification, it should be definitely stated what conditions apply to such acceptance. It is usually customary to require records of test results to be systematically made and maintained by the manufacturer as the basis for certification. In lieu of the manufacturer's certification and upon written request by the purchaser these records are usually required for examination by the purchaser or his accredited representative upon the manufacturer's premises. Certification usually consists of a copy of the manufacturer's test report, or when agreed upon by the purchaser, consists of a statement by the supplier that the material has been sampled, tested, and inspected in accordance with the provisions of the specification.

Rejection and Rehearing

15. Provisions under which the material will be rejected should be stated definitely. If there is any time limit within which the purchaser must notify the manufacturer this should be stated, also the length of time which the tested samples must be preserved from the date of the test report. Provisions for rehearings or retests should also be stated and also whether the material may be reexamined or treated and resubmitted for test.

SUPPLEMENTARY REQUIREMENTS

For some materials supplementary requirements may be specified. Usually these apply only when specified by the purchaser in the inquiry, contract, or order. These supplementary requirements should appear in separate sections numbered S 1, S 2, S 3, etc.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

Statements or information of an explanatory nature should be set apart from the text of the specification in the form of Explanatory Notes. These text notes should preferably appear at the end of the section or paragraph to which they apply. Reference to such notes is desirable in the text, such as "(Note 3)" immediately following a specific word or phrase to which the note refers. Notes which apply to several sections of a specification may be grouped together at the end under the heading "Explanatory Notes." Notes should be numbered consecutively throughout a specification.

APPENDIXES

There are times when it is desirable to include in a specification additional information for general use and guidance, but which does not constitute a mandatory part of the specification. It is appropriate to include such informational material in Appendixes. Examples of material that have been included in such appendixes cover tables showing approximate relationship between tensile strength and hardness, list of preferred thicknesses of plate, sheet, and strip reproduced from an American Standard, tables of standard weights and standard sizes, information on typical applications of the material covered, and information on typical physical properties whose definite values are not prescribed in the specification.

Footnotes and Literature References<sup>1</sup>

Footnotes are intended only for references and should never carry any information or instructions necessary for the proper application of the specification or method. They should be used for the following:

(1) Statements of committee jurisdiction and method history.

(2) Literature References. Only references to publications supporting or providing needed supplementary information should be included. Historical and acknowledgment references are not desirable.

Consecutive superior figures should be used for reference to footnotes except in connection with numerals and tables, for which lower case letters are employed.

The publication information referred to should be arranged in the sequence needed for locating the report or paper. For example, the author's initials and name, followed by the title of the paper in quotation marks; title of the publication in italics; publisher; volume; number; date, where date is a subdivision of a volume or number; and page number.

When volume numbers are given, the year of publication should appear in parentheses at the end of the footnote. Otherwise, the date of publication should appear immediately after the name of the publication. Names of societies should be abbreviated.

Standard Abbreviations and Editorial Details

An extensive list of official abbreviations, spelling, terms, and expressions which should be used in a specification appears in the Appendix.<sup>1</sup>

RECOMMENDATIONS ON FORM OF ASTM METHODS OF TEST

ISSUED APRIL, 1961

An ASTM method of test is a concise description of an orderly procedure for determining a property or constituent of a material or an assembly of materials. The directions for performing the test should include all of the essential details as to apparatus, test specimen, procedure, and calculations needed to achieve satisfactory precision by either the same operator or operators in different laboratories.

A standard method should represent a consensus as to the best currently available test procedure for the use intended. It should be supported by experience and adequate data obtained from cooperative tests.

ASTM methods are frequently intended for use in the buying and selling of materials according to specifications and therefore should provide such precision that when the test is properly performed by a competent operator the results will be found satisfactory for judging the compliance of the material with the specification. Some methods may be suitable for determining fundamental properties of materials such as density and absolute viscosity, and others for empirical properties such as softening point, flash point, distillation, etc. They may include a variety of different laboratory procedures such as chemical and spectrochemical analysis, mechanical and electrical tests, weathering tests, visual examination, fire tests, performance characteristics, nondestructive tests, radiation exposure tests, etc. In some standards, optional methods are included.

Methods are sometimes prepared for use in research rather than in the buying and selling of materials. Other methods cover process control, screening, and field tests. While these methods may not always be as precise as referee test methods, they are sufficiently precise for the intended use and usually require less time. Field tests have the added virtue of allowing testing at the site, thus eliminating transportation of specimens to and from the laboratory.

Methods should be kept up to date and accordingly need to be examined periodically to determine whether revisions are desirable as the result of technological advances in manufacturing, testing, and use requirements.

The above section headings are those most generally used. Not all of these headings may be required for a particular method. Also, it may be necessary to use other appropriate headings in methods covering a specialized subject. These should appear in the most appropriate place, depending on their relation to the sections listed above. When a standard includes several methods, repetition of appropriate headings may be desirable.

Subject headings in bold-face type should precede each section to orient the reader. Sections should be numbered consecutively with arabic numbers.<sup>1</sup> Subdivisions of a section, designated "Paragraphs," should have italic letters in parentheses running consecutively throughout a section only. Subdivisions of a paragraph should be numbered with italic numbers in parentheses, the numbers running consecutively through each paragraph only. Number figures or illustrations consecutively with arabic numbers, and tables with roman numerals.

Explanatory notes preferably should be under the section or paragraphs to which they apply and shall be numbered consecutively with arabic numbers. References, when few in number, should appear as footnotes under the appropriate section of the text. In special cases, explanatory notes and references may be grouped at the end of the method.

See the Appendix for additional suggestions regarding notes, footnotes, references, illustrations, units of measurements, abbreviations, etc.

For convenience in application and when economy in printing may result, methods may include a series of procedures for determining different properties of a given material. In such methods, at the beginning of the standard include individual sections describing those features that are common to all of the separate test procedures.

Examples of methods for single determination:

Method of Test for Compressibility of Metal Powders (B 331), Method of Test for Softening Point of Glass (C 338), and Method of Test for Flash Point by Tag Closed Tester (D 56).

