<sup>3</sup> This toxic-tort case arises out of the Deepwater Horizon oil spill that occurred on April 20, 2010. McKay filed this suit in 2017, alleging that toxic exposures from the oil spill, oil-spill response, or cleanup caused her to develop medical conditions, including headaches, dizziness, stomach issues, seizure, memory loss, and anxiety. R. Doc. 1-1 at 5. McKay’s case, which was originally part of the multidistrict litigation (“MDL”) arising out of the Deepwater Horizon incident and known as a “B3” case, was severed from the MDL and ultimately reallocated to this section of court. R. Docs. 8; 9; 10; 29; 46. On November 2, 2021, this Court entered a scheduling order that set November 24, 2022, as McKay’s expert disclosure deadline. R. Doc. 41 at 1. To date, McKay has not designated any experts. R. Doc. 50-3 at 2-3. A B3 plaintiff must prove that exposure to oil, a chemical, or other substance legally caused his or her physical condition. Generally, ““when the conclusion regarding medical causation is not one within common knowledge, expert medical testimony is required to prove causation.”” Cibilic v. BP Expl. & Prod., 2017 WL 1064954, at *2 (E.D. La. Mar. 21, 2017) (quoting Lassiegnie v. Taco Bell Corp., 202 F. Supp. 2d 512, 524 (E.D. La. 2002)). Expert testimony is required to establish causation in toxic-tort cases where “[s]cientific knowledge of the harmful level of exposure to a chemical, plus knowledge that the plaintiff was exposed to such quantities, are minimal facts necessary to sustain the plaintiffs’ burden” of proof. Seaman v. Seacor Marine L.L.C., 326 F. App’x 721, 723 (5th Cir. 2009) (quoting Allen v. Pa. Eng’g Corp., 102 F.3d 194, 199 (5th Cir. 1996)). Because she did not
