The parties stipulate and agree that the documents set forth above are to be produced for purposes of discovery and in general preparation for the litigation of this action and may contain proprietary and confidential information, and the parties therefore agree that dissemination of this information to parties outside this litigation may cause irreparable harm. Accordingly, the document may be used by the parties only for purposes described below, subject to the following conditions, safeguards and limitations:

- 1. The documents listed above shall be used only in connection with this litigation among the parties and shall not be disclosed or used by anyone except:
 - (a) Attorneys of record for any party to this action, including attorneys in any law firm or corporation who have been assigned to represent the interests of any party to this action;
 - (b) Regular employees of any law firm or corporation appearing as counsel of record in this action, including paralegals and secretaries;
 - (c) Any officer or employee of any party to this action, including in-house counsel, but only to the extent of that person's involvement in this action;
 - (d) Independent experts retained by any party, but only to the extent necessary to assist the parties, and their attorneys, in the preparation and presentation of their claims or defenses;
 - (e) Persons who have authored, prepared or assisted in the preparation of the particular confidential documents or materials;
 - (f) Any deponent or witness in the course of, or in preparation for, testimony at the trial of this matter; and

- 2. No copies of any documents or material shall be made or delivered to any person other than those categories of persons referred to explicitly in paragraph "1" above, except any copy

- 4. The parties agree that the documents listed above are confidential in nature. Accordingly, in the event any party proposes to attach any of the documents listed above to a dispositive motion filed with the Court, the party so submitting the document(s) must first obtain a ruling from the Court that compelling reasons, as defined in Kamakana v. The moving party shall bear the burden of establishing that compelling reasons exist to keep the document(s) sealed. In the alternative, the parties may stipulate that compelling reasons exist to keep the document(s) sealed and may submit a stipulation to the Court requesting that the document(s) be sealed. The document(s) shall then be provided to the Court for an in camera review and determination as to whether compelling reasons exist to keep the document(s) sealed. The provisions in this paragraph shall also apply to the use of the documents listed above during trial.
- 5. In the event any party proposes to attach any of the documents listed above to a non-dispositive motion filed with the Court, the party so submitting the document(s) must first obtain a ruling from the Court that good cause, as defined in Kamakana v. The moving party shall bear the burden of establishing that good cause exists to keep the document(s) sealed. In the alternative, the parties may stipulate that good cause exists to keep the document(s) sealed and may submit a stipulation to the Court requesting that the document(s) be sealed. The document(s) shall then be provided to the Court for an in camera review and determination as to whether good cause exists to keep the document(s) sealed.
