Another result of this new situation will be that all of the arsenals bound to the rental will be dependant of the Royal Navy gathering in the Department of Ferrol everything bound to this service.

The maritime mail was not limited to the delivery of the mail, but it also served as means of transportation for those that could send goods and money after the payment of freight.

Since the establishment of the Maritime Mail it was useful that the freights of goods that the individuals would send to La Coruña in the mail frigates would be charge and paid in the currency of the country or (macuquina) until 1790 when it is established that it must be paid in pesos fuertes or reales de plata. On the other hand, the transport of the passengers would be paid in pesos dobles being billed at the departure port.

I have said from the beginning that the maritime mail like the ground mail were not limited to the delivery of mail. By ground, the administrations begin to establish the mailing of the letters of appointment in the mailbags, with chains and padlocks, were conducted not only the wealth of the individuals in sealed silver, but also in money (pastas) and jewelry, in addition to gold. For the control of the freight in the book registry of taxes the shipments were settled, receipts would be issued to those interested and the corresponding procedures of approval at the departure and arrival. It was completely prohibited to take any messages that were not included in the register.

In Montevideo, the log of wealth was registered at the arrival of the Captains of Buenos Aires, for which signboards would be posted announcing the last day of registration. The merchants would register their money after presenting proof of payment of 1% to the Council of Lima. The receipt for the receiver and boxes sealed with nails would guarantee the transaction.
