Creating timelines with this tool becomes an engaging activity for students as they choose from five different units of measure (date, time, event, entry, or other) and add specific descriptions of each entry. Once the entries have been added, students may navigate through any part of the timeline by simply clicking on the appropriate entry. Students may view and edit their draft timeline, then print the finished timeline for reference. This is a handy tool for classroom use that guides students through the process of organizing information in timeline form and results in a polished finished product. Timeline

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

For other uses, see Timeline (disambiguation).

For Wikipedia's timeline and related tools, see Wikipedia:Timeline.

A timeline is a way of displaying a list of events in chronological order, sometimes described as a project artifact . It is typically a graphic design showing a long bar labeled with dates alongside itself and (usually) events labeled on points where they would have happened.

Uses of timelines [edit]

Timelines are often used in education to help students and researchers with understanding events and trends for a particular subject.

History [edit]

Timelines are particularly useful for studying science, as they convey a sense of change over time. Wars and social movements are often shown as timelines. Timelines are also useful for biographies. Examples include:

- Chronology of Shakespeare's plays
- Timeline of the African-American Civil Rights Movement
- Timeline of European exploration
- Timeline of Solar System exploration
- Timeline of United States history (1930–1949)
- World War I timeline

Natural sciences [edit]

Timelines are also used in the natural world and sciences for subjects such as astronomy, biology and geology.

- 2009 H1N1 Flu Pandemic Timeline
- Geologic time scale
- Timeline of the Big Bang
- Timeline of Evolution

Project management [edit]

Project management [edit]

Another type of timeline is used for project management. In these cases, timelines are used to help team members to know what milestones need to be achieved and under what time schedule. For example in the case of establishing a project timeline in the implementation phase of the life cycle of a computer system.

Time scale [edit]

Timelines can take use any time scale, depending on the subject and data. Most timelines use a linear scale, where a unit of distance is equal to a set amount of time. This time scale is dependent on the events in the timeline. A timeline of evolution can be over millions of years, whereas a timeline about the September 11, 2001 can take place over minutes. While most timelines use a linear timescale, for very large or small timespans, logarithmic timelines use a logarithmic scale to depict time.

TimeGlider, A Free Web-Based Timeline Software For Creating Project Planning And Much More...

Don't Forget to participate in a contest where you can Win Disk Drill Data Recovery Software For Mac

TimeGlider is a data-driven interactive timeline application built on the (Adobe) Flash platform. You can "grab" the timeline and drag it left and right, and zoom in and out to view centuries at a time or just hours. TimeGlider allows you to create event-spans so that you can see durations and how they overlap. Being web-based, TimeGlider lets you collaborate and share easily.

about the historical (precise) times. You can try the application here without needing to sign up.

TimeGlider interface is draggable and zoomable: navigating TimeGlider is a lot like using familiar applications like Google or Yahoo maps. TimeGlider allows you to show the time span of events, indicated by a band of color. Simply enter the start date and an end date.

Timelines that zoom are tricky: if they are dense with events, they stack up and get cluttered. But with TimeGlider, this can be easily managed by assigning an importance level (from 1 to 100) to each event. As one zooms in, certain things can emerge that weren't visible at a wider scope.

AllofMe Makes Timelines Look Good. Real good.
"There are only so many ways to draw a timeline, as you might suspect. Left to right is generally the way to do it. So one would have to forgive AllofMe for having a very similar likeness to Dipity, a service we reviewed earlier this month, and any others of the same basic design." www.allofme.com/

TimeRime.com - Make, view and compare timelines
http://www.timerime.com
TimeRime.com is an online community that allows people to create, compare and upload information by creating timelines, and to view information uploaded by others.
Information can be uploaded by individuals, as well as companies or (public) institutions.
The subjects of the timelines can be anything which relates to time. For instance, one can create a timeline about ones favorite pop star, or one can create a timeline about a scientific subject, like history.
But also timelines about company histories, individuals as yourself, your favorite summer melodies, your favorite car, all these timelines can be created on TimeRime.com.

xtimeline is a free web-based timeline. Easily create and share timelines with pictures and videos.
When we developed the timeline tool, our friends thought of many ways to creatively use the timeline. Some of them thought the timeline could become a great public service, a resource for history education and for debate over current issues. Others wanted to create biographical timelines for celebrities and their scandalous relationships.
The ability of these timelines to entertain and educate convinced us that other people would enjoy our timeline as much we do. And that's how xtimeline came to have a home of its own.

Mnemograph
http://mnemograph.com/
Mnemograph
A web-based timeline software application for creating, collaborating on, and sharing history and planning diagrams
Mnemograph is a web based application that lets you manage information as a timeline. Mnemograph is both an authoring and a viewing tool. Click the 'mode' button to preview the viewing mode. If you choose to make a timeline "public", a URL will be created for it which you can send to anyone and which they can view (without being able to edit or create events themselves). We'll also be able to give you some html which will let you embed a timeline within another web page.
The origin of our name is Greek. Mnemosyne was the personification of memory in Greek mythology.

xtimeline.com - explore and create free timelines
http://xtimeline.com
xtimeline.com is a free website where you can find timelines about history, biography and more.
You can also create your own timeline using an interactive widget, which you can share and embed. xtimeline also supports RSS feeding and CSV uploads.

Timeline
http://simile.mit.edu/timeline/
Timeline is a DHTML-based AJAXy widget for visualizing time-based events.
It is like Google Maps for time-based information.
There is a live example that you can play with. Pan the timeline by dragging it horizontally.
Timeline is open source software and is licensed under the BSD license.

Sent As: ECOM101@USPTO.GOV
Attachments:

IMPORTANT NOTICE REGARDING YOUR TRADEMARK APPLICATION

Your trademark application (Serial No. 85432026) has been reviewed. The examining attorney assigned by the United States Patent and Trademark Office ("USPTO") has written a letter (an "Office Action") on 11/12/2011 to which you must respond. Please follow these steps:

1. Read the Office letter by clicking on this link OR go to http://tmportal.uspto.gov/external/portal/tow and enter your serial number to access the Office letter.

PLEASE NOTE: The Office letter may not be immediately available but will be viewable within 24 hours of this e-mail notification.

2. Respond within 6 months, calculated from 11/12/2011 (or sooner if specified in the Office letter), using the Trademark Electronic Application System Response to Office Action form. If you have difficulty using the USPTO website, contact TDR@uspto.gov.

3. Contact the examining attorney who reviewed your application with any questions about the content of the office letter:

/Matthew J. McDowell/
Examining Attorney
Law Office 101
United States Patent and Trademark Office

☒	NOTICE OF ABANDONMENT MAILING DATE: Jun 12, 2012

The trademark application identified below was abandoned in full because a response to the Office Action mailed on Nov 12, 2011 was not received within the 6-month response period.

If the delay in filing a response was unintentional, you may file a petition to revive the application with a fee. If the abandonment of this application was due to USPTO error, you may file a request for reinstatement. Please note that a petition to revive or request for reinstatement must be received within two months from the mailing date of this notice.

For additional information, go to http://www.uspto.gov/teas/petinfo.htm. If you are unable to get the information you need from the website, call the Trademark Assistance Center at 1-800-786-9199.
