ORDER ON PLAINTIFF'S MOTION
FOR ATTORNEY FEES UNDER 42 U.S.C. § 406(b)

I. Introduction

Plaintiff Allison S.'s counsel filed the instant motion for attorneys' fees under 42 U.S.C. § 406(b) for her successful representation of Plaintiff in a Social Security disability appeal. [Filing No. 28.] Counsel argues that $19,862.00 is a reasonable attorney fee. The Commissioner contends that this award and its effective hourly rate of $1,749.95 is unreasonable, thus creating a windfall for Plaintiff's counsel. [Filing No. 29.] As discussed below, Plaintiff's motion for attorneys' fees is granted, but at a reduced rate.

II. Background

On September 13, 2017, Plaintiff filed a complaint seeking to reverse the decision of the Commissioner of the Social Security Administration denying her application for Social Security disability benefits. [Filing No. 1.] On April 6, 2018, the parties filed a joint motion to remand [Filing No. 23], which the Court granted [Filing No. 24]. Under the Equal Access to Justice Act, counsel was awarded attorneys' fees in the amount of $2,100. [Filing No 27.]¹ On January 23, 2020, an Administrative Law Judge issued a fully favorable decision without an administrative hearing. [Filing No. 28, at ECF p. 2.] Counsel also notes that Plaintiff "was approved for benefits by the State Agency on a subsequent claim and was awarded benefits. In addition to the EAJA fees, Counsel has been awarded $3,435.43 in attorney fees from the allowance on the subsequent claim." [Filing No. 28, at ECF p. 2.] Counsel later refers to this additional amount as a fee award received under 42 U.S.C. § 406(a). [Filing No. 30, at ECF p. 5.]² On July 24, 2020, counsel filed the instant motion for attorneys' fees pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 406(b) for her federal court representation of Plaintiff in the amount of $19,862. [Filing No. 28.]

III. Discussion

Under 42 U.S.C. § 406(b), a district court may grant "a reasonable fee for such representation, not in excess of 25 percent of the total of the past-due benefits to which the claimant is entitled" as part of a judgment in favor of the claimant in a disability benefit appeal. 42 U.S.C. § 406(b)(1)(A). The Court must review all fee requests under 42 U.S.C. § 406(b). The Court acts "as an independent check, to assure that they yield reasonable results in particular cases." Gisbrecht v. Barnhart, 535 U.S. 789, 796 (2002).

The SSA awarded Plaintiff $79,448 in past-due benefits. [Filing No. 28, at ECF p. 2.] Counsel seeks $19,862, an amount that is equal to 25 percent of the total past-due benefits. [Filing No. 28.] Counsel argues that her fee request is reasonable because: (1) of the contingent fee agreement she had with Plaintiff; (2) the requested fee is less than a typical contingent recovery fee; (3) she dedicated a total of 42.75 hours to Plaintiff's case at the federal and administrative levels; and (4) the requested fee results in a hypothetical hourly rate of $464.61, which is well within the range typically approved in this circuit. [Filing No. 28 at ECF p. 3-4.]

² Counsel claims that she would also refund this award if her pending 406(b) motion is granted. [Filing No. 28, at ECF p. 5.]

The Commissioner opposes counsel's request for this amount. [Filing No. 29, at ECF p. 2.]

While the Commissioner acknowledges that 25 percent of Plaintiff's past-due benefits equates to the amount sought by counsel, the Commissioner believes the amount requested results in an unreasonably high hourly fee. The Court addresses each of these arguments in turn.

(1) The contingency fee agreement

Plaintiff's counsel contends that she had a contingency fee agreement with Plaintiff, which reflects a substantial risk of loss for both Plaintiff and counsel. [Filing No. 28, at ECF p. 3.] Plaintiff contracted to provide counsel with the statutory maximum of 25 percent of past-due benefits. [Filing No. 28.] Counsel's request for fees aligns with that contingency agreement, and the contingency agreement is within the parameters set forth in 42 U.S.C. § 406(b). Still, the Court must review the outcome of any contingency fee agreement as an independent check for its reasonableness. Gisbrecht, 535 U.S. 789, 796 \(2002\).

(2) Less than typical fee

Counsel for Plaintiff argues that the requested fee is reasonable because it is less than a typical contingent recovery fee, such as in personal injury cases. [Filing No. 28, at ECF p. 4.] This argument is irrelevant. Rather, the issue is the reasonableness of the underlying fee agreement, as discussed further below. Gisbrecht, 535 U.S. 808 \(2002\).

(3) Hours at federal vs. administrative levels

Plaintiff's counsel contends that the requested fee reflects the time spent on Plaintiff's case. Counsel certifies that she spent 42.75 hours in total on Plaintiff's case. [Filing No. 28, at ECF p. 4.] In support, counsel provided two records of her time. The first record covers counsel's work at the administrative level, where she spent 31.40 hours on Plaintiff's case.

