UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT DISTRICT OF NEVADA

SHERIDAN MORFORD,

Plaintiff,

vs.

WAL-MART STORES, INC., et al.,

Defendants.

Case No. 2:09-cv-02251-RLH-PAL

ORDER

(Mtn to Strike - Dkt. #39)

The court held a hearing on February 8, 2010, on Plaintiff’s Motion to Strike Defendants’ Answers or in the Alternative, for Adverse Presumption, Due to Defendants’ Spoliation of the Floor Mar [sic] Which Caused the Plaintiff’s Fall (Dkt. #39) filed on December 17, 2010. Alexander Leveque appeared on behalf of the Plaintiff, Brandon Smith appeared on behalf of Defendant Wal-Mart, and Jonathan Hansen appeared on behalf of G & K Services, Co. Defendant Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (“Wal-Mart”) filed a Response (Dkt. #43) on January 10, 2011. No response was filed by Defendant G&K Services Company. The court has considered the Motion, the Response, and the Reply, and the arguments of counsel at the hearing.

DISCUSSION

I. Factual Background.

This case arises out of a trip and fall accident at a Wal-Mart store in Pahrump, Nevada, on January 11, 2009. Plaintiff was shopping in the produce section, and alleges she tripped on a floormat that was bunched up, causing her to injure her knees and left shoulder. Both Plaintiff and Wal-Mart employee Karen Snell prepared an incident report on the date of the accident. A Wal-Mart employee took photographs of the mat while Plaintiff was still on the floor, and Wal-Mart preserved the video surveillance tape of the incident.

1 On February 17, 2009, Plaintiff's counsel, Adam S. Kutner, sent a letter to Wal-Mart's claims 2 office indicating he was representing the Plaintiff regarding a claim for injuries sustained in an 3 automobile collision occurring on January 11, 2009. The letter requested that all future communication 4 regarding the handling of his client's claim go through his office, and that his letter be acknowledged.
5 See Exhibit "J" to opposition. On February 20, 2009, Wal-Mart's claims examiner responded to Mr.
6 Kutner's letter denying the claim, indicating the investigation into the matter indicated no negligence on 7 the part of Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. See Exhibit "4" to Plaintiff's motion. A similar letter was sent by 8 Wal-Mart's claims examiner to the Plaintiff on March 10, 2009. See Exhibit "5" to Plaintiff's motion.
9 Plaintiff retained new counsel who sent Wal-Mart a letter on March 20, 2009, indicating he represented
10 her for injuries sustained in the January 11, 2009 trip and fall. The letter requested that Wal-Mart
11 preserve all documents, incident reports, witness statements, photographs, video recordings, diagrams 12 or other drawings, and any other physical evidence of the accident, including the mats on the floor in 13 the produce section. See Exhibit "6" to Plaintiff's motion. The letter also requested an opportunity to 14 inspect the physical evidence relating to the accident. Id.

15 The floormats in the produce department of Wal-Mart's Pahrump, Nevada store were not owned 16 or maintained by Wal-Mart. At the time of the incident, G & K had a contract with Wal-Mart to replace 17 the floormats in the store every week. Neither Wal-Mart nor co-Defendant G & K kept the actual 18 floormat involved in this incident. As a result, Plaintiff argues the court should strike the Defendants'
19 Answers, or find that liability is established and preclude the Defendant from offering any evidence 20 regarding the condition of the mat. In the alternative, Plaintiff asks that the court issue an adverse 21 inference instruction informing the jury that they may presume that the floormat which was destroyed or 22 not preserved would have contained evidence adverse to Wal-Mart.

23 II. The Parties' Positions.

24 A. Plaintiff's Motion to Strike (Dkt. #39).

25 Plaintiff asserts that Wal-Mart received clear, early notice of Plaintiff's injuries and their cause 26 and therefore had a duty to preserve evidence, including the floormat. Despite being on notice of its 27 duty to preserve, Wal-Mart destroyed the mat before Plaintiff had the opportunity to inspect it. Plaintiff
28 contends that Wal-Mart's policy of only preserving photographic and video evidence in slip/trip and fall

1 cases is intended to hinder Plaintiff's efforts to gather evidence for trial. Greg Forsythe, the person
2 Wal-Mart produced as most knowledgeable about its policies regarding preservation of evidence
3 following accidents, testified at his deposition that Wal-Mart only preserves pictures and video 4 evidence and would not have kept the mat on which Plaintiff tripped. Plaintiff contends that she is 5 prejudiced by Wal-Mart's failure to preserve the floormat because: (a) her expert has been denied the 6 opportunity to inspect the mat; (b) the mat could have been used as an exhibit at trial; and (c) she has 7 been deprived of the opportunity to contest Wal-Mart's description of the mat's condition.