Examples of methods covering a series of test procedures:

Methods of Sampling and Testing Untreated Paper Used for Electrical Insulation (D 202), Methods of Sampling and Chemical Analysis of Soaps and Soap Products (D 460), Methods of Test for Fluoride Ion in Industrial Water and Industrial Waste Water (D 1179), and
Methods for Chemical Analysis of Magnesium and Magnesium-Base Alloys (E 35).

In deciding whether to describe similar methods as portions of a single standard or as separate methods, the following criterion may be found useful: When the description of the apparatus and procedure are similar and a significant economy in printing can be accomplished by combining, and if, because of clearly understood distinctions in applicability, no confusion can arise as to which method should be used, then it is desirable to treat the methods as separate parts of a single standard. If confusion could arise, the methods should be published separately. If one method is preferred as a referee method it should be so designated, in which case the other methods should be designated as optional or nonreferee. Methods for various determinations on a given material may be grouped in a single standard for convenience in reference and use. When methods are published separately, a worthwhile saving can be accomplished by making cross references from one method to another for the apparatus and detailed description of the procedure.

Title

The title should be concise but complete enough to identify the nature of the test and the material to which it is applicable. Titles are used frequently in lists, tables of contents, indexes, tabulating card systems, etc., and therefore must be brief but inclusive. Select words that easily lend themselves to indexing. The essential features of a title are the particular property or constituent being determined, the material to which the method is applicable, and, when pertinent, the technique or instrumentation. If the method is designed to determine a number of constituents or properties, use a general title, omitting the names of specific constituents or properties. When a standard includes a number of individual methods for different constituents or properties, the title need indicate only the general nature of the tests and the material to which it is applicable.

Examples of some concise titles are as follows:

Methods and Definitions for Mechanical Testing of Steel Products (ASTM Designation: A 370),

Methods for Chemical Analysis of Portland Cement (ASTM Designation: C 114),
Method of Test for Conradson Carbon Residue of Petroleum Products (ASTM Designation: D 189), Methods of Test for Sulfated Residue, Lead, Iron, and Copper in Lubricating Oils (ASTM Designation: D 810), and Methods for Inspection, Test, and Standardization of Hydrometers (ASTM Designation: E 126).

Introduction

A separate section covering general introductory or informational material is not generally used in ASTM methods. Occasionally, there is a method of such a nature that it requires an explanatory statement for proper understanding by the user. In such instances, an introduction may be included immediately after the title of the method but without a section number.

Examples of methods that include Introductions are as follows:

Methods of Testing Small Clear Specimens of Timber (D 143),
Methods of Test for Strength of Adhesives (D 906 and D 905), Methods of Test for International Standard Hardness of Vulcanized Rubber (D 1415), and Method of Test for Twist in Yarns (Direct-Counting Method) (D 1423).

Scope

1. (a) Include here information relating to the purpose, application, etc., of the method. State the range of application of the method as completely as possible; do not sacrifice clearness for sake of brevity. Avoid repetition of information included in the section on Significance (Section 3). If the method covers several tests, each with its own scope, include a statement regarding the scope of each such test in this general section on scope. Use appropriate subtitles for each test covered.

(b) Include in a separate paragraph any appropriate comments on limitations of the test. Indicate any means of recognizing cases where the method may not be applicable to the material under test.

(c) In standards that cover a number of methods, include in a separate paragraph an alphabetic list of the methods, together with the corresponding section numbers.

NOTE 1.—Reference to alternate or companion methods should be included in a note under Scope. The title and designation of the other methods should be a part of such reference.

Summary of Method

2. Include here a brief outline of the method, describing in the passive voice its essential features without the details that are a necessary part of the complete statement of procedure. If desired, a brief statement of the principle of the method may be given; this is particularly desirable in the case of chemical methods and should appear as the first paragraph. In chemical methods state the type of procedure, such as colorimetric, electrometric, volumetric, etc., and describe the source of color, major chemical reaction, etc.

Significance

3. This section should include information on the usefulness of each test procedure described, stating first the most significant features. State any significant limitations of the method. Such statements should be concise without sacrificing important ideas or completeness and should provide the user of the method with an understanding of the following:

(1) The meaning of the test as related to the manufacture and end use of the material,

(2) The suitability of the test for specification acceptance, service evaluation, regulatory statutes, manufacturing control, development, and research, and

(3) The fundamental assumptions inherent in the method that may affect the usefulness of the results.

Examples of methods that include sections on significance are:

Methods of Test for A-C Capacitance, Dielectric Constant, and Loss Characteristics of Electrical Insulating Materials (D 150),
Methods of Testing Laminated Tubes Used for Electrical Insulation (D 348),
Method of Test for Water Absorption of Plastics (D 570), Recommended Practice for Operating of Light- and Water-Exposure Apparatus (Carbon-Arc Type) for Exposure of Plastics (D 1499), and Method of Test for Dilute Solution Viscosity of Ethylene Polymers (D 1601).

Definitions or Descriptions of Terms

4. Make reference to existing ASTM definitions where applicable. Include here only definitions or descriptions of terms that are required for the correct interpretation of the method or in the expression of test results. Do not include terms that are satisfactorily defined in Webster's International or other equivalent dictionary. If the terms are described in dictionary-definition form, use the heading "Definitions." When the information is explanatory in nature and contains general descriptions of the terms used, the section should be headed "Description of Terms" or "Terminology." Descriptions of terms relating to apparatus or reagents should be incorporated in the sections dealing with these subjects.

Examples of ASTM definitions having general application are:

Definitions of Terms Relating to Methods of Mechanical Testing (E 6), Definitions of Terms Relating to Metallography (E 7),
Definitions of Terms Relating to Rheological Properties of Matter (E 24),
Definitions of Terms Relating to Conditioning (E 41),
Definitions of Terms and Symbols Relating to Absorption Spectroscopy (E 131), Definitions of Terms and Symbols Relating to Emission Spectroscopy (E 135), and Definitions of Terms Relating to Textile Materials (D 123).

Examples of ASTM methods incorporating definitions are:

Method of Reporting Results of Analysis of Industrial Water and Industrial Waste Water (D 596), Method of Test for Unevenness of Textile Strands (D 1425), and Method of Test for Neutralization Value (Acid and Base Numbers) by Color-Indicator Titration (D 974).