[Filing No. 28-1, at ECF p. 8.] The second record totals 11.35 hours and appears to cover work performed at the federal level. [Filing No. 28-1, at ECF p. 9.] As the Commissioner notes, a § 406(b) motion limits an attorney to compensation for time worked at the federal level. See Culbertson v. Berryhill, ___ U.S. ___, 139 S. Ct. 517, 522 (2019) ("As presently written, the Social Security Act discretely addresses attorney's fees for the administrative and judicial-review stages: § 406(a) governs fees for representation in administrative proceedings; § 406(b) controls fees for representation in court.") (internal citations quotation marks omitted). Accordingly, the Court's focus is on the number of federal hours counsel spent on Plaintiff's case: 11.35. When dividing 25 percent of Plaintiff's past-due benefits, $19,862, by the amount of time counsel spent, 11.35 hours, the effective hourly rate would be $1,749.95.

(4) Reasonableness of fee

Plaintiff's counsel argues that the rate—whether it be $464.61 or $1,749.95—is reasonable. As stated above, the Court's role is to serve as an independent check on behalf of the claimant to ensure that fee requests are reasonable. Gisbrecht, 535 U.S. at 796. Moreover, the district court is to consider the following factors in making a reasonableness determination: (1) the quality of the representation; (2) the results achieved; (3) any delay caused by the attorney that results in the accumulation of benefits during the pendency of the case in court; and (4) whether the benefits are large in comparison to the time the attorney spent on the case. Id. at 808.

The first three factors set out in Gisbrecht, are not at issue here. Plaintiff's counsel achieved the results of the representation and the delays were minimal. The fourth factor, whether the benefits are large in comparison to the time the attorney spent on the case, dooms counsel's argument that the requested fee is reasonable.

As stated above, counsel's effective hourly rate would be $1,745.95. This is excessive. This hourly rate "calls into question the bounds of reasonableness in this district." Cynthia L. v. Saul, No. 1:17-cv-02192-JMS-TAB, 2019 WL 10060470, at *4 \(S.D. Ind. Sept. 20, 2019\). This Court has found that § 406(b) fee awards equivalent to hourly rates ranging from $400 to $600 are reasonable. See, e.g., Misty R. v. Saul, No. 1:18-cv-03277-TAB-TWP, 2020 WL 6785382, at *2-3 \(S.D. Ind. Nov. 18, 2020\) (approving an award at a reduced rate of $600); Taylor v. Berryhill, No. 1:16-cv-03474-MJD-JMS, 2018 WL 4932042, at *1-2 \(S.D. Ind. Oct. 10, 2018\) (approving an award equivalent to an hourly rate of $377.03); Cynthia L. v. Saul, No. 1:17-cv-02192-JMS-TAB, 2019 WL 10060470, at *4 (approving an award equivalent to an hourly rate of $604.80); Additionally, the Commissioner concedes that $600 would be reasonable in light of other decisions in this district. [Filing No. 29.]³ For the reasons set forth above, the Court in its discretion, finds $600 to be a reasonable fee for the time counsel spent on this case at the federal level. See also, Zimmerman v. Astrue, No. 1:08-cv-00228, 2011 WL 5980086, at *3 \(N.D. Ind. Nov. 29, 2011\) (approving an award equivalent to an hourly rate of $410); Duke v. Astrue, No. 1:07-cv-00118, 2010 WL 3522572, at *3-4 \(N.D. Ind. Aug. 30, 2010\) (approving award equivalent to an hourly rate of $549.14); Schimpf v. Astrue, No. 1:06-cv-00018, 2008 WL 4614658, at *3 \(N.D. Ind. Oct. 16, 2008\) (approving award equivalent to an hourly rate of $583.50) . Accordingly, multiplying the amount of time counsel spent on Plaintiff's case at the federal level (11.35 hours) by the more reasonable hourly rate of $600, counsel is entitled to a § 406(b) fee award of $6,810.

As noted above, counsel states that she is willing to refund both the prior EAJA fee award ($2,100) and a prior award she received under 42 U.S.C. § 406(a) ($3,435.43). [Filing No. 28, at ECF p. 5.] While counsel must refund the EAJA fees, she need not refund the § 406(a) award since this award is independent from a § 406(b) award. See Culbertson, ___ U.S. at ___, 139 S. Ct. at 522 ("As an initial matter, subsections (a) and (b) address different stages of the representation. Section 406(a) addresses fees for representation before the Commissioner, whereas § 406(b) addresses fees for representation in court. Because some claimants will prevail before the agency and have no need to bring a court action, it is unsurprising that the statute contemplates separate fees for each stage of representation. These subsections also calculate fees differently. . . . [T]he structure of the statute confirms that § 406(b) caps only court representation fees." (Internal quotation marks omitted)).

IV. Conclusion

For the reasons set forth above, the Court grants Plaintiff's § 406(b) motion for attorneys' fees, but at a reduced rate of $600 per hour. [Filing No. 28.] Therefore, counsel is entitled to $6,810 in attorneys' fees for the 11.35 hours. The Commissioner is ordered to pay the amount from Plaintiff's past-due benefits directly to counsel. At that time, counsel should refund Plaintiff the $2,100 previously awarded EAJA fees.
