Plaintiff Maureen Toffoloni (“Toffoloni”) is the mother of her decedent daughter, Nancy Benoit, who had been involved in the professional wrestling business for many years and had been a conceded public figure. Ms. Benoit was murdered in her Atlanta, Georgia home in 2007 by her husband, famous professional wrestler Chris Benoit, who strangled decedent, their son, and then committed suicide. The murder made national and international headlines, in part due to Chris Benoit’s alleged use of steroids.

Some 20 years prior to her death, Nancy Benoit as a prospective model posed nude for photographs and a videotaping by one Mark Samansky. Samansky allegedly told Ms. Benoit that he had destroyed the photographs and videotape, but he kept the tape. When decedent’s murder became a major news story, Samansky contacted Defendant LFP Publishing Group, LLC (“LFP”), the publisher of Hustler magazine, a national magazine published 13 times a year. Samansky then conveyed the publishing rights to photographs he apparently extracted from his videotape, and photographs of a young Nancy Benoit, some depicting her nude, were published in the March, 2008 issue of Hustler. The photographs were voluntarily posed, are lawful and non-obscene, and were part of a full two-page story on Nancy Benoit’s life and death, including her career involving professional wrestling, and illustrate the fact that she had posed nude as a young woman.

LFP contends that publication of the voluntarily posed, non-obscene, nude photographs of decedent public figure Nancy Benoit as part of a newsworthy story on her life and death are outside of the Georgia posthumous common law right of publicity, and therefore do not violate same. Moreover, if such publication does violate Georgia law, it is protected by the right of freedom of the press enshrined in the First Amendment to the United States Constitution.

Describe in detail all statutes, codes, regulations, legal principles, standards and customs or usages, and illustrative case law which defendant contends are applicable to this action.

Plaintiff Toffoloni's single substantive right of publicity claim is asserted pursuant to Georgia common law, set forth in Cabaniss v. Hipsley, 114 Ga. App. 367 (1966) and Martin Luther King, Jr. Center v. American Heritage Products, 250 Ga. 135 (1982). Plaintiff must prove, among other elements of her claim, that she has standing to bring a claim for right of publicity on behalf of decedent Benoit.

Defendant LFP contends that its publication of the nude photographs of decedent are exempt from liability under Georgia common law as newsworthy, under such cases as Waters v. Fleetwood, 212 Ga. 161 (1956). In the event Defendant's publication of the aforesaid photographs are found to violate the Georgia right of publicity, they are immune from liability pursuant to the First Amendment to the United States Constitution. Non-obscene adult entertainment is protected by the First Amendment, Reno v. American Civil Liberties Union, 521 U.S. 844, 117 S.Ct. 2329 (1997). The First Amendment rights of freedom of the press for publications are set forth in cases such as Regan v. Time, Inc., 468 U.S. 641, 104 S.Ct. 3262 (1984).

The crux of the Eleventh Circuit opinion reversing this Court's dismissal of this action was that because the nude photographs of decedent Benoit were taken more than 20 years prior to her murder, they were not part of a "newsworthy" article and are therefore not exempt from liability under the newsworthiness exception to the Georgia right of publicity. 572 F.3d 1201, 1213. Although strongly asserted as a defense in LFP's motion papers, the Court never even discussed the First Amendment implications of this action, or applicable Supreme Court cases. However, the Supreme Court has warned against attempts by courts to define the concept of "newsworthiness." Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc., 418 U.S. 323, 94 S.Ct. 2997 (1974); Harper & Rowe Publishers, Inc. v. Nation Enterprises, 471 U.S. 539, 105 S.Ct. 2218 (1985), quoting Lerman v. Flynt Distributing Co., Inc., 743 F.2d 123 (2d Cir. 1984). Under Supreme Court precedent, it is for the editors of Hustler magazine to determine whether the subject photographs were newsworthy and lawful for publication, and not the courts.

Defendant further contends that, even if its publication of the photographs at issue were not exempt from liability as "newsworthy," the injuries sought to be redressed by Plaintiff are not the type or nature of injury recoverable under the right of publicity.
