APPLE, INC.,)

CLASS ACTION COMPLAINT

Plaintiffs Adam Christensen, Jeffrey Scolnick, and William Farrell (collectively, “Plaintiffs”), individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated, by and through their counsel, bring this Class Action Complaint against Defendant Apple, Inc. (“Defendant” or “Apple”). Plaintiffs, on their own behalf and on behalf of a class of similarly situated individuals, allege as follows upon personal knowledge as to themselves and their own acts and experiences, and, as to all other matters, upon information and belief, including investigation conducted by their attorneys.

I. NATURE OF THE ACTION

1. Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93 § 105(a) addresses and prevents the misuse and improper collection of personal identification information by retailers, and recognizes that there is no legitimate need to obtain such personal information from credit card customers except to the extent it is strictly necessary to complete the transaction.

2. Specifically, Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93 § 105(a) states that:

No person, firm, partnership, corporation or other business entity that accepts a credit card for a business transaction shall write, cause to be written or require that a credit card holder write personal identification information, not required by the credit card issuer, on the credit card transaction form. Personal identification information shall include, but shall not be limited to, a credit card holder's address or telephone number.

3. This action arises from Apple's violation of Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93 § 105(a) through its practice of requiring, as a condition of using a credit card to make a purchase, Plaintiffs' and the Class members' personal identification information, specifically their ZIP codes. This conduct constitutes violations of Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93A § 9.

4. Accordingly, Plaintiffs bring this action on behalf of the below-defined Class and seek statutory damages pursuant to Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93A § 9, double or treble damages pursuant to Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93A § 9, injunctive relief; and costs and attorneys' fees.

II. JURISDICTION AND VENUE

5. This Court has original jurisdiction pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(2). In the aggregate, Plaintiffs' claims and the claims of the other members of the Class exceed $5,000,000 exclusive of interest and costs, and there are numerous class members who are citizens of states other than Apple's respective states of citizenship.

6. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Apple because this action arises from Apple's transaction of business in Massachusetts. This Court also has personal jurisdiction over Apple because, at all relevant times, Apple was registered to do business in the State of Massachusetts and is therefore subject to general jurisdiction in this State.

7. Venue is proper in this District pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b)(1), (2) and 1391(c) as: Apple is deemed to reside in this District because it is subject to personal jurisdiction here; a substantial part of the events and/or omissions giving rise to the claims emanated from activities within this District; and Apple conducts substantial business in this District.

III. PARTIES

Plaintiffs

8. Adam Christensen is a natural person and citizen of the State of Massachusetts.
9. Jeffrey Scolnick is a natural person and citizen of the State of Massachusetts.
10. William Farrell is a natural person and is a citizen of the State of California.

Defendant

11. Apple is a corporation incorporated and existing under the laws of the state of California with its headquarters located at 1 Infinite Loop, Cupertino, CA 95014. Apple conducts business throughout the United States and Massachusetts.

IV. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Apple's Unlawful Collection of PII

12. Plaintiff Adam Christensen shopped for and purchased items at an Apple retail store location in Chestnut Hill, Massachusetts on July 10, 2012, and Peabody, Massachusetts on February 18, 2013, again on February 18, 2013, and March 11, 2013.

13. Plaintiff Jeffrey Scolnick shopped for and purchased items at an Apple retail store location in Natick, Massachusetts on September 20, 2012, September 21, 2012, and November 2, 2012.

14. Plaintiff William Farrell shopped for and purchased items at an Apple retail store location in Dedham, Massachusetts on November 25, 2012.

15. To consummate each purchase, Plaintiffs elected to use their credit card as their chosen form of payment.

16. As a condition of using their credit cards, Plaintiffs were required by Apple to enter personal identification information associated with the credit card, including their full and complete zip codes. Apple would not allow Plaintiff to complete their purchases without supplying such information.

17. Apple is not required by credit card issuers to require this information from consumers.

18. Apple recorded Plaintiffs' zip code into an electronic credit card transaction form. Apple continues to store Plaintiffs' personal identification information, including Plaintiffs' names, zip codes, and credit card numbers, in its databases.

19. The Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts has determined that a zip code constitutes personal identification information ("PII") within the meaning of Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93 § 105(a). See Tyler v. Michaels Stores, Inc., 2013 Mass. LEXIS 40 (2013).

Apple Sells Consumers' PII for profit

20. Apple's website states that Apple sells consumers' PII – including Plaintiffss and the Class' PII – to third-parties for profit:

At times Apple may make certain personal information available to strategic partners that work with Apple to provide products and services, or that help Apple market to customers.

APPLE'S PRIVACY POLICY, <http://www.apple.com/privacy/> (last visited January 14, 2014).

