EXAMINATION

BY MR. WEBER:

Q Counsel had shown you some pages in the PowerPoint.

A Mm-hmm.

Q And -- and --

A Yes.

Q -- let me just go back to a few of these. If you'd turn several pages from the end, there's a reference there to "Early 2006. Trek revamps the LeMond product line -- Great Product."

A Okay.

Q Do you see that? All right. Tell us what happened in 2006 with respect to the LeMond product line, flying dealers to Waterloo, the marketing campaign, Tour de Georgia, etc.

A 2006 was -- I think it was a milestone year for LeMond because we -- we, saying because I was -- I was living the LeMond brand. That's -- that's what I did every day was come in and work on LeMond and Fischer.

And it was -- LeMond had -- was introducing better product than Trek had in the marketplace. It had an industry-leading carbon product that when we launched to our dealers, they were very, very excited about it. We flew in 100

1 appearances or whatever the contract says, but beyond
2 that I'm not healthy. I can't do promotions for the 3 brand. Please don't call. Don't ask."

4 And then also during that time frame
5 it was in my best interest or the company's best 6 interest to not have Greg in the public as well. The 7 old adage that, you know, there's no such thing as 8 bad press. In this case there were -- it was very 9 detrimental to have -- to give any editor access to 10 Greg because I never had -- I never knew what Greg 11 was going to say, and the chances are that it not 12 being positive was far too great for me to be able to 13 use the media as an outlet that I could use as my -- 14 in a marketing strategy.

15 Q From time to time over the relationship Greg made
16 remarks that were reported in the press that caused 17 some controversy.

18 A Mm-hmm.

19 Q Did you -- as part of your job do you deal with 20 dealers on an ongoing basis?

21 A I do. They -- they know that I was the marketing
22 manager for LeMond, and I have built relationships
23 with a vast majority of our dealers over my 18 years
24 at Trek.

25 Q And as I understand your distribution channels,

1 correct me if I'm wrong, but Trek needs to get
2 dealers to agree to carry a certain line, right?

3 A Our -- our -- our strategy as a company is -- and I 4 think it's worked -- is that our number one goal is 5 to take care of the dealer. When somebody walks into 6 a bike shop that -- to buy a bike, they don't know
7 what they're going to leave with. They're relying on 8 the expertise of the bike shop and the bike shop
9 personnel. And the bike shop is going to sell what 10 they have on their sales floor.

11 So really my fate is -- my fate or 12 Trek's fate is 100 percent in the hands of the person
13 who runs and buys bikes for the bike shop.

14 Q Okay. As controversies would be reported involving 15 Mr. LeMond, did it make it easier, harder, or no
16 effect in terms of your ability to work with dealers
17 and get them excited and enthused about the LeMond
18 brand of road bikes?

19 A Well, let me give you an example. The -- the average 20 bike shop owner is -- has -- has mortgaged their 21 home, their retirement, all of their savings to live
22 this dream of owning a bike shop. And rightly so,
23 they are nervous as they can be about what they bring 24 into their shop and what -- what they're carrying for 25 inventory. They want to carry whatever is the

1       easiest story to tell and whatever they are going to 2       be able to sell as quick as possible with the least
3       amount of discussion or overcoming objections.
4       Actually, in our -- in our training materials we list
5       them, here's how to overcome objections to common
6       misperceptions about our bikes.

7               And when the press and, I mean, the -- 8       the comments or the dispute between Lance Armstrong
9       and Greg LeMond became public, the conversation
10      turned at the dealer level from, let's talk about the 11      designs or the technology of the bike, it turned 12      into, why is Greg saying that? Or what about this 13      relationship between these two? And just put more
14      and more doubt into the minds of our retailers.

15             And think about the sales call. If -- 16      if the dealer has any doubt, it's easy for him to 17      say, you know what, I'm going to hold on buying more 18      LeMonds this time around when the sales rep comes in.
19      Tomorrow or the next day the Orbea rep comes in. And 20      the guy's going, you know what? I just passed on 21      LeMonds, I should probably bring in a couple more
22      Orbeas to fill in that hole. And all of a sudden 23      my -- a month later when my rep goes back in there,
24      he's going to have the conversation again about 25      kicking Orbea back out instead of filling in with

1 more LeMonds.

2 It's just wasting the time and making
3 us tread water and go back over and over and 4 losing -- you know, it's all about gaining ground.
5 And we would lose ground every time bad press would 6 come out about the dispute between the two
7 personalities. It left doubt in our dealers' minds, 8 and that's the worst thing that could happen.

9 MR. WEBER: That's all I have. Thank you.

10 MS. RAHNE: Thank you for coming in.

11 VIDEOGRAPHER: No further questions?

12 MS. RAHNE: No further questions.
