"This is your opportunity to double, even triple, your wealth by 2010!"

Dear Fellow Investor:

Over the next ten years, the largest transfer of wealth in human history will occur as the children of the 78 million baby boomers begin to inherit an estimated $50 trillion in household wealth.

This enormous demographic tidal wave... on top of record-breaking growth in money supply worldwide... will fuel the greatest spending spree the world has ever seen.

A vast, surging sea of CASH is going to drive the U.S. stock market to unprecedented heights... send commodity prices soaring worldwide... and make a small minority of savvy investors multi-millionaires.

today" by Predictions newsletter. While most of today's investment advisors were in grade school, Don Rowe was safely steering his readers through the tumultuous markets of the '70s and '80s. In 1994, when everyone was saying buy gold and silver, Don Rowe recommended stocks. The Dow jumped 141% before the first correction. In October of 1987, Rowe got his readers safely out of the market before the infamous 508-point, one-day crash. Rowe was practically the lone voice to alert investors to the amazing run of the 1990s. Now, once again, he is well ahead of the pack.

And it's happening RIGHT NOW... as we speak.

Over the past 32 years, I have compiled a list of key, fool-proof market indicators that has proven most reliable in predicting major market turns. And for the first time in my 32 years of publishing, ALL of my key market indicators – every single one of them! -- are now simultaneously and overwhelmingly BULLISH.

The Dow Average Will Soar to 18,000 During The 2006-2010 Mega Bull Market!

Record liquidity, record market undervaluation, and soaring corporate profits will drive stock prices to record high after record high between now and 2010. Let's be very clear about the 2006-2010 Economic Boom:

The U.S. Stock Market will outperform the bond market, gold, real estate and all other investments during 2006-2010.

Now, let me share with you a very important forecast:

FORECAST ONE

A Global Economic Boom will continue to unfold in 2008. The U.S. and Asia are creating new money and growing at the fastest pace ever!

Next Forecast Subscribe Now

A global economic boom has emerged. The U.S. will continue to lead this economic boom, with China, India and Japan contributing to substantial global growth. The 1995-1999 economic boom and bull market was very profitable, but it was primarily a U.S. boom. China, India and Japan were not growing between 1995-1999. Neither was Europe. This over-taxed, over-regulated continent cannot unshackle itself from the socialistic leg chains that will continue to drag it deeper into the economic cellar.

Avoid all investments in Europe!

China, India, Japan and Southeast Asia, with over half of the world's six billion people, will join the U.S. and produce the Greatest Economic Boom and Bull Market in History.

Again, record liquidity, record market undervaluation, and soaring corporate profits will drive this great boom and bull market.

The Liquidity Figures Are Astonishing!

Six trillion dollars is sitting on the sidelines in money market accounts earning one percent annually. But not for long. This money is quietly flowing into the stock market, which has been rising approximately one percent every day since November 2004.

Let's put this six trillion dollars into perspective: Only $2.9 trillion cash was on the sidelines when the 1995-1999 bull market began. During that great five-year boom, the Dow Industrial Average tripled from 3,838 on January 1, 1995, to 11,723 at the January 14, 2000, Dow Industrial top.

If the Dow triples from 13,200 today, we'll see the Dow Average at 39,600 by the 2010 market top.

Harry S. Dent, Jr., author of The Next Great Bubble Boom Ahead, believes the Dow could reach 40,000 if 2009 is a bubble blow-off year. In 1999, the Dow jumped 25 percent. The Nasdaq did even better.

The Nasdaq soared from 743 on January 1, 1995, to 5,048 at the March 10, 2004, Nasdaq top, for a 6.79-fold increase!

If the Nasdaq Composite moves from today's 2,500 level times 6.79, the Nasdaq would soar to 17,000 by the 2010 market top. Harry Dent believes the Nasdaq could soar to a maximum of 20,000 if 2009 is a bubble blow-off year.

How likely is a 2009 technology bubble? Very likely! The Nasdaq 100 soared 99.9 percent in 1999, while the Nasdaq Composite soared 84 percent.

