Michael,

Given that plaintiff is represented by approximately 8 attorneys of record, we find it difficult to understand why a "conflict" should exist for every day at the end of September, and all but 2 days in the month of October. It would seem that someone would be available to defend this deposition. Nonetheless, we will take the deposition on October 19. However, under the circumstances we assume that plaintiff's counsel is too busy to take any of it's intended depositions before October 28.

Counsel,

We received the Notice of Deposition of Jayme Gordon. We have a conflict on the proposed September 22 date. Mr. Gordon can sit for deposition on either October 19 or October 28. Please let us know if either date is acceptable as soon as possible. We'd like to get a date on the calendar before other conflicts arise.

In reviewing Defendants' List of Proposed Deponents, we note that you have included depositions of The Jayme Gordon Company and Small World Enterprises under Rule 30(b)(6). These are not legal entities but rather names under which Mr. Gordon conducted his business as a sole proprietorship. As a result, there is no entity to depose under Rule 30(b)(6). We wanted to bring this to your attention so that you can prepare appropriately for Mr. Gordon's deposition.

Best regards,

Mike