Consumers Place a High Value on Their PII

21. At a Federal Trade Commission ("FTC") public workshop in 2001, then-Commissioner Orson Swindle described the value of a consumer's personal information as follows:

The use of third party information from public records, information aggregators and even competitors for marketing has become a major facilitator of our retail economy. Even [Federal Reserve] Chairman [Alan]

Greenspan suggested here some time ago that it's something on the order of the life blood, the free flow of information.¹

22. Though Commissioner's Swindle's remarks are more than a decade old, they are even more relevant today, as consumers' personal data functions as a "new form of currency" that supports a $26 billion per year online advertising industry in the United States.²

23. The FTC has also recognized that consumer data is a new – and valuable – form of currency. In a recent FTC roundtable presentation, another former Commissioner, Pamela Jones Harbour, underscored this point by observing:

Most consumers cannot begin to comprehend the types and amount of information collected by businesses, or why their information may be commercially valuable. Data is currency. The larger the data set, the greater potential for analysis – and profit.³

24. Recognizing the high value that consumers place on their PII, many companies now offer consumers an opportunity to sell this information to advertisers and other third parties. The idea is to give consumers more power and control over the type of information that they share – and who ultimately receives that information. And by making the transaction transparent, consumers will make a profit from the surrender of their PII.⁴ This business has created a new market for the sale and purchase of this valuable data.⁵

25. In fact, consumers not only place a high value on their PII, but also place a high value on the privacy of this data. Thus, the question is not whether consumers value such privacy; the question is “how much [consumers] value” that privacy.⁶

26. Researchers have already begun to shed light on how much consumers value their data privacy – and the amount is considerable. Indeed, studies confirm that “when [retailers’] privacy information is made more salient and accessible, some consumers are willing to pay a premium to purchase from privacy protective websites.”⁷

27. Consumers thus value their personal data highly, and place an economic value on the privacy of that data. In fact, when consumers were surveyed as to how much they valued their personal data in terms of its protection against improper access and unauthorized secondary use – two concerns at issue here – they valued the restriction of improper access to their data at between $11.33 and $16.58 per website, and prohibiting secondary use to between $7.98 and $11.68 per website.⁸

V. CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

28. Plaintiff brings Count I, as set forth below, on behalf of himself and as a class action, pursuant to the provisions of Rules 23(a), (b)(2), and (b)(3) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure on behalf of a class defined as

All persons from whom Apple requested and recorded personal identification information in conjunction with a credit card transaction occurring in Massachusetts (the “Class”).

Excluded from the Class are Apple and its subsidiaries and affiliates; all persons who make a timely election to be excluded from the Class; governmental entities; and the judge to whom this case is assigned and any immediate family members thereof

29. Certification of Plaintiffs’ claims for classwide treatment is appropriate because Plaintiffs can prove the elements of his claims on a classwide basis using the same evidence as would be used to prove those elements in individual actions alleging the same claims.

30. Numerosity – Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(a)(1). The members of the class are so numerous that individual joinder of all Class members is impracticable. On information and belief, there are thousands of consumers who have been affected by Apple’s wrongful conduct. The precise number of the Class members and their addresses is presently unknown to Plaintiffs, but may be ascertained from Apple’s books and records. Class members may be notified of the pendency of this action by recognized, Court-approved notice dissemination methods, which may include U.S. mail, electronic mail, Internet postings, and/or published notice.

31. Commonality and Predominance – Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(a)(2) and 23(b)(3). This action involves common questions of law and fact, which predominate over any questions affecting individual Class members, including, without limitation:

- a. whether Apple engaged in the conduct as alleged herein;

- b. whether Apple's conduct constitutes violations of Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93 § 105(a) and Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93A § 9;
- c. whether Plaintiffs and the other Class members are entitled to statutory, or other forms of damages, and other monetary relief and, if so, in what amount(s); and
- d. whether Plaintiffs and other Class members are entitled to equitable relief, including but not limited to injunctive relief and restitution.

32. Typicality – Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(a)(3). Plaintiffs' claims are typical of the other Class members' claims because, among other things, all Class members were comparably injured through the uniform misconduct described above.

33. Adequacy of Representation – Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(a)(4). Plaintiffs are adequate representatives of the Class because their interests do not conflict with the interests of the other Class members they seek to represent; they have retained counsel competent and experienced in complex class action litigation; and Plaintiffs intend to prosecute this action vigorously. The Class members' interests will be fairly and adequately protected by Plaintiffs and their counsel.

34. Declaratory and Injunctive Relief – Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(b)(2). Apple has acted or refused to act on grounds generally applicable to Plaintiffs and the other Class members, thereby making appropriate final injunctive relief and declaratory relief, as described below, with respect to Class members as a whole.

