UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF NEVADA

CANDACE SLAGOWSKI et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

CENTRAL WASHINGTON ASPHALT, INC., et al.,

Defendants.

Case No. 2:11-cv-00142-APG-VCF

ORDER

This Order addresses the Objections to Magistrate Judge Ferenbach's December 9, 2013 Order [Dkt. #189] filed by Third-party Defendant Doreen Lea Law [Dkt. #204], Third-party Defendant Mitchell Forest Zemke [Dkt. #205], Defendants Central Washington Asphalt, Inc. and Jerry Goldsmith [Dkt. #208], and Defendants Donald Hannon and James Wentland [Dkt. #210]. For the reasons set forth below, the December 9 Order is affirmed in part and modified in part.

I. FACTUAL BACKGROUND AND PROCEDURAL POSTURE

The factual background and procedural posture of this discovery dispute are detailed in Judge Ferenbach's two orders, dated July 2, 2013 [Dkt. #124 (published as Slagowski v. Cent. Washington Asphalt, 291 F.R.D. 563 (D. Nev. 2013))] and December 9, 2013 [Dkt. #189]. This case arises from a December 12, 2010 fatal automobile accident on Nevada State Route 318. Plaintiffs contend that Defendants caused that accident. Defendants Wentland, Hannon and Goldsmith feared prosecution for crimes related to the accident. They sought to stay their depositions in this case until December 12, 2013, when the statute of limitations for most of the potential criminal charges expired. Otherwise, they argued, the potential for prosecution would force them to invoke their Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination during their depositions. This could give rise to negative inferences against them in this civil case.

1 Judge Ferenbach's July 2 Order thoroughly analyzed the competing interests and case law,
2 and established a procedure to resolve the problem in a fair and inexpensive manner. Judge
3 Ferenbach allowed Wentland, Hannon, and Goldsmith to be deposed immediately under the 4 following conditions: (1) they could assert their Fifth Amendment rights on a question-by-5 question basis; and (2) Plaintiffs could redepose them after December 12, 2013 with regard to 6 questions to which they asserted the privilege. See Slagowski, 291 F.R.D. at 585-86.
7 Alternatively, the parties could postpone the depositions in their entirety until after December 12, 8 2013, provided that the depositions were completed by January 3, 2014. Id.

9 Plaintiffs chose the former path and deposed Wentland and Hannon on August 21 and 22,
10 2013. Hannon answered approximately 943 questions [Dkt. #172 at 9:24], and pled the Fifth
11 approximately 319 times (Dkt. #159 at 6:13). Wentland answered approximately 990 questions
12 [Dkt. #172 at 10:12], and pled the Fifth approximately 191 times [Dkt. #159 at 6:14].

13 On August 28, 2013, Defendants issued notices that they would depose Wentland,
14 Hannon, and Goldsmith in Seattle. [Dkt. #172-17.] The Plaintiffs moved for a protective order
15 (1) compelling Wentland, Hannon, and Goldsmith's depositions to take place in Las Vegas after 16 December 12, 2013; (2) preventing Defendants from questioning these defendants until after 17 Plaintiffs' counsel finished questioning them; and, (3) imposing monetary sanctions against 18 defense counsel and Wentland, Hannon, and Goldsmith for abusing the Fifth Amendment
19 privilege. [Dkt. #159 at 13:4-12.]

20 On December 9, 2013 Judge Ferenbach entered his Order finding that Hannon and 21 Wentland abused the Fifth Amendment privilege. [Dkt. #189 at 12:15-21.] Accordingly, he 22 vacated the Seattle depositions and ordered Hannon, Wentland, and Goldsmith to be re-deposed 23 in Las Vegas after December 12, 2013 but before the Defendants depose them. He further 24 ordered that "the scope of Hannon, Wentland, and Goldsmith's depositions will be limited to: (1)
25 any previously asked question to which Hannon or Wentland asserted the Fifth Amendment
26 privilege, and (2) any other area of inquiry not previously pursued." [Id. at 12:22-24.] Judge 27 Ferenbach also ordered that defendants Central Washington Asphalt, Hannon, Wentland, and 28

1 Goldsmith are barred from “withdrawing assertions of the Fifth Amendment or testifying about 2 the same subject[] matters with regard to Central Washington Asphalt, Hannon, Wentland, and 3 Goldsmith’s claims against [Third-party Defendants Chip] Fenton and Fenton Trucking, LLC.”
4 [Id. at 13:1-4 (citing Nationwide Life Ins. Co. v. Richards, 541 F.3d 903, 910 (9th Cir. 2008)).]

5 Objections to the December 9 Order were filed by Third-party Defendants Law [Dkt.
6 #204] and Zemke [Dkt. #205], Defendants Central Washington Asphalt and Goldsmith [Dkt.
7 #208], and Defendants Hannon and Wentland [Dkt. #210]. The crux of the Objections is whether 8 Hannon and Wentland properly invoked their right against self-incrimination under the Fifth 9 Amendment. If so, then the sanctions imposed against the Defendants unfairly punish them. On 10 the other hand, if Hannon and Wentland abused the privilege, then Third-party Defendants Law
11 and Zemke request the same evidentiary benefit as the Fenton parties (i.e., barring Defendants 12 from withdrawing their assertions of the privilege and from offering testimony in support of their 13 third-party claims against them).