Examples of ASTM methods incorporating descriptions of terms are:

Method of Test for Tear Resistance of Woven Fabrics by Falling-Pendulum (Elmendorf) Apparatus (D 1424),
Method of Core Sampling of Raw Wool in Packages for Determination of Percentage of Clean Wool Fiber Present (D 1060), Method of Sampling Preformed Thermal Insulation (C 390), and Methods of Testing Structural Insulating Board Made from Vegetable Fibers (C 209).

Interferences

5. If it is necessary for the successful application of the method to include explanatory statements on interference effects, include such information here; otherwise omit this section. List briefly the constituents or properties that are likely to cause interference and the amounts that are known to interfere. In some cases this information can be obtained only by observation during the performance of the test. In such cases appropriate reference should be made under the sections on "Procedure" or "Calculation."

NOTE 2.—Supplementary information on possible interferences not normally encountered, and on means for removing or compensating for them, may be included in a text note in this section when desirable.

Apparatus

6. (a) In this section, include a brief description of the essential features of the apparatus and equipment required for the test, and where they will clarify or supplement the text, schematic drawings or photographs. Cover in separate paragraphs the important features and requirements for the apparatus. Do not list common laboratory apparatus, such as flasks, beakers, etc., but include any especially modified forms or unusual sizes of common apparatus that are required or that may require special preparation, such as a Gooch crucible.

(b) Avoid the use of trade names, unless a specific manufacturer's product is required for a well-defined reason. In such cases an explanatory footnote may be included giving supplementary information regarding such apparatus or material. The footnote should state that this apparatus or material or its equivalent "has been found satisfactory for this purpose." When special types of glassware are required, such as heat-resistant, chemical-resistant, etc., the significant characteristic desired should be stated rather than a trade name. For example, "borosilicate glass" may be used in place of Pyrex or Kimax. Filter paper should be specified by description of the significant characteristic such as porosity, rate of filtering, ash content, etc. (see Appendix).

NOTE 3.—Attention is called to the policies adopted by the Board of Directors that are applicable to standards involving patented apparatus, materials, and processes. These policies are described in detail in Section 21 of the Regulations Governing ASTM Technical Committees.<sup>2</sup> In such cases, committees are required to furnish to the Board of Directors information regarding the patents. The Board of Directors considers such matters upon their respective merits. The owner and manufacturer must give assurance satisfactory to the Society that a patent monopoly will not result in an exorbitant price to the consuming public. ASTM does not undertake to insure anyone utilizing such materials, apparatus, appliance or machine for testing, against liability of infringement or assume any such liability.

(c) Detailed manufacturing requirements for apparatus, unless quite brief, should preferably be placed in an Appendix to the method, retaining in the text only a brief outline with schematic drawings or illustrations where necessary. The purpose of this outline is to provide the user with information regarding the essential features of the apparatus, to enable him to assemble and understand the use of the equipment in the method.

(d) When essentially the same apparatus is used for more than one method and the description of the apparatus requirements is lengthy, it is recommended that the complete specifications for the apparatus be included in an Appendix to one method and merely a reference be made to them in the other method, mentioning under "Apparatus" only such modifications as may apply in each particular case.

(e) When the same apparatus is used in several methods, the detailed specifications may be covered by a separate ASTM standard.

Examples of such standards are:

Specifications for Flow Table for Use in Tests of Hydraulic Cement (C 230), Specifications for ASTM Thermometers (E 1),
 Specifications for ASTM Hydrometers (E 100),
 Specifications for Apparatus for Water Determination (E 123),
 Specifications for Distillation Equipment (E 133), Specifications for Apparatus for Microchemical Analysis (E 124, E 148, E 149), and Recommended Practices for Apparatus and Reagents for Chemical Analysis of Metals (E 50).

NOTE 4.—Information on the manner of expressing the requirements for dimensions of apparatus both in the text and on schematic drawings is included in the Appendix to these recommendations.

Reagents and Materials

7. (a) When there is more than one procedure, list the reagents and materials required for that procedure as a separate section under each subdivision. When only chemical reagents are required, omit the word "materials" from the heading.

(b) It is recommended that, where applicable, the following be included as Paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section:

(a) Purity of Reagents.—Reagent grade chemicals shall be used in all tests. Unless otherwise indicated, it is intended that all reagents shall conform to the specifications of the Committee on Analytical Reagents of the American Chemical Society, where such specifications are available.<sup>3</sup> Other grades may be used, provided it is first ascertained that the reagent is of sufficiently high purity to permit its use without lessening the accuracy of the determination.

(b) Purity of Water.—Unless otherwise indicated, references to water shall be understood to mean distilled water or water of equal purity.

If satisfactory, reference may be made to the Specifications for Reagent Water (ASTM Designation: D 1193).<sup>4</sup> If a purer grade of water is required, add a second sentence as follows: Water conforming to the following specifications is required (list the specific properties, kinds of ion freedom, etc.).

In standards covering two or more chemical methods these paragraphs on purity should be made a separate section entitled Purity of Reagents and Materials.

(c) List the reagents and materials alphabetically in separate lettered paragraphs. Give the name of the reagent first, followed by any descriptive terms (see Example). State the desired concentration if significant; then follow with instructions for preparation and standardization (if required), using the imperative mood and concise descriptions. Spell out the full name of the reagent, and immediately after the first mention of the name include within parentheses

<sup>3</sup> "Reagent Chemicals, American Chemical Society Specifications," Am. Chemical Soc., Washington, D. C. For suggestions on the testing of reagents not listed by the American Chemical Society, see "Reagent Chemicals and Standards," by Joseph Rosin, D. Van Nostrand Co., Inc., New York, N. Y., and the "United States Pharmacopeia."

the exact chemical formula of the reagent showing its water of crystallization, etc. Exception to this may be made in the case of organic, metallo-organic, or complex inorganic compounds by omitting the chemical formula. Subsequent references to compounds shall be by formula only where they can be clearly specified by this means, as in the case of most inorganic compounds. As exceptions, always spell out the word "water" and the names of substances in their elementary state, for example, use lead, not Pb; oxygen, not O<sub>2</sub>. If the reagent is to be used as purchased, and not diluted, dissolved, or purified, state the chemical formula as given by the manufacturer.