35. Superiority – Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(b)(3). A class action is superior to any other available means for the fair and efficient adjudication of this controversy, and no unusual difficulties are likely to be encountered in the management of this class action. The damages or other financial detriment suffered by Plaintiffs and the other Class members are relatively small compared to the burden and expense that would be required to individually litigate their claims against Apple, so it would be impracticable for Class members to individually seek redress from Apple's wrongful conduct. Even if Class members could afford individual litigation, the court system could not. Individualized litigation creates a potential for inconsistent or contradictory judgments, and increases the delay and expense to all parties and the court system. By contrast, the class action device presents far fewer management difficulties, and provides the benefits of single adjudication, economy of scale, and comprehensive supervision by a single court.

VI. CLAIMS ALLEGED

COUNT I

Violation of Massachusetts Unfair Trade Practices Act Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 93A (On behalf of Plaintiff and the Class)

36. Plaintiffs incorporate the foregoing allegations as if fully set forth herein.

37. Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93 § 105(a) provides:

No person, firm, partnership, corporation or other business entity that accepts a credit card for a business transaction shall write, cause to be written or require that a credit card holder write personal identification information, not required by the credit card issuer, on the credit card transaction form. Personal identification information shall include, but shall not be limited to, a credit card holder's address or telephone number.

38. Apple is a corporation that accepts credit cards for retail transactions.

39. Through the practices detailed above, Apple has violated, and continues to violate, Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93 § 105.

40. Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 93 § 105(c) provides that: "Any violation of the provisions of this chapter shall be deemed to be an unfair and deceptive trade practice, as defined in section 2 of chapter 93A."

41. Accordingly, Apple's violations of Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93 § 105 constitute unfair and deceptive trade practices within the meaning of Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93A § 2.

42. Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93A § 9 provides:

Any person ... who has been injured by another person's use or employment of any method, act or practice declared to be unlawful by section two ... may bring an action in the superior court ... for damages and such equitable relief, including an injunction, as the court deems to be necessary and proper Any persons entitled to bring such action may, if the use or employment of the unfair or deceptive act or practice has caused similar injury to numerous other persons similarly situated and if the court finds in a preliminary hearing that he adequately and fairly represents such other persons, bring the action on behalf of himself and such other similarly injured and situated persons.

43. Plaintiffs and the members of the Class have been injured by Apple's collection of their zip codes in connection with their credit card transactions and resultant violations of Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93A § 9.

44. First, Plaintiffs and the Class have been injured because they have received unwanted marketing materials from Apple as a result of having provided their zip codes when using credit cards at Apple. Second, Plaintiffs and the Class have been injured by Apple's sale of Plaintiffs' and the Class' PII to third-parties, which was collected by Apple in violation of Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 93 § 105(c). And third, Plaintiffs and the Class have been injured because Apple misappropriated their economically valuable PII without consideration.

45. More than 30 days prior to filing suit, Plaintiffs made a pre-suit demand pursuant to Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93A § 9(3) (the "93A Demand"), in which Plaintiffs sought: class-wide relief limited to statutory damages of $25 pursuant to Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93A § 9, for each violation of Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93 § 105; injunctive relief; and reasonable attorneys' fees and costs. Apple did not accept the terms of this demand. A true and correct copy of the 93A Demand is attached here as Exhibit A.

46. Apple's failure to accept the terms of this demand was made in bad faith, because Apple has knowledge or reason to know that the practice complained of does, in fact, violate Mass.

Gen Laws ch. 93 § 105 and Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93A § 9, and that Plaintiffs and the Class are entitled to the relief demanded as a matter of law.

47. Accordingly, Plaintiffs and the Class are entitled to double or treble damages as a result of Apple's bad faith violations of Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93A § 9.

VII. REQUEST FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs, individually and on behalf of the Class, requests that the Court enter an order and judgment in her favor and against Apple as follows:

- a. Certification of the proposed Class pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 23(a), (b)(2) and (b)(3);
- b. Designation of Plaintiffs as representative of the propose Class and designation of Plaintiff's counsel as Class Counsel;
- c. Declaration that Defendant's actions, as described herein, violate Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93 § 105 and Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93A § 9;
- d. Awarding statutory damages of $25 pursuant to Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93A § 9, for each violation of Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93 § 105;
- e. Doubling or trebling damages pursuant to Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93A § 9;
- f. Enjoining Defendant's continued violations of Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93 § 105, pursuant to Mass. Gen Laws ch. 93A § 9;
- g. Awarding Plaintiffs and the Class their reasonable litigation expenses and attorneys' fees;
- h. Awarding Plaintiffs and the Class pre- and post-judgment interest; and
- i. Such other and further relief as may be just and proper.