8 As a result of Wal-Mart's willful destruction of evidence, Plaintiff asserts the court should strike 9 Wal-Mart's answer. Alternatively, Plaintiff suggests the court order that liability in this case is 10 established and limit the trial to questions of the Plaintiff's damages. In the alternative, Plaintiff asks 11 the court to give an adverse inference instruction against Wal-Mart because: (a) it had possession of the 12 mat and was placed on notice of the possibility of litigation on January 11, 2009, the day of the 13 accident; (b) it was negligent and willful when it destroyed the mat; and (c) the mat contained 14 information relevant to Plaintiff's claims.

15 B. Wal-Mart's Response (Dkt. #43).

16 Wal-Mart responds that Plaintiff reported she tripped and fell over a bunched up mat, but did 17 not allege there was any defect in the mat before filing her Complaint on June 16, 2009. Wal-Mart did 18 not own or maintain the mats, and at the time the Complaint was filed, no longer had possession of it.
19 At the time of the accident, Wal-Mart had a contract with Defendant G & K to replace the floormats in 20 the store once a week. Thus, at most, Wal-Mart had possession of the mat for up to seven days after 21 Plaintiff fell. Wal-Mart had no reason to retain the mat itself because Plaintiff did not claim that there 22 was anything wrong with the mat. Additionally, Wal-Mart's Manager, Karen Snell, observed the mat, 23 filled out an incident report, and did not observe any defect or abnormality in it. Wal-Mart preserved 24 evidence of this incident by taking incident reports and witness statements, and also preserved the video 25 surveillance footage available for the incident area. The initial letter of representation received by Mr.
26 Kutner's office did not request preservation of the floormat, and it was not until March 20, 2009 that 27 current counsel asked Wal-Mart's claims representative to preserve the mats on the floor of the produce
28 section on the date of the incident. This letter was sent more than two-and-a-half months after the mat

1 was removed from the store pursuant to Wal-Mart’s contract with G & K. Under these circumstances, 2 Wal-Mart argues it had no duty to preserve evidence of the temporary condition of the floormat which 3 Plaintiff alleged caused her trip and fall, and spoliation sanctions are not appropriate.

4 C. Plaintiff’s Reply (Dkt. #46).

5 Plaintiff replies that Wal-Mart was aware the floormat was relevant to the manner in which 6 Plaintiff fell, “and that it consciously and deliberately took no measures to preserve it.” Plaintiff states
7 Wal-Mart’s awareness of the mat’s relevance is evidenced by the fact that it took pictures of the mat,
8 performed an inspection of the mat, and reported the condition of the mat in its Incident Report.
9 Plaintiff states that her testimony concerning the condition of the mat is not conclusive because she did 10 not have an opportunity to see the bottom of the mat and could not reasonably be expected to examine 11 the mat after her injury. Finally, Plaintiff contends, the mat is relevant to the cause of her injury, and 12 Wal-Mart’s policy of not preserving physical evidence after a slip and fall case is designed to give it an 13 evidentiary advantage at trial. As a result, Wal-Mart should be sanctioned for spoliation of the 14 floormat.

15 III. Law and Analysis.

16 Spoliation is the destruction or significant alteration of evidence or the failure to preserve 17 property for another’s use as evidence in pending or reasonably foreseeable litigation. United States v.
18 Kitsap Physicians Svs., 314 F.3d 995, 1001 (9th Cir. 2002) (citing Akiona v. United States, 938 F.2d 19 158, 161 (9th Cir. 1991) (a party engages in spoliation “as a matter of law only if they had ‘some notice 20 that the documents were potentially relevant’ to the litigation before they were destroyed”)); 7-37A 21 Moore’s Federal Practice - Civil § 37A.55. A party must preserve evidence it knows or should know is 22 relevant to a claim or defense of any party or that may lead to the discovery of relevant evidence.
23 Moore’s at § 37A.55; see also United States v. Kitsap Physicians Serv., 314 F.3d 995, 1001 (9th Cir.
24 2002); In re Napster, 462 F.Supp.2d 1060, 1067 (N.D. Cal. 2006) (citing Nat’l Ass’n of Radiation
25 Survivors v. Turnage, 115 F.R.D. 543, 556-57 (N.D. Cal. 1987) (noting, “[a]s soon as a potential claim 26 is identified, a litigant is under a duty to preserve evidence which it knows or reasonably should know 27 is relevant to the action”)). The duty to preserve arises not only during litigation, but also extends to the 28 period before litigation when a party should reasonably know that evidence may be relevant to

1 anticipated litigation. In re Napster, 462 F.Supp.2d at 1067 (duty to preserve begins when a party 2 should have known that the evidence may be relevant to future litigation).

