Pastor: Lightning Bolt That Hit Giant Jesus Was No 'Act of God'

Column by Connie Schultz

About 11:15 Monday night, a 65-foot Jesus was struck by lightning and burned to the ground in southern Ohio.

See why I always am bragging about the Buckeye State? Never a dull moment around here.

No human was injured or killed. Thank God.

The giant Jesus, titled the "King of Kings," was a statue of steel, Styrofoam and fiberglass that rose like a glacier on the grounds of Solid Rock Church in the tiny town of Monroe. If you've traveled on Interstate 75 between Dayton and Cincinnati over the past six years, you saw it unless you were sleeping or arguing with someone in the car. It was huge and illuminated and depicted Jesus only from the shoulders up with his...