14 II. STANDARD OF REVIEW

15 Although discovery orders generally are considered non-dispositive, courts “must look to 16 the effect of the motion, in order to determine whether it is properly characterized as ‘dispositive
17 or non-dispositive of a claim or defense of a party.’” United States v. Rivera-Guerrero, 377 F.3d 18 1064, 1068 (9th Cir. 2004) (quoting Maisonville v. F2 America, 902 F.2d 746, 747 (9th Cir.
19 1990)). Here, Judge Ferenbach’s December 9 Order precludes Defendants from supporting their 20 claims against the Fenton parties with testimony from Hannon, Wentland and Goldsmith that 21 contradicts their assertions of the privilege. Defendants are not precluded from offering other
22 evidence to support their claims.¹ While the December 9 Order hampers the Defendants’ ability
23 to support their claims, it is not dispositive of those claims. Thus, the December 9 Order will be 24
26

27
28

¹ Indeed, Defendants have offered other evidence in opposition to the Motion for Summary Judgment [Dkt. #143] that the Fenton parties joined. [See generally, Dkt. #156.]

3 judge's factual determination and discretionary orders and will be overturned ‘only if the district
4 court is left with the definite and firm conviction that a mistake has been made.’” Ctr. for

8 9 III. ANALYSIS

10 A. The Fifth Amendment Privilege

11 The Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution provides that no person “shall be 12 compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself.” U.S. Const. Amend. V. “[T]he 13 privilege [against self-incrimination] . . . can be asserted in any proceeding . . . in which the 14 witness reasonably believes that the information sought, or discoverable as a result of his 15 testimony, could be used in a subsequent state or federal criminal proceeding.” United States v.
16 Balsys, 524 U.S. 666, 672 (1998); see also Francis v. Wynn Las Vegas, LLC, 262 P.3d 705, 711
17 (Nev. 2012).
18

19 The privilege afforded not only extends to answers that would in themselves support 20 a conviction under a . . . criminal statute but likewise embraces those which would 21 furnish a link in the chain of evidence needed to prosecute the claimant for a . . .
22 crime. . . . But this protection must be confined to instances where the witness has 23 reasonable cause to apprehend danger from a direct answer. . . . It is for the court to 24 say whether his silence is justified, . . . and to require him to answer if “it clearly 25 appears to the court that he is mistaken.” . . . However, if the witness, upon 26 interposing his claim, were required to prove the hazard in the sense in which a claim 27 is usually required to be established in court, he would be compelled to surrender the 28 very protection which the privilege is designed to guarantee. To sustain the privilege, it need only be evident from the implications of the question, in the setting in which it is asked, that a responsive answer to the question or an explanation of why it cannot be answered might be dangerous because injurious disclosure could result.

2 Pillsbury Co. v. Conboy, 459 U.S. 248, 266 n.1 (1983) (Marshall, J., concurring) (“A witness is 3 generally entitled to invoke the Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination whenever 4 there is a realistic possibility that his answer to a question can be used in any way to convict him
5 of a crime.”); Kastigar v. United States, 406 U.S. 441, 445 (1972) (same); United States v.
6 Vavages, 151 F.3d 1185, 1192 (9th Cir. 1998) (same).

8 “The court should order a witness invoking his Fifth Amendment rights to answer 9 questions “‘only if it is ‘perfectly clear’ that the witness is mistaken and the answers ‘cannot 10 possibly’ tend to incriminate. In making this determination the judge must liberally construe the 11 privilege in favor of the right it was intended to secure.’”” United States v. Castorena-Jaime, 285
12 F.3d 916, 931 (10th Cir. 2002) (quoting United States v. Nunez, 668 F.2d 1116, 1121 (10th Cir.
13 1981)).

15 “[I]n civil cases where related criminal charges are involved, tension will arise between 16 plaintiffs’ rights to a just and timely adjudication and defendants’ rights to refuse to answer under 17 the Fifth Amendment upon a reasonable fear of prosecution.” Nat’l Acceptance Co. of Am. v.
18 Bathalter, 705 F.2d 924, 932 (7th Cir. 1983). “Where the invoking party makes a timely request
19 for accommodation of a legitimate self-incrimination concern, courts ‘should explore all possible 20 measures’ to accommodate the privilege.” Francis, 262 P.3d at 711. As the Francis court pointed 21 out, “a special effort to accommodate the privilege may be warranted where the defendant faces
22 parallel civil and criminal proceedings . . . arising from the same set of facts.” Id. Judge
23 Ferenbach’s July Order was such an accommodation to Hannon, Wentland and Goldsmith.
24

25 B. Application of the Privilege.

26 In his December 9 Order, Judge Ferenbach found that Wentland and Hannon abused the 27 Fifth Amendment’s protections. [Dkt. #189 at 10:1.] Among other things, Judge Ferenbach was 28

1 troubled by their assertion of the privilege regarding: (1) training Hannon received in the 1980s;
2 (2) accidents, if any, Hannon incurred as an earth moving equipment operator; (3) Hannon's
3 knowledge of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations; (4) whether Hannon and Wentland
4 worked for Central Washington Asphalt; (5) whether Wentland had driven from Moses Lake to 5 Phoenix on behalf of Central Washington Asphalt before the underlying accident occurred; and,
6 (6) whether Central Washington Asphalt ever reimbursed Wentland for his meals. [Id. at 10:12-23
7 (including citations to other alleged abuses).]