(d) Avoid the use of trade names and names of patented products, using chemical names only, unless a specific product is required for a well-defined reason. In this case, use a superior reference number to refer to a footnote giving the required information, incorporating the phrase "has been found satisfactory for this purpose." Where particular reagents are required only for standardization or calibration, identify them by reference to an appropriate footnote such as "This reagent used for standardization purposes only."

(e) Specify the reagent concentration in applicable terms, as follows:

Concentrated acids and bases.....	specific gravity, unless per cent by weight is more generally used or required
Dilute acids and bases.....	volume ratio, x:y (x volumes of reagent added to y volumes of water)
Nonstandardized solutions.....	grams of reagent as weighed out per liter of solution
Standardized solutions.....	normality, expressed decimally; or the equivalent of 1 ml of solution in terms of grams of a given element expressed as "1 ml = x.xx g of ..."

(f) Wherever possible, use the same concentrations of reagents and methods of standardization as used in other similar ASTM methods.

Examples of reagent descriptions are as follows:

(a) Ammonium Carbonate ((NH<sub>4</sub>)<sub>2</sub>CO<sub>3</sub>).

(b) Barium Chloride Solution (100 g per liter).

—Dissolve 100 g of barium chloride (BaCl<sub>2</sub>·2H<sub>2</sub>O) in water and dilute to 1 liter.

(c) Potassium Hydroxide, Methanol Solution (33 g per liter).—Dissolve 33 g of potassium hydroxide (KOH) in methanol and dilute to 1 liter with methanol.

(d) Sodium Thiosulfate, Standard Solution (0.1 N).—Dissolve 24.82 g of sodium thiosulfate (Na<sub>2</sub>S<sub>2</sub>O<sub>3</sub>·5H<sub>2</sub>O) in water and dilute to 1 liter in a volumetric flask. Preserve the thiosulfate solution by adding 5 ml of chloroform or 1 g of sodium hydroxide (NaOH) per liter. Determine the exact normality by titration against a standard solution of equivalent strength of potassium acid iodate (KH(IO<sub>3</sub>)<sub>2</sub>) or potassium dichromate (K<sub>2</sub>Cr<sub>2</sub>O<sub>7</sub>).

Safety Precautions

8. When there are hazards to personnel in performing the test, such as explosions, fire, toxicity, a warning to this effect should be included here. Indicate at which steps in the procedure these hazards exist. At the point in the text where a precaution is important include the word Caution, followed by the details of the protective or precautionary measures to be taken.

Examples of methods that include safety precautions are:<sup>5</sup>

Method of Test for Sulfur in Petroleum Products by the Bomb Method (D 129),

Methods of Test for Total Chromium in Industrial Water and Industrial Waste Water (D 1687), and Methods for Chemical Analysis of Magnesium and Magnesium-Base Alloys (E 35).

Sampling

9. (a) When required, give under this heading necessary special directions for taking samples from bulk, for storage of samples, for preservation of samples, or for special preparation of the sample for the test.

<sup>5</sup> The safety precaution statements in these particular methods do not conform exactly with the form proposed in Section 8 but illustrate the type of hazards to which attention should be directed.

(b) If the method of sampling is described in an existing ASTM method, refer to that method by title and designation. Instructions for sampling may appear in the materials specifications, in which case those provisions are applicable.

(c) If the method of sampling is detailed in a readily available publication other than an existing ASTM Standard, refer to the publication in a footnote (Note 5), arranging the information in accordance with the suggestions presented in the Appendix to these recommendations.

NOTE 5.—References to publications other than those of ASTM for methods of sampling should be used only for supplementary information, or only until a suitable ASTM method is prepared. Essential requirements for sampling should always be covered in the method or in another ASTM publication. In a few cases problems have resulted from references only to publications of other organizations.

Test Specimen or Sample

10. (a) The size of sample used for a chemical analysis usually is given in the section on Procedure but, if significant in connection with pretreatment or preparation, it may be included here. When the test sample is specified by weight, indicate the degree of precision desired.

(b) Include detailed requirements as to the size and number of test specimens to be used for other than chemical tests. Where a test specimen of a particular shape is required, the essential dimensions shall be specified, including tolerances. A drawing showing the details of the specimen may be included.

Preparation of Apparatus

11. Use this section only when detailed instructions are required for the initial assembly, conditioning, or preparation of the apparatus.

Calibration and Standardization

12. (a) Where applicable, place this section immediately after "Sampling," unless two or more methods are published in one standard, in which case place this section immediately after "Reagents and Materials" in each method in which it applies.

(b) Apparatus.—Give such detailed instructions for calibration and adjustment of the apparatus as may be necessary to the use of the method.

(c) Reference Standards and Blanks.—Give detailed instructions for the standardization and use of reference standards and blanks used in the method. Describe any standard samples used to assure uniformity of the test technique, and standard specimens or photographic standards.

(d) Calibration Curves and Tables.—Give detailed instructions for the preparation and use of calibration curves or tables, according to the suggestions presented in the Appendix. Include in the instructions for curve or table preparation items such as calibration solutions, reference standards, blanks, color development, photometry, construction, etc.

Conditioning

13. The atmosphere to be used and the time of exposure to the atmosphere, as well as the atmosphere required during the test, shall be specified, where necessary. State whether the conditioning requirements apply to laboratory samples as well as individual specimens. Indicate any requirements for preconditioning.

Procedure

14. (a) Include in proper sequence detailed directions for performing the test. Describe the procedure in the imperative mood, present tense, for example: "Heat the test specimen . . ."

rather than "The test specimen shall be heated . . .". State the number of samples or specimens to be tested. Describe in detail the successive steps of the procedure, grouping related operations into logical, lettered paragraphs. Subheadings may be used if they will help the organization of the material. Make the text of the procedure concise, to the point, and easily understandable. When alternative procedures are given, state their relative status, that is, which is the preferred or referee procedure.

(b) In chemical methods, specify the size of test sample and indicate the degree of precision desired in the weighing. The sample size and its accuracy of weighing shall be considered in connection with the ultimate use of the method. If the formula for a reagent has been given previously in accordance with the instructions given in Section 7(c), refer to the reagent by chemical formula only. Otherwise, spell out the name of the reagent. The procedure should provide for any operations necessary to obtain any correction data that may be needed.