Dent says that the 2006-2010 bull market will be the final leg-up for the technology revolution. It could very likely end up in a technology bubble blow-off during 2009.

Bubble or not, this is the final leg of the technology boom. Regardless of where the Dow Average and the Nasdaq end up in 2009, this Great 2006-2010 Bull Market will present investors with an unprecedented opportunity to create and capture enormous wealth by 2010. Today is the buying opportunity of a lifetime!

As a subscriber to The Wall Street Digest, I will show you where the rock-solid, moneymaking opportunities are.

Guided by my proprietary Wall Street Profit System 2010™, I will put you on the path to doubling, even tripling, your wealth and your investment profits by 2010.

FORECAST TWO

The Dow Industrial Average will soar to 18,000 during The Great Boom Ahead 2006-2010. The Nasdaq will soar to 4,000 before 2010.

Stocks Prices Will Soar During The Greatest Bull Market In U.S. History!

I have written a special report, which will tell you step-by-step, year-by-year, how to capture profits from the Greatest Boom in U.S. history. Most importantly, I will also tell you how to keep all of your profits from this great boom. More on how to receive a free copy of "How To Profit From The Great Boom Ahead 2006-2010" in a moment...

Keep in mind that record liquidity, record market undervaluation, and soaring corporate profits will be the driving force of the 2006-2010 Bull Market and Economic Boom. Non-financial U.S. corporations have a record $1.27 trillion in liquid assets. A portion of these assets reflect $669.9 billion in foreign earnings retained abroad. Stock prices will explode by 2010 because of:

The Homeland Investment Act

U.S. corporate CEOs told Congress and the White House they'd like to bring home upwards of $500-billion-plus in foreign profits retained abroad where local taxes have already been paid. However, they are not willing to pay another 35% in U.S. corporates taxes to bring this money back to the U.S.

In 2004, Congress passed the Homeland Investment Act, which allows U.S. corporations to repatriate $669.9 billion in retained foreign earnings by paying a corporate tax of only 5.25 percent.

Companies had to use this cash windfall by mid-October 2005 to purchase equipment, buy back shares, pay an extra dividend, acquire another company, to pay down debt, or just about anything that will be positive for economic growth, job creation and the stock market. Companies were NOT allowed to use this liquid cash windfall for executive compensation or bonuses.

This $500-billion-plus windfall has rapidly accelerated growth and created millions of new U.S. jobs! Corporate Profits And Stock Prices Soared in 2006 and 2007!

Over the past 33 years, I have compiled a list of key, fool-proof market indicators that have proven most reliable in predicting major market turns.

For the first time in my 33 years of publishing The Wall Street Digest, all of my key market indicators are now simultaneously and powerfully bullish. They show me that we are entering the final leg of the greatest bull market in history. It will be nothing short of sensational for investors who know how to capture profits from this great boom!

This is a once-in-a-lifetime bullish opportunity. Don't underestimate the power of this record-setting 2006-2010 bull market. Stock prices will continue to soar because never before have all of these powerful bull-market forces happened all at the same time:

#1: Interest Rates Are Still At Record 45-Year Lows.

As a result, mortgage refinancing has cut mortgage payments for millions of Americans. In 2005, Americans took over $100 billion in cash out of their refinanced mortgages because of higher home values. And, even though housing prices have stopped rising, consumers still have an extra $100 billion cash to spend in 2008 as refinancing continues with record low mortgage rates.

Every year, 3.4 million new Americans must find housing. A shortage of single family homes and apartments has pushed up real estate values. Record low interest rates have fostered a housing boom that will exceed the record levels set during the 1990s.

This will not be an ordinary bull market. The Fed will keep interest rates at historic low levels. This will create a Super Economic Boom that should last until 2010.

This bull market will be far more profitable than the 1995-2000 bull market that helped Americans double their personal wealth from $20 trillion to $40 trillion. The synergy of the seven forces at work now will produce a Super Economic Boom and Bull Market like you've never seen before.

