Counsel:

It has come to our attention that the e-mail sent to you this morning inadvertently included as an attachment an unredacted copy of Greenberg Traurig's August 18, 2010 invoice to Google, rather than the redacted version that we understood was sent. Please be advised that that invoice comprises the confidential litigation work product of Greenberg Traurig and Google, and its transmittal was entirely inadvertent and unintentional.

Accordingly, we request that you immediately delete all electronic copies of that invoice that may currently reside in your computer system(s), and we will provide a replacement redacted copy shortly. Please respond at your earliest convenience with your acknowledgement that you have deleted all electronic copies of that invoice.

Counsel,

In furtherance of the Court's June 25, 2010 Order, attached are copies of invoices for the court reporter and videographer for Mr. Murphy's July 31st deposition. Also attached is a copy of Greenberg Traurig's August 18, 2010 invoice to Google, which has been redacted except for those entries related to Mr. Murphy's deposition. For convenience, payment under the June 25th Order may be made to our firm, which will in turn reimburse Google. Your early attention to this matter is appreciated.

In addition, we would appreciate your confirmation that the Court fine required under the June 25th Order has similarly been paid.