NOTE 6.—Supplementary information regarding the procedure, such as technical details or discussion to amplify the test procedure, or alternate directions, may be included in a note. Instructions or details essential to the procedure should not appear in notes.

Calculation or Interpretation of Results

15. (a) Calculation.—Give here directions for calculating the results of the test, including any equations. Spell out names in the text but use letter symbols in the equations to designate individual values. Use numerical values for any constants. Describe the letter symbols immediately under the equation. Avoid the use of combined factors in chemical methods. Indicate the reference point on which the calculations are based, such as on the sample as received, dry basis, etc., and the units in which the results are reported. If necessary for clarity, a typical calculation may be included in an explanatory note.

Example of typical equation is:

Aluminum, per cent

$$= \frac{(A - B) \times 0.0587}{C} \times 100$$ where:

- A* = grams of aluminum oxyquinolate found in the aliquot used,
B = grams of aluminum oxyquinolate found in the blank, and
C = grams of sample represented in the aliquot used.

(b) Interpretation of Results.—Use this section in place of the section on "Calculation" when the results of the test must be expressed in descriptive form, relative terms, or abstract values. List and define the descriptive terms or classifications used. The results of a test may be interpreted or expressed in terms of a rating scale. There is fairly wide agreement on five-step scales for many values or rankings of merit, with 5-good, 3-middle, 1-bad. In general, a higher score for more of a desirable property is the more satisfactory arrangement. This eliminates confusion arising from number 1 in rank for the most of a quantity, without regard.

Examples of methods that include rating systems are:

- Methods of Polariscopic Examination of Glass Containers (C 148),
 Method of Test for Copper Strip Corrosion by Petroleum Products (D 130), Methods of Test for Pilling Resistance of Textile Fabrics (D 1375), and Method of Test for Estimation of Deleterious Particles in Lubricating Grease (D 1404).

Report

16. State in this section the detailed information required in reporting the results of the test. When two or more procedures are described in a method, the report should indicate which procedure was used. When the method permits variations in operating or other conditions, a statement as to the particular conditions used in the test should be incorporated in the report. As an aid in the calculation and uniform recording of test results a standard report form or work sheet may be used, and if desirable a facsimile of the form may be included in the method.

Precision and Accuracy

17. (a) Precision.—State the precision expected when the method is used by competent operators in a number of laboratories. "Precision" refers to the degree of agreement of repeated measurements of the same property of a given material, expressed in terms of dispersion of test results around the arithmetic mean. Additional information on precision may be supplied based on test results obtained by repetitive testing of a homogeneous sample by a single operator, by different operators in the same laboratory, etc. The terms in which precision is expressed shall be clearly defined.

Examples of methods that include sections on precision are:

- Method of Test for Water and Sediment in Fuel Oils by Centrifuge (D 1796),
- Methods of Test for Phenolic Compounds in Industrial Water and Industrial Waste Water (D 1783),
- Method of Test for Aniline Point and Mixed Aniline Point of Hydrocarbon Solvents (D 1012),
- Method of Test for Tensile Breaking Strength of Paper and Paperboard (D 828),
- Methods of Testing Urethane Foam Raw Materials (D 1638),
- Method of Test for Specific Gravity of Askarels (D 1810),
- Method of Test for Strength and Elongation of Cotton Fibers (Flat Bundle Method) (D 1445), and
- Method for Spectrochemical Analysis of Pig Lead by the Point-to-Plane Spark Technique (E 117).

(b) Accuracy.—When the information is available, state the accuracy of the method, that is, the degree of agreement between results of measurement and the true value for the property being measured.

(c) For suggestions on reporting test data, see the "ASTM Manual on Quality Control of Materials," 1951 Edition, STP No. 15-C. The Manual gives, in addition to a brief discussion of the theoretical aspects of the measurement of precision, useful examples and convenient short-cut methods of calculation. ## EXPLANATORY NOTES

In some methods it may be desirable to group all of the explanatory notes at the end rather than to place them under individual sections. This is permissible especially when the information in the individual notes applies to two or more sections of the method. List the notes in sequence in the same order in which they would appear if placed in the text of the method. Appropriate references to the notes should appear in the main body of the method.

Examples of standards having Explanatory Notes at the end are:

Specifications for Soft Rectangular and Square Bare Copper Wire for Electrical Conductors (B 48),

Specifications for Rope-Lay-Stranded Copper Conductors Having Bunch-Stranded Members, for Electrical Conductors (B 172),

Method of Test for Water Resistance of Paper, Paperboard, and Other Sheet Materials by the Dry-Indicator Method (D 779), and Classification of Austenite Grain Size in Steels (E 19).

REFERENCES

A list of literature references to reports, papers, or other publications that contain background information or supporting data may be included. Only pertinent references should be cited, not a bibliography. Do not cite references of historical or acknowledgment value only. This list should preferably appear at the end of the method, unless there are only a few references in which case they may appear as footnotes. In either case, appropriate notations to the references should appear in the text. The form to be used for such references is discussed in the Appendix.

Examples of methods that contain References are:

Methods of Test for A-C Capacitance, Dielectric Constant, and Loss Characteristics of Electrical Insulating Materials (D 150), Methods of Preparation of Metallographic Specimens (E 3), and Recommended Practice for Thermal Analysis of Metals and Alloys (E 14).

APPENDIXES

Supplementary information may be included in one or more Appendixes to the method. Information on the following general subjects has been included in such Appendixes:

(1) Notes on significance and interpretation of the method, usually to amplify the statement in the text,

(2) Glossary of terms used in the method,

(3) List of symbols,

(4) Detailed description of apparatus,

(5) Instructions for calibrating and standardizing apparatus,

(6) Directions for cleaning apparatus,

(7) Operating instructions and adjustments of specific makes of apparatus,

(8) Development of equations used in the calculations,

(9) Charts or supplementary information for computations, and

(10) Suggested data forms for recording test results.