#2: The Lowest Taxes Since The 1960s

President Bush pushed three tax cuts through Congress. Tax cuts always create faster economic growth. Faster economic growth always creates more jobs. Every politician in Washington knows these two basic rules because they are directly linked to survival every Election Day.

Tax cuts and low interest rates have always created economic booms and bull markets.

After John F. Kennedy was elected president in 1960, he cut the top tax bracket from 90 percent to 70 percent. An economic boom and bull market erupted!

After Ronald Reagan was elected president in 1980, he cut the top tax bracket from 70 percent to 28 percent. A 20-year economic boom and bull market erupted.

President Bush and Congress are going to simplify the U.S. Tax Code. The new code will be based upon taxing consumption instead of savings and profits. Death taxes will be eliminated. Capital gains taxes will be reduced or phased out. Lower taxes will further accelerate economic growth and job creation during the 2006-2010 Economic Boom and Bull Market.

#3: Record Deficit Spending By Congress.

While members of both houses of Congress remind us almost daily of how irresponsible it was to spend $500 billion in red ink during the past four years, they still approved every spending bill they reviewed! Now, why would Congress do something so irresponsible?

That's easy: Deficit spending always creates faster economic growth. Faster economic growth also creates increased federal tax revenues! Five hundred billion of red ink is an enormous and powerful economic stimulus.

There is a huge plus from deficit spending! The resulting increased federal tax revenues will substantially reduce the budget deficit, and more than likely eliminate the deficit entirely by 2010. Watch stock prices move relentlessly higher during 2006-2010 as the budget deficit shrinks.

A super economic boom is on the way! But those profits are only the beginning. Just wait until this next force hits the market, as shown below:

#4: The Professional Traders Of The S&P 500 Futures

Contracts Are Net-Long For The 2006-2010 Bull Market.

They went net-short in March 2000 and stayed net-short for three years. The result? The S&P 500 was down 10.1 percent in 2000; down 13.1 percent in 2001; and down 23.3 percent in 2002. They are net-long today and stock prices are rising. Don't forget: The Wall Street Pros are never on the wrong side of the market. Perhaps that is why they are often called "market makers."

This powerful new bull market is being led by the small-cap stocks, the mid-cap stocks and the technology sector. Advances in technology create new and better jobs everyday. Our strong entrepreneurial, capitalistic, democratic society is attracting the finest creative minds from all over the world.

Therefore, owning index funds that duplicate and leverage the performance of these soaring small-cap, mid-cap and technology stocks is a very profitable investment strategy.

I have created a special report, "The Top Ten Performing Index Funds For 2007." Subscribe to The Wall Street Digest and I will rush this valuable report to you with full details on how to invest in these top performing index funds.

#5: Money Always Goes Where It Is Treated Best. Stocks Offer A Far Better Return Than Bonds!

Bonds are fairly valued and have bottomed because economic growth is accelerating. That means bond prices will inch lower as bond yields inch up. However, stock prices are still undervalued by 32 percent. Monetary indicators are bullish and pointing to higher stock prices ahead in 2008. As bond prices inch lower, while stock prices rise, the Smart Money and the institutions are selling bonds (pushing prices lower) and purchasing stocks to profit from this Great Bull Market.

Every bull market begins when the institutions decide that stocks have more upside potential than bonds. The huge bond market is deflating into the stock market.

Now is the time to become fully invested to profit from the Greatest Bull Market in history!

#6: The Most Reliable Technical Indicator, The Smart Money Index, Is Giving A Buy Signal Like I've Never Seen Before!

The Smart Money Index is forecasting a ferocious bull market. Just watch what the Smart Money is doing and you can easily forecast where the stock market is headed. The Smart Money does not buy or sell stocks at the opening bell.

Traders reacting to what happened overnight in Asia and Europe accounts for most of the needless volatility in the futures before the market opens at 9:30 a.m. EST.

Stock prices usually fall between 11:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. EST because traders go to lunch and leave the market vulnerable to short-sellers. However, if stock prices are falling between 3:00 and 4:00 p.m. EST, you know that the Smart Money is selling and it is time for you to run for cover.

