Dear Mr. Crowley.

You really need to take a good look at the proposed dismissal. I never asked for my Bitterroot Library Library privileges returned, only that they follow the law in the future. On the unlawful banning letter it is required to ask a patron to leave the library. Former library director said under oath February 18, 2010 that the library staff never asked me to leave the library, and the Montana law MCA 22-1-311 indicates that a willful violation of the rules must have occurred. None did.

Ken Bell committed a crime by entering a civil courtroom as the city prosecutor (official Misconduct) as the order of protection was issued November 20, 2009, and the City of Hamilton MT does not legally exist. Ms. Roddy never was threatened, and is probably the most evil person I will ever encounter. I feel for a person like Nansu Roddy who has to lash out at people and need scum such as yourself to protect her.

This method of communication, and all others with your firm is now closed.

I will revise the dismissal. Best

Michael Spreadbury

Subject: Spreadbury v. Bitterroot Public Library, et al. - SENT ON BEHALF OF WILLIAM L. CROWLEY, ESQ.

Dear Mr. Spreadbury:

This responds to your settlement offer which was extended as a part of a "motion to voluntarily dismiss your claims." The offer has not been accepted by our clients. Nansu Roddy will not voluntarily remove the order of protection against you, the validity of which has been sustained in other proceedings by you. Likewise, as is supported by the summary judgment findings and recommendations of the U.S. Magistrate Judge, it is not agreed that the Bitterroot Public Library removed your library privileges in an unlawful manner. Instead, you remain lawfully excluded from the library premises. Finally, your separate condition that Matt Hayhurst or Ross Tillman represent the Defendants in settlement is moot.

Sincerely,

William L. Crowley

Dear Mr. Spreadbury:

Attached are Defendants City of Hamilton and Bitterroot Public Library's proposed jury instructions which add instruction numbers and a title statement. Otherwise, they are the same as those sent to you earlier. Also, they are in the same order.

Sincerely,

William L. Crowley