Sections of the first Appendix should be designated A1, A2, A3, etc. Paragraphs should be lettered consecutively in each section as (a), (b), (c), etc., and subparagraphs numbered with arabic numerals in parentheses (1), (2), (3). Sections of the second Appendix should be designated B1, B2, B3, etc. and so on alphabetically for succeeding appendixes. The paragraphs and subparagraphs are lettered and numbered the same as in the first Appendix.

APPENDIX

NOTES, REFERENCES, ILLUSTRATIONS, AND UNITS OF MEASUREMENT IN ASTM STANDARDS<sup>11</sup>

Manuscript

A1. (a) Manuscript for an ASTM standard should be typewritten on one side of reasonably heavy paper of ordinary thickness (not onion skin), double spaced, with a margin of at least 1 in. on each side. Pages should be numbered consecutively.

(b) Two copies of the manuscript should be furnished for final editing. Also send glossy prints of photographs and the original copy or tracings of line drawings. Use only essential illustrations. Provide good sharp prints of photographs on glossy paper. Mail photographs flat, not rolled, using sufficient cardboard to prevent creasing. Do not use clips as they mar the print. Photomicrographs should be unmounted. See Section A5 for further information regarding illustrations.

Notes

A2. (a) Notes in the text are intended to set explanatory material apart from the text itself, either for emphasis or for offering informative suggestions not properly part of the method. Clarification of the description of required apparatus or procedure and modifications required or permitted in certain cases belong in the text itself. However, text notes may be preferable for detailed description of auxiliary procedures (for example, correction of barometric pressure in a method not primarily concerned with pressure).

(b) Notes appearing in a given method should be numbered in sequence, regardless of the number of sections, subdivisions, or appendixes. These notes should preferably appear at the end of the paragraph to which they pertain. In special cases, notes may be grouped at the end of the method under the heading "Explanatory Notes." If it is desired to refer to a text note in connection with a specific word or phrase in the text, that word or phrase should be followed by a reference to the note, "(Note 1)," etc.

(c) Notes in the text are preferred for the following:

(1) To refer to editorial changes made in the text.

(2) To refer to similar or companion ASTM methods.

(3) Under "Definitions," to amplify the description of the term or to refer to similar terms which may be confused with those used in the method.

(4) Safety precautions concerning explosion, fire, toxicity, or other hazards to personnel. See Section 8 of these recommendations.

(5) Special precautions to prevent damage to equipment.

(6) Limitations of the application of the test when not covered in the text.

(7) Description, if included under "Scope," of experimental means for recognizing cases where the method is not applicable to the material under test.

<sup>11</sup> These recommendations are in general agreement with the "Manual for Authors of ASTM Papers," copies of which are available from the Headquarters of the American Society for Testing Materials on request.

(8) Description of additional (not alternative) apparatus, materials, procedure, or calculations that are not actually required; or description of merely recommended forms of construction of required apparatus.

(9) Explanation, if desired, of the reasons for a certain requirement or direction. If brief, include in the text rather than as a note.

Footnotes and Literature References

A3. (a) Footnotes to the text are intended for explanation or references and should never carry any information or instructions necessary for the proper application of the method or specification. They should be used for the following:

(1) Statement of committee jurisdiction and subcommittee responsibility.

(2) Historical information as to date of first publication and subsequent revision or change in status.

(3) To indicate the nature of the latest revisions and which sections were affected.

(4) References to essentially identical methods published by other organizations.

(5) Literature references. Include only references to publications supporting or providing needed supplementary information; references that are merely historical or for acknowledgment are not desirable. When there are a number of references, group them at the end of the method under the heading "References."

(6) References to the Book of ASTM Standards or other publications for internal cross references to other standards.

(7) Brand names or trade designations of apparatus or supplies, but only when such references point out materials for which availability or adaptability is not generally known.

(8) Names and addresses of suppliers of apparatus and materials for which there is only one or a limited number of sources.

(b) Footnotes to tables are used for a variety of purposes, such as references to other ASTM standards, explanation of symbols, clarification of requirements, etc.

(c) Use consecutive superior figures for references to footnotes to the text, regardless of the number of sections, subdivisions, or appendixes in the method. For footnotes to tables, use lower-case superior letters.

(d) In literature references, arrange the information in the sequence needed for locating the report or paper. For example, the author's initials and name and title of paper should be followed by the name of the publication, publisher, volume, number, date, and page number. When the year is parenthetical to the volume, it should be placed in parentheses at the end. Otherwise, the date of publication should appear immediately after the name of the publication. Abbreviate the names of societies, but spell out the distinguishing word, such as: Am. Soc. Testing Mats., Am. Chemical Soc. Enclose the titles of papers in quotation marks and underline the names of Journals, Proceedings, Bulletins, etc.

Examples of such References are:

- (1) K. C. Li and C. Y. Wang, "Tungsten," 3rd Ed., Reinhold Publishing Co., New York, N. Y. (1955).

The lettering on this specimen drawing was done with a Leroy template 3240-140CL and a 3233-0 pen. It is preferred that this lettering be matched as closely as possible, either mechanically or freehand. The original drawing reduced to printing size is shown in the lower right hand corner.

FIG. 1.—Specimen Drawing.

References to ASTM Thermometers

A4. (a) Whenever possible, refer to thermometers described in the Specifications for ASTM Thermometers (ASTM Designation: E 1).<sup>4</sup> Reference to an ASTM thermometer of the desired range should be as follows:

Thermometer.—ASTM (name) Thermometer having a range of — to — (C or F, whichever applies) and conforming to the requirements for thermometer (give thermometer number; for example, 16F) as prescribed in ASTM Specifications E 1.

(b) Do not specify both temperature scales unless there is a definite need for them.

Illustrations

A5. (a) Illustrations of the apparatus should be designated as figures with arabic numbers. Line drawings are preferable to photographs. Furnish short titles or captions for each illustration.

