SUSAN RICHARD NELSON, United States District Judge

I. INTRODUCTION

This matter is before the Court on Defendants' Objection [Doc. No. 25] to United States Magistrate Judge Jeffrey J. Keyes' December 16, 2013, Report and Recommendation ("R&R") [Doc. No. 23]. On sua sponte consideration of remand, the Magistrate Judge recommended that this action be remanded to Minnesota state district court. For the reasons set forth below, the Court overrules Defendants' Objection and adopts the R&R.

II. BACKGROUND

The Magistrate Judge's Report and Recommendation thoroughly documents the factual and procedural background of this case, and the Court incorporates it here by reference. Briefly stated, Plaintiff Federal National Mortgage Association brought this eviction action against Defendants on October 10, 2013, in Hennepin County District Court. The litigation concerns Defendants' former property in Brooklyn Park, Minnesota, which was subject to a mortgage foreclosure sale on March 22, 2013.

On October 17, 2013, Defendant Dionne Foster removed this case to federal district court, asserting that this Court has original jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1345 because Plaintiff is a federal agency under 12 U.S.C. § 1452(f). (Notice of Removal [Doc. No. 1].) On November 25, 2013, Plaintiff moved to dismiss Defendants' counterclaims. (Mot. to Dismiss Defendants' Countercl. [Doc. No. 8].) Plaintiff also moved to sever Defendants' counterclaims. (Pl.'s Mot. to Sever Defendants' Countercl. [Doc. No. 14].) Defendants opposed both of these motions. (Mem. in Opp'n to Mot. to Sever [Doc. No. 21] and Mem. in Opp'n to Dismiss [Doc. No. 22].)

On December 16, 2013, the Magistrate Judge sua sponte considered remand and recommended that this action be remanded to Minnesota state district court. (Dec. 16, 2013, Report and Recommendation at 7 [Doc. No. 23].) Without deciding whether this case was properly removed under 28 U.S.C. § 1441 and 28 U.S.C. § 1345, the Magistrate Judge concluded that abstaining from exercising jurisdiction is appropriate. (Id. at 3.) Considering principles of comity, federalism, and judicial economy, the Magistrate Judge found abstention appropriate because this eviction action is "fundamentally a matter of state law," and there was neither a federal interest in retaining the proceedings or a federal right at stake, nor any apparent prejudice with the case going forward in state court. (Id. at 5-6.) Because the Magistrate Judge determined that abstention from exercising jurisdiction is appropriate, he did not address the merits of Plaintiff's pending motions. (Id. at 6.)

Defendants filed objections [Doc. No. 25] to the Magistrate Judge's R&R on December 20, 2013, and Plaintiff responded [Doc. No. 26] on January 3, 2014.

III. DISCUSSION

A. Standard of Review

A party "may file and serve specific written objections to a magistrate judge's proposed findings and recommendations." D.Minn. LR 72.2(b)(1). The district court will review de novo those portions of the R&R to which an objection is made, and it "may accept, reject, or modify, in whole or in part, the findings or recommendations made by the magistrate judge." 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1)(C); FED. R. CIV. P. 72(b)(3); D.Minn. LR 72.2(b)(3). Ordinarily, the district judge relies on the record of proceedings before the magistrate judge. D.Minn. LR 72.2(b)(3).

B. Objections

Defendants cite Colorado River Water Conservation District v. United States, 424 U.S. 800 (1976), arguing that a federal court cannot abstain from exercising jurisdiction over a case when it falls within the court's federal-question jurisdiction. (Objection [Doc. No. 25].) The Court recently rejected this very argument by Defendants' counsel. Fed. Nat'l Mortg. Ass'n v. Guse, No. 13-cv-801 (PJS/JSM), 2014 WL 127033 (D. Minn. Jan. 14, 2014); Fed. Nat'l Mortg. Ass'n v. Mondragon, No. 13-cv-1473 (PJS/JSM), 2014 WL 127113 (D. Minn. Jan. 14, 2014). These cases identify the following problems with Defendants' argument.

First, this case does not involve federal-question jurisdiction. The Court agrees with the Magistrate Judge’s observation that this post-foreclosure eviction action is “fundamentally a matter of state law.” (Dec. 16, 2013, Report and Recommendation at 5 [Doc. No. 23].) Moreover, Defendants removed this case under 28 U.S.C. § 1345 (“United States as plaintiff”) and not 28 U.S.C. § 1331 (“Federal question”). (Notice of Removal [Doc. No. 1].) By asserting that this Court has jurisdiction “because Plaintiff is a federal agency within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 1345,” Defendants posit that every case to which the United States is a party involves federal-question jurisdiction. (Id. ¶ 3 [Doc. No. 1]; Objection at 2 [Doc. No. 25].) The Court, however, previously noted:

If defendants were correct that a federal court has jurisdiction over every case to which the United States is a party under § 1331, then § 1345 would have no reason for existing. In support of their argument, defendants cite nothing except Article III, § 2 of the Constitution. But Article III, § 2 explicitly distinguishes between federal-question jurisdiction [sic] and U.S.-party jurisdiction [sic]. Moreover, Article III, § 2 creates all federal jurisdiction—including not only the federal-question jurisdiction implemented in § 1331, and the U.S.-party jurisdiction implemented in § 1345, but, for example, the diversity jurisdiction implemented in 28 U.S.C. § 1332. Just as diversity jurisdiction is plainly not federal-question jurisdiction, so, too, U.S.-party jurisdiction is plainly not federal-question jurisdiction.

Guse, 2014 WL 127033, at *1; see Mondragon, 2014 WL 127113, at *1. This reasoning applies to the very same argument ventured by Defendants’ counsel here. The Court finds that there is no federal-question jurisdiction.

Second, Colorado River does not apply to this case as Defendants urge. In Colorado River, the United States filed a federal lawsuit with state and federal claims. 424 U.S. at 805, 815-16. The district court dismissed the federal lawsuit, a decision with which the Supreme Court agreed. Id. at 821. Although the Supreme Court noted that the district court would have had jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1331, dismissal was nonetheless appropriate in light of many factors that counseled against concurrent federal proceedings. Id. at 819. As such, even if the United States is a party, and even if there were federal-question jurisdiction, abstention may still be appropriate.

The Magistrate Judge properly considered principles of comity, federalism, and judicial economy in reaching his conclusion that abstention is appropriate. The Court finds this case to be an ordinary eviction proceeding that falls squarely within the realm of state law. There is no federal interest in retaining the proceedings or federal right at stake, and there is no apparent prejudice to the defendants by resuming this case in state court. Accordingly, the Court remands this matter to Hennepin County District Court.

IV. ORDER

The Court OVERRULES Defendants' Objection [Doc. No. 25] and ADOPTS the Magistrate Judge's December 16, 2013, Report and Recommendation [Doc. No. 23].

Accordingly, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that:

1. This action is remanded to Hennepin County District Court;
2. Plaintiff's Motion to Dismiss Defendants' Counterclaims [Doc. No. 8] is DENIED AS MOOT; and
3. Plaintiff's Motion to Sever Defendants' Counterclaims [Doc. No. 14] is DENIED AS MOOT.

LET JUDGMENT BE ENTERED ACCORDINGLY.