3 District courts may impose sanctions for spoliation of evidence as part of their inherent power to 4 “manage their own affairs so as to achieve the orderly and expeditious disposition of cases.” Napster, 5 462 F.Supp.2d at 1066 (citing Chambers v. NASCO, Inc., 501 U.S. 32, 43 (1991)). Courts may 6 sanction parties responsible for spoliation of evidence in three ways. First, a court may instruct the jury 7 that it may draw an adverse inference against a party or witness responsible for the destruction or 8 spoliation of evidence. See Glover v. BIC Corp., 6 F.3d 1318, 1329 (9th Cir. 1993). Second, a court 9 may exclude witness testimony based upon the destroyed evidence and proffered by the party 10 responsible for destroying the evidence. Id. at 1329. Third, the court may dismiss the claim of the 11 party responsible for destroying the evidence. Dismissal, however, is only appropriate where “a party 12 has engaged deliberately in deceptive practices that undermine the integrity of judicial proceedings.” 13 Leon v. IDX Systems Corp., 464 F.3d 951, 958 (9th Cir. 2006) (citing Anheuser-Busch, Inc. v. Natural 14 Beverage Distributors, 69 F.3d 337, 348 (9th Cir. 1995). Before imposing the “harsh sanction” of 15 dismissal, a court must consider the following factors: (a) the public’s interest in expeditious resolution 16 of litigation; (b) the court’s need to manager its dockets; (c) the risk of prejudice to the party seeking 17 sanctions; (d) the public policy favoring disposition of cases on their merits; and (e) the availability of 18 less drastic sanctions. See Leon, 464 F.3d at 958 (citing Anheuser-Busch, 69 F.3d at 348).

19 At the time of the accident the Plaintiff did not claim that there was any defect or abnormality in 20 the floormat or rug on which she tripped and fell. Rather, she stated she tripped on the rug after 21 stopping her cart “to go to apples.” Photos of the incident depicting the floormat, cart and Plaintiff 22 were taken before the Plaintiff got up. Wal-Mart preserved video surveillance footage available for the 23 area of the incident. Plaintiff did not claim that she saw anything wrong with the floormat. Wal-Mart 24 employee, Karen Snell, testified that she responded to the area while the Plaintiff was still sitting on the 25 floor. Ms. Snell asked her what happened, filled out the paperwork, and asked Plaintiff if she needed
26 assistance. The Plaintiff stated she had tripped on a rug in the produce department after stopping her 27 cart to get apples, and tried to catch herself on the cart. Ms. Snell observed that the rug by the 28 Plaintiff’s cart was “bunched up.” Ms. Snell freed the cart from the rug, flattened it out and it

1 continued to be used in the produce department after the incident. Neither the Plaintiff, nor Ms. Snell
2 observed any “defects” or anything unusual or abnormal about the floormat other than it was “bunched
3 up” underneath Plaintiff’s cart. Under these circumstances, Wal-Mart was not on notice of any claims 4 that the floormat was frayed, damaged or “defective” at the time of the accident, and therefore not 5 required to preserve the actual floormat involved in this accident. The floormat was changed out in the 6 ordinary course of business pursuant to a contract with its outside vendor, co-Defendant G & K, five 7 months before Plaintiff filed a Complaint asserting the floormat was defective.

8 The Ninth Circuit has held that a party does not engage in spoliation when, without notice of the 9 evidence’s potential relevance, it destroys the evidence according to its policy or in the normal course
10 of its business. United States v. $40,955.00 in U.S. Currency, 554 F.3d 752, 758 (9th Cir. 2009) (no 11 indication that evidence destroyed with knowledge that it was relevant to litigation) (citing United 12 States v. Kitsap Physicians Service, 314 F.3d 995, 1001-02 (9th Cir. 2002) (no spoliation where 13 evidence destroyed in normal course of business and no indication that relevant to anticipated
14 litigation); State of Idaho Potato Comm’n v. G&T Terminal Packaging, Inc., 425 F.3d 708, 720 (9th
15 Cir. 2005) (same). Here, Wal-Mart did not “destroy” the floormat involved in this incident. Rather, it 16 is undisputed that after the accident, the floormat was smoothed and left in place. It was replaced in the 17 normal course of business by Wal-Mart’s outside vendor. Wal-Mart preserved evidence of the incident 18 by taking photographs, witness statements and preserving the available video surveillance footage of 19 the incident. Because the mat was removed from the store in accordance with Wal-Mart’s normal 20 course of business, and Wal-Mart was not on notice of any claim that the mat itself was defective, Wal-21 Mart had no duty to preserve it, and no spoliation occurred.

22 Accordingly,

23 IT IS ORDERED that Plaintiff’s Motion to Strike (Dkt. #39) is DENIED.

24 Dated this 8th day of February, 2011.