(b) In preparing the drawings, due consideration should be given to the arrangement of the figure and the character and width of lines for reduction in reproduction. Original tracings or drawings should be made twice the size of the figure or illustration to appear in the standard as it is economically desirable to reduce all drawings to one-half size in reproduction. The lettering should be of adequate size so that it will be legible after the one-half reduction. For figures or illustrations that will fit across a single column of type ( $2\frac{1}{4}$  in.) the drawing should be  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. wide, maximum, and those to appear across the full page ( $4\frac{3}{4}$  in.) should be 9 in. wide, maximum. When the height of the drawing is the governing dimension it should preferably be not more than twice the height of the type page ( $7\frac{1}{4}$  in.) or  $14\frac{1}{2}$  in. When extra space is required for the figure caption, allow for this by reducing the height of the drawing. The maximum drawing size should, therefore, be kept within  $9\frac{1}{2}$  by $14\frac{1}{2}$  in. The specimen drawing in Fig. 1 may be used as a guide. It also contains suggestions on size of lettering. For additional information on preparation of drawings for publication, see American Standard ASA Y15.1—1959—Illustrations for Publication and Projection.

(c) Where a graph with one or more curves is considered essential, the instructions given in Paragraphs (a) and (b) apply. In plotting curves it may be possible to make the drawing so that it can be used directly, with some retouching, thus obviating the necessity of having new drawings made for reproduction which involves delay and additional expense. See the specimen drawing in Fig. 1.

(d) When it is necessary to use photomicrographs, refer to the Methods of Preparation of Micrographs of Metals and Alloys (ASTM Designation: E 2).<sup>4</sup> The following information may be obtained from this reference: standard magnifications; the use of rectangular rather than circular micrographs; and explanatory title giving magnification, etching medium (if one was used), treatment, etc.

Tables

A6. Tables of considerable length should be on separate sheets of paper and placed in their proper position in the manuscript. Copy for tables should not be crowded.

Equations

A7. When equations will not fit on one line across the single column of type ( $2\frac{1}{4}$  in.) use letter symbols to represent the items in the equation. Give a legend under the equation. Verify carefully all equations before submitting the manuscript. Be sure that distinction between capital and small letters is clear, and designate Greek letters as such. There is often confusion between the small letter l (el) and the figure one, between  $\omega$  (omega) and w; also between 0 and the letter O. Be sure that the distinction is clear in the manuscript, and also that all subscript letters and figures are plainly marked.

Units of Measurement

A8. (a) In apparatus specifications it is common manufacturing practice to use inches and decimals or fractions of inches for metal parts, and centimeters or millimeters for glass parts. Many of these, when converted from the original system to show figures in both systems, give decimals in the converted values that are of no practical utility. Hence, as a general practice, show only inches, etc., for metal parts and metric units for glass parts. For liquid measure and for volumetric glassware, use the term "milliliter" in preference to "cubic centimeter."

(b) Temperatures should not be expressed in both Centigrade and Fahrenheit, when one of the two scales is used to the virtual exclusion of the other. Both scales should be included only if there is good reason to do so, and the scale less frequently used should appear parenthetically. All chemical methods should be written using the Centigrade scale only. The Fahrenheit scale should be used only where such usage is firmly established as common practice such as in physical test methods. When Fahrenheit temperatures are specified, the Centigrade equivalents should appear in parentheses.

(c) Dimensions or temperatures, if converted from one system of units into another, should be rounded off in a practical manner, so that the values are significant. Thus, if a distance is quoted as approximately 1 to 1½ in. and a metric equivalent is desired, this should be 25 to 32 mm, not 25.4 to 31.8 mm; or if a temperature is quoted as not lower than 300 nor greater than 350 F, and a Centigrade equivalent is desired, this should be either 150 to 175 C or 149 to 177 C, depending on the precision implied in the given case; 148.9 to 176.7 C would not be realistic.

Numbering

A9. (a) Use arabic numbers for numbering sections of a standard, letters in parentheses for paragraphs, and arabic numbers in parentheses for subparagraphs. Refer to the numbered sections of a standard as "Section 6"; the lettered subdivisions of a section either as "Paragraph (a)" or "Section 6(a)." The former may be used only when the reference occurs in the section containing the paragraph referred to; in all other cases the latter form should be used.

(b) Use roman numerals in designating tables and insert plates: thus, "Table VI"; not "Table 6." Use arabic numerals in designating figures; thus, "Fig. 3"; not "Fig. III."

(c) Use superior figures for footnotes to the text. Use superior lower-case letters for footnotes to tables.

(d) Spell out all numbers from one to twelve, with the following exceptions:

(1) Use numerals when the quantity is partly fractional: as, 1.15, 5½.

(2) Use numerals when followed by an expression having a standard abbreviation: as, 1 in., 6 lb, etc.; and for expressions or units that do not admit of abbreviation such as 5 ohms, 7 tons, etc.

(3) In contrasting statements, if some numbers must be numerals, use numerals for all: as, "make 2 tests after 17 days."

(4) In a series of connected numerical statements implying precision, use numerals: as, "5 months, 3 days." The use of numerals is not recommended for numbers occurring in precise statements similar to the following: "Recording the data from the ten test locations."

(5) Use numerals after abbreviations: as, Vol. 26, Fig. 2, No. 5, etc.

(6) Use numerals in stating any exact quantity, such as "1 liter" or the number of drops of a solution, as in "add 2 or 3 drops of  $\text{KMnO}_4$  solution." Also, say, "mix 2 volumes of HCl (sp gr 1.19) with 3 volumes of water."

(e) Use numerals for all numbers exceeding twelve, with the following exceptions:

(1) Do not begin a sentence with a numeral.

(2) Round numbers used in an indefinite sense shall be spelled out: as, "A hundred feet or so," etc.

(3) Spell out numbers when used in the following manner: "fifteen 2-in. rods," etc.

(f) In expressing percentages, precise figures, etc., use decimals: as, "4.5 per cent"; not "4½ per cent."

(g) In decimal numbers, place a zero before the decimal point: as, "0.65 in.;" not ".65 in."

(h) In pointing off numbers of more than four figures, use commas in the text (1,234,567) and spaces in tabular matter (1 234 567). Do not point off numbers of four figures in either text or tabular matter (1234), except when they occur in a column containing numbers of more than four figures.

