Dear Paul:

Attached is the document that I referenced at our meeting this morning, which identified at least one other firm client. Without benefit of the document, you expressed concern that this document might have been inadvertently produced based upon my description of it. As you can see from the attached enclosure, this document is clearly part of a business negotiation and could not plausibly be considered attorney-client privilege. As I mentioned to you at our meeting, the document sets forth requested price terms. Please let me know if you have any further questions or concerns.

Thank you again for your cooperation.

Sincerely,

David J. Bradford
