Q. "Permanent download" shall mean the delivery of a digital audio file to an end user's computer where such recording may be accessed by the end user without the limits set forth in a conditional download.

R. "Conditional download" shall mean the delivery of a digital audio file to an end user's computer, with certain limits imposed on the end user's ability to enjoy the sound recording, e.g., the recording may only be accessed for a certain number of plays, or for so long as the consumer continues subscribing to a particular music service. This definition includes Limited Download as that term is defined on the document produced in this action bates stamped AFT 0056512.

S. "Streaming" shall mean the transmission of a digital audio file by means of an internet transmission that is substantially contemporaneous with the audible rendering of such sound recording to the end user using a technology that is not designed to result in a reproduction of the sound recording that would be usable without simultaneous, active connection to the digital transmission source or after the cessation of the transmission, other than a transitory reproduction required to render such contemporaneous performance.

T. "Mastertone" shall mean a digital audio file formatted for playback on wireless devices capable of voice communications or text messaging including but not limited to cellular telephones, personal digital assistants, and pagers.

U. "Digital Music Provider" refers to any and all entities including, but not limited to, iTunes, Buy.com, Napster, Rhapsody, iMeem, and Nokia, among others, that reproduce, sell and/or distribute master recordings for digital uses, including but not limited to digital download, digital streaming, and mastertones.

V. "Digital Use" shall include Permanent downloads, Conditional downloads, Streaming, Mastertones, and any other format of digital audio files used by a Digital Music Provider to reproduce, sell and/or distribute master recordings.

II. SUBJECT MATTERS UPON WHICH DEPONENT WILL BE REQUIRED TO TESTIFY

1. The identity of any agreements for permanent download in which the Digital Music Provider is responsible for obtaining mechanical licenses and/or paying mechanical royalties to music publishers, and the reason why they have that responsibility in those agreements.

2. Whether the mechanical license signed by Joel Martin for the song "Lose Yourself" was ever countersigned by UMG, or otherwise approved, and whether it is now in effect.

3. Why separate publishing licenses for Digital Uses were sent by UMG to plaintiffs and/or Joel Martin and anybody else to whom such licenses for Digital uses were sent who also were covered by controlled composition clauses in agreements.

4. The author of the October 11, 2002 letter, produced in this action by plaintiffs and bates stamped 8M – 0015, signed by Chad Gary, which provides that UMG hopes that the publisher will execute separate permanent digital download agreements, and why such letter was sent.

5. Any objections voiced by Joel Martin to the signing of licenses for Digital Uses, and the decisions made by UMG in light of those objections.

6. The sending of licenses for Digital Uses to The Harry Fox Company.

7. Any communications with Apple regarding Joel Martin's cease and desist letter or any objections made by Mr. Martin regarding the Eminem songs being made available for permanent download.

8. The publishing accounting statements regarding the Eminem compositions, and why the statements only reflect "digital tracks" and not specific information broken down by category of Digital Use (such as permanent download, conditional download, streaming, etc.), as well as whether any changes were made to the information such publishing statements contained about Digital Uses and why.

9. Whether any UMG, Interscope or Aftermath artists have signed separate agreements allowing their songs to appear on iTunes or the services of other Digital Music Providers, the identity of such artists, why UMG allowed them to do so, and whether the Digital Music Providers account directly to them.

10. The identity of artists who have negotiated separate digital download royalty provisions with UMG, Interscope, or Aftermath, or have negotiated whether their songs will be allowed on iTunes or the services of other Digital Music Providers, and whether such negotiations are part of "high end" recording agreements.