Spelling and Punctuation

A10. (a) In general, use the preferred spelling given in Webster's International Dictionary. In view of the variants now in use, use the following recommended spellings:

aging
benzene
briquet
buret carburation
cross-section disk
embed endorse gage (measurement)
gauge (tempering plaster)

kerosine
mold
nondestructive
nonferrous
pipet pozzolan
siliceous skillful sulfur ultraviolet viscometer

glycerin infrared iodine

wavelength
X-ray

(b) Hyphenate compound adjectives: as, "2-in. gage," "cold-drawn wire." Write such expressions as the following with the hyphen only after the second numeral: "2 and 6-in. specimens." For sake of appearance, omit hyphens in such expressions as: "3 per cent nickel alloy," "3 per cent solution," etc.

(c) Do not hyphenate such expressions as: "newly puddled iron," where the adverb is a regular modifier of the adjective.

(d) Do not use a period within or after an abbreviation except where indicated in Section A14.

Capitals

A11. (a) Use capitals sparingly.

(b) Capitalize the principal words in headings, titles of standards, books, papers, etc. (nouns, pronouns, verbs, adjectives, adverbs, and prepositions with over four letters).

(c) Use capital initial "C" for "committee" when used as a title: thus, "Committee D-19," "Committee on Papers." In all other cases use lower-case "c": thus, "The committee recommends . . ."

(d) Use lower-case initial letters for the following: admiralty, babbitt, bessemer, bunsen, duralumin, monel, nylon, portland cement.

(e) Use initial capitals in referring to tables, figures, insert plates, volumes, etc.: as, Table III, Fig. 2, Plate VI, Vol. 26.

(f) Use the form "test No. 1," "specimen A," etc.

Preferred Terms and Expressions in All Methods

A12. (a) Use the imperative mood, present tense for all instructions and directions in test procedures. Use the mandatory verb "shall" only in stating definite requirements. In specifications, the verb "shall" implies a requirement that is binding on parties of the first or second part, the verb "will" implies a declaration of purpose only and the verb "may" implies an act that is permissive.

(b) Use "full-size tests"; not "full-sized tests," etc.

(c) Use "test specimen"; not "test piece." In case the term "test specimen" is repeated several times in the same section, the word "specimen" may be used after the first use of "test specimen."

(d) Use " $\frac{3}{4}$  in. or over in thickness"; not " $\frac{3}{4}$  in. and over."

(e) In referring to dimensions, use "2 in."; not "two inches (2 in.)" or "two (2) inches."

(f) Use "reduction of area"; not "reduction in area" nor "contraction in area."

(g) Use "flexure" test; not "transverse" test.

(h) Use "Rockwell hardness C scale" or when accompanied by a value, "Rockwell hardness C 59."

(i) In references to concrete say it "shrinks" and "swells" when exposed to moisture, but it "contracts" and "expands" when exposed to temperature changes.

(j) In reference to reagent solutions, in all sections other than the section on "Reagents and Materials" use the form, "add 10 ml of  $\text{KMnO}_4$  solution," omitting any statement of concentration except where two or more concentrations are referred to in the same method. In the latter case, state the concentration intended with each reference. When referring to standard solutions, use the form "titrate with 0.1 N  $\text{KMnO}_4$  solution."

Refer to concentrated acids and ammonium hydroxide, except in the section on "Reagents and Materials" by chemical formula only, as in "add 10 ml of HCl to the solution," except where one or more dilutions of the acid or ammonium hydroxide are referred to in the same method, in which case state the concentration intended.

(k) Spell out the names of elements, except when used in chemical formulas, in expressing concentrations of reagents, as in "1 ml = 0.04 g Zn," or in calculations. For example, say "Calculate the percentage of iron as follows:

$$\text{Iron as Fe, per cent} = \frac{A - B}{C} \times 100$$

Except in the detailed instructions for preparation of reagents, spell out the names of those inorganic compounds which are so unusually complex or uncommon that (a) confusion or inconvenience might result from the use of chemical formulas, or (b) the use of chemical formulas would result in waste of space or poorer readability.

Preferred Terms and Expressions in Methods for Chemical Analysis

A13. In general, new or revised methods should read as nearly as possible like similar ASTM methods for chemical analysis that have recently been issued or that have been editorially revised in accordance with these recommendations on form, except as required by actual differences in details of the methods. Wherever definite improvements in wording are possible, these should be made, but similar wording should be used wherever possible in order to make significant differences in substance of the methods more readily evident and to show the similarity of like portions of the methods. Examples of preferred wordings are as follows:

(1) Say "dropwise" instead of "drop by drop."

(2) Use "persistent" rather than "permanent" in referring to the color of a solution, as in the case of a "persistent blue color" where starch is used as an indicator.

(3) Use the terms "fine," "medium," and "coarse" to describe the porosity of filter paper. Describe size, quality, and porosity in that order, as in the case of a "9-cm, low-ash, medium paper." Avoid the use of trade names, using catalog descriptions only, unless a specific manufacturer's product is required for a well-defined reason. In this case, use a superior number to refer to a footnote giving the required information, incorporating the phrase, "has been found satisfactory for this purpose." Where appropriate, reference may be made to the Specifications for Filter Paper for Use in Chemical Analysis (ASTM Designation: D 1100).<sup>4</sup>

(4) Say "filter through a fine paper" when only the filtrate is to be used, but "filter using a fine paper" when the precipitate is to be used.

(5) In general, do not use "approximately" in stating the concentrations of reagents. State the nominal concentration, as in "standard KMnO<sub>4</sub> solution (0.005 N)." The precision of the statement will depend on the manner in which the solution is prepared and where necessary, standardized.

(6) Avoid use of the abbreviation "l" for liter.

Abbreviations

A14. (a) Terms that are infrequently used will, in general, not be abbreviated. The official abbreviations of many terms that frequently appear in the text of Society publications follow. See also Sections A3 and A9.

<sup>12</sup> In the interest of simplicity and clarity the abbreviation for the temperature scale F, C, or K shall always be included in expressions for numerical temperatures but the abbreviation or symbol for "degree" shall be omitted: as 69 F. In a table heading, use "Temperature, deg Fahr" or "deg Cent," or "deg Kelvin."

Use the degree sign for °API, and °Baumé gravity, and for indicating angles on drawings.

<sup>13</sup> Use the abbreviation cu cm rather than cc as the unit of capacity. Use ml for milliliter as the unit of volume.
