1 this document, what we see here?

2 MS. RAHNE Objection, asked and answered.

3 I think he responded to my question the same way, but 4 you're happy to do it again -- or I'm welcome to have 5 you do it again.

6 THE WITNESS Okay.

7 BY MR. WEBER:

8 Q Yeah, so she's making a comment for the judge's 9 benefit later on.

10 For purp -- our purposes --

11 A Okay.

12 Q -- explain to the jury what we see here in Exhibit 13 195.

14 A Okay. So this is an e-mail that I -- I received an 15 e-mail from one of my direct reports, Harald 16 Schmiedel, in early October 2007 relating to an 17 interview that Greg LeMond gave to Tour magazine.
18 The interview was published early in September 2007.

19 And the second part is an e-mail from 20 me forwarding Harold's e-mail but also commenting 21 from myself to John Burke. It was to me, I think.
22 I'm sorry. I've got to read the dates again.

23 October 9th, same day. The comment I made to John 24 obviously where I said that I thought, whilst I had 25 great respect for Greg and his achievements in the 1 sport, I would say that Greg was one of my heroes

2 when I was a young guy in the cycle -- cycling 3 business. I followed his tour wins in the -- in the 4 late '80s very closely.

5 Whilst I had respect for what he had 6 achieved there, I thought commercially he was an 7 idiot, because his comments in Tour magazine, his 8 response to that particular question was very 9 damaging to his reputation and Trek's reputation, 10 mostly because you have to understand at this time of 11 year what -- what we're trying to do.

12 It's a very focused period in the year
13 from the late part of August, very end of August, 14 through till the middle of October where we are 15 trying to sell our product in for the following 16 season. We're trying to get the dealers to buy the 17 bikes basically and commit to selling the brand and 18 commit to selling the line of bicycles for the 19 following year right through until the summer of 2008 20 would be the case here.

21 So we had spent considerable efforts
22 preparing for a big trade show, Euro-Bike. We had 23 spent considerable efforts preparing for house shows, 24 getting the LeMond bikes on show, making sure we had 25 the required marketing materials to support the sale,

1 training our salespeople on the technology that we 2 were offering. We did all these things. We put it 3 all on -- in front of the dealers, and then this 4 article comes out in Tour magazine with Greg making a 5 statement that basically undermines the relationship 6 between Trek and LeMond.

7 And from our perspective, we saw that 8 as very damaging, because what happens in that 9 situation is the dealers get this feeling of 10 uncertainty. They -- they don't like uncertainty, 11 dealers. They like things to be very simple and 12 straightforward. They are straightforward people.
13 They buy bikes. They sell bikes. They get behind 14 the brand. They don't want to have something going 15 on that they don't know what's going to come down the 16 road six months from now.

17 And my salespeople were very 18 frustrated that they spent time talking about this 19 issue instead of selling the bikes. Harald Schmiedel 20 was extremely frustrated having spent, you know, days
21 in front of dealers selling Trek bikes, LeMond bikes, 22 Fischer bikes to have part of his time, which is 23 fairly short with each dealer, highjacked by a 24 conversation about what Greg had said in Tour 25 magazine. And from my perspective, it was very 1           damaging. And that's why I sent the -- the note to 2           John, because I was -- I was, you know, expressing 3           the frustration of my organization.

4       Q    Is there some connection between Tour magazine and 5       Euro-Bike? Is there some overlap between the two?

6       A    No connection other than the fact that this 7       particular issue is the issue that is published to 8       coincide with the show. The show runs four days. It 9       drops on the doormat the day the show opens.

10                    So that's -- that's the -- it's the 11       one that Tour magazine would be at the show selling 12       or giving out -- you have people reading it having 13       just received it, so that's the connection really.
14       But no -- no commercial connection.

15       Q    All right. But it is a -- do I understand it to be 16       then an edition that's geared specifically for 17       attendees at Euro-Bike?

18       A    Yes.

19       Q    And describe for the jury a little bit about 20       Euro-Bike. How does it work? Is Trek the only 21       company there? Are your competitors there? How does 22       it happen?

23       A    Euro-Bike is probably now the largest show in the 24       world for bicycle products, high-end sport part of 25       the market. So all of the major companies would be

1 at that show. I can't even begin to tell you how 2 many companies there are there.

3 But every major manufacturer would be 4 introducing their 2008 product line at this show. We 5 were one of, oh, I don't know, I guess at least 100 6 companies selling high-end road bikes in that 7 business.

8 Typically dealers come to our booth,
9 which is about 600 square meters of product. It's 10 quite a big space, but typically they would come and 11 spend anything -- depending on how committed they 12 were to the -- the Trek family of brands, 30 -- 30
13 minutes to 90 minutes on our booth. So we have a 14 very limited time, or our salespeople have a very 15 limited time to get the job done.

16 They -- you know, they're talking
17 about a huge range of products, both Trek, both 18 LeMond, Fischer, Diamante, our after-market program, 19 business in general. They really don't have a lot of 20 time, and if -- if an issue that is really irrelevant 21 as far as selling the stuff goes, comes up and 22 highjacks 10, 15 minutes of their time, then they get 23 pretty frustrated, and that comes out in their 24 actions. And it reflects in our business, and it 25 damages our opportunity to sell the product.

1 Q Okay. Now, you mentioned that this is -- did you say
2 it's a German language magazine, Tour?

3 A It is German language magazine, yes.

4 Q Did you have follow-up house events in Germany after 5 Euro-Bike?

6 A Yeah. We would have house shows in Germany where we 7 would get to spend a bit more time with each dealer 8 and we would be able to focus specifically on their 9 order. So our -- our goal at the house shows is -- 10 I'm -- let's back up.

11 Our goal at the Euro-Bike show is to 12 present the product and get the dealer excited about 13 new stuff. Our goal at a house show is to 14 specifically get, I need three of those bikes in size 15 15 inch in blue, a detailed order. So that -- that's 16 the difference between the two. The dealer would 17 spend a lot more time with us at the house show.

18 But again, if that -- that house show
19 experience gets further hijacked by a conversation 20 about Greg's comments in Tour magazine, then that's 21 wasted time. Now, if you --

22 Q And is it your understanding that, in fact, in these 23 German house shows thereafter that the issues that 24 were raised in Tour magazine did hijack part of the 25 conversations?

1 A It definitely continued. I mean, the timing I think 2 is important here, because you see this message came 3 in October, which is sometime after the -- the 4 Euro-Bike show. It would have been during the German 5 dealer house shows, and it would have been the result 6 of the -- you know, we were starting to see the 7 impact of dealers not buying LeMond bikes or not 8 wanting to sign up again for the LeMond line in 2008.
9 And, you know, I think it's -- it's clear that from 10 the timing of the message that it prevailed for more 11 than just a couple hours.

12 Q All right. Were you aware at that time that from 13 time to time in years past Mr. LeMond had raised the 14 idea of, gee, I'd like to see more LeMond-branded 15 bikes sold in Europe?

16 A Yes.

17 Q And was this Euro-Bike effort and the house show 18 efforts an effort you and your team were making to 19 bring about that resolve?

20 A Definitely. I mean this is the start -- I think I 21 said earlier in answer to a question before that it
22 starts here. You have to get the dealers on board 23 with the brand, with the product, and if you don't do 24 that, you will -- you can do no -- no -- an endless 25 amount of consumer marketing subsequently; if you