If stock prices are rising relentlessly between 3:00 and 4:00 p.m. EST every day, a bull market is underway. Use this index and you'll never miss a bull market, nor stay invested when a bear market begins.

The Smart Money waits until 3:00 p.m. to either sell or bargain hunt. You've heard the expression, "Never fight the Fed." The same warning applies to the Smart Money. If you are selling when the Smart Money is buying, you are on the wrong side of the market.

I have created a Special Report, "The Smart Money Index Has a Perfect Record of Correctly Forecasting Every New Bull Market!" And you will receive a FREE copy of this report when you subscribe to The Wall Street Digest!

FORECAST THREE

The Last Great Technology Bubble Boom Is Underway Now. The Internet, Security and Wireless Sectors Will Lead This Great Boom.

Next Forecast Subscribe Now

Technology stocks will lead the Great Bull Market between 2006 and 2010 to new record highs. This great, five-year boom will mirror the technology boom and revolution during the 1995-1999 bull market. However, deeper penetration of wireless and nano-technology will unfold and bring cellular phones, Internet and broadband connections to 90 percent of U.S. households by 2010.

Many of you captured enormous profits by owning Intel, Cisco, Microsoft, Dell Computers, etc., between 1995 and 1999. While these familiar names will probably do well during the 2006-2010 Technology Boom and Bull Market, keep in mind that they are also large, mature companies with deep, significant penetrations in their markets. They will grow and they will contribute to the last great technology boom.

However, the Security-Industrial Complex that evolved after 9/11 is unprecedented. Security is a huge and growing technology business. Combined spending on security by the government, the business sector, plus home and personal security, will exceed one trillion dollars over the coming decade.

More than 800 companies packed exhibit aisles at the American Society for Industrial Security Exhibition in Dallas last year. The military needs sophisticated devices to protect its bases and personnel in the Middle East, but corporations need the same devices to protect manufacturing plants and personnel around the globe.

The new technology leaders are not well-known, but they have soaring sales and profits from new products that most people have yet to hear about. The next great surge in technology stocks will be in security, streaming audio, then streaming video, and the merger of radio and television into a digital platform. Fortunes will be made in these "New Industries."

To discover these new market leaders, I programmed our research computer to provide me with a list of The Top Performing Tech Companies of 2007. This impressive list of stocks shows enormous gains for these new market leaders and I am convinced the market leaders for this Great Technology Bull Market are on this list.

Our recommended Technology Stocks produced these profits for our subscribers:

- American Pharmaceutical Partners, Inc. — 192%
- Lexar Media, Inc. — 432%
- Foundry Networks, Inc. — 174%
- OmniVision Technologies, Inc. — 133%
- SanDisk Corporation — 247%
- Sohu.Com, Inc. — 374%
- United Online, Inc. — 146%
- Orbital Sciences Corp. — 160%
- eResearch Technology, Inc. — 238%
- Diodes, Inc. — 166%
- BioLase Technology, Inc. — 153%

I have compiled a list of the top 100 performing stocks for 2007. Many of these stocks are technology companies. I am convinced the market leaders for this new Bull Market are on this list.

I am so sure of this that I have created a special report that reveals: "The Top 100 Performing Stocks." When you subscribe to The Wall Street Digest, this report is yours FREE, with my compliments.

A thirty-three year study by an independent economic research firm tells us how to profit from both up and down markets. The study confirms that if an investor had invested in the Dow Jones Industrial Average, selling at the top of every bull market and reinvesting at the bottom of every bear market, a $1,000 investment would have grown to $85,000 over a thirty-three year period.

However, if the investor had not attempted to time the market and remained constantly invested—but only in the best-performing market sectors—$1,000 would have grown to a staggering $4.2 billion over the same thirty-three year period.

Stay invested in the top five sector funds that we highlight in every issue of The Wall Street Digest, and you can outperform every stock market index year-after-year. We will feature the top five sector funds in every issue of The Wall Street Digest and update them twice a week on our E-mail, Website and Telephone Hotlines.