9 However, as explained in the Objections filed by Hannon and Wentland [Dkt. #210], the 10 answers to these questions could provide a link in the chain of evidence needed to prosecute 11 them. Plaintiffs allege that Hannon, Wentland and Goldsmith caused the death of one person and 12 serious injuries to others by their improper operation of motor vehicles. [See, generally, Dkt.
13 #30.] Hannon, Wentland and Goldsmith reasonably feared being prosecuted for, among other 14 crimes, Vehicular Homicide (under NRS 484B.657), Reckless Driving (under NRS 484B.653), 15 and Conspiracy (under NRS 99.480). [See Dkt. #210 at 10:2 - 12:23.] Their fear is bolstered by 16 the Nevada Highway Patrol's recommendation that the Nye County District Attorney prosecuted 17 them for violating "limitations on overtaking on left side," (NRS 484B.213), "leaving the scene of 18 an accident" (NRS 484E.010), and "failure to render aid and give information" (NRS 484E.030).
19 [See Dkt. #210-3.]

21 Testimony about the training Hannon and Wentland received, their knowledge of federal 22 safety regulations, and their familiarity with the particular stretch of highway could provide links 23 in the chain of evidence as to whether they acted negligently or recklessly, thereby helping the 24 potential prosecution. [See Dkt. #210 at 14:21 - 17:4.] Testimony in response to questions about 25 their cell phones, calls they may have made, and employment with Central Washington Asphalt 26 could be used to place the Defendants at the scene of the accident, providing another link in the 27
28

1 chain of prosecution. [See Id. at 18:23–19:24, 20:14–21:7.]² And even though such evidence may 2 have been developed already through other sources (e.g., phone records), the Defendants cannot 3 be compelled to testify about such evidence in violation of their Fifth Amendment rights.

4 While the Third-party Defendants argue that the specific topics and questions, on their 5 face, do not incriminate these defendants, the 6 questions and answers need not be directly incriminating. If a reply to a seemingly 7 innocuous question reasonably will tend to sculpt a rung in the ladder of evidence

8 leading to prosecution the privilege appropriately may be invoked. . . . In other words, 9 testimony which might lead indirectly to evidence that then could be used in a future criminal prosecution is eligible for Fifth Amendment protection.

10 United States v. Castro, 129 F.3d 226, 229-30 (1st Cir. 1997). Here, the questions at issue could 11 have provided evidence leading to the prosecution of these defendants. Even the Supreme Court 12 has recognized that “a case may arise where there is a substantial allegation that furnishing 13 identity . . . would have given the police a link in the chain of evidence needed to convict the 14 individual of a separate offense. In that case, the court can then consider whether the privilege
15 applies. . . .” Hiibel v. Sixth Judicial Dist. Court of Nevada, Humboldt County, 542 U.S. 177, 191
16 (2004). Even in a close call, caution must be exercised and the privilege must be protected.

17 Castorena-Jaime, 285 F.3d at 931 (“The court should order a witness invoking his Fifth
18 Amendment rights to answer questions “only if it is ‘perfectly clear’ that the witness is mistaken
19 and the answers ‘cannot possibly’ tend to incriminate. In making this determination the judge 20 must liberally construe the privilege in favor of the right it was intended to secure.””). Based on 21 the foregoing, Hannon and Wentland’s invocations of their right against self-incrimination were 22 proper.³
23
24
25

26 ² The Defendants’ Objections provide additional justifications for the other instances when they 27 invoked the Fifth Amendment privilege. [See Dkt. #210.]

28 ³ Judge Ferenbach was, no doubt, moved in part by the inappropriate threat by defense counsel that if Plaintiffs went forward with the depositions before the expiration of the statute of 1 While it might be argued that some of the witnesses' invocations of the privilege were not 2 proper, the vast majority were proper. The July 2 Order permitted the witnesses to assert the 3 privilege and then be re-deposed to answer questions to which they previously asserted the 4 privilege. The error in the December 9 Order is in taking back that right provided in the July 2

5 Order, and now barring the Defendants "from withdrawing assertions of the Fifth Amendment or 6 testifying about the same subject[] matters with regard to [their] claims against Fenton and Fenton
7 Trucking, LLC." [Dkt. #189 at 13:1-4.] This punishes the Defendants for their mostly-proper 8 invocation of the privilege.

10 Judge Ferenbach was rightly concerned about the Defendants using the privilege as "a 11 sword and a shield," especially as it impacts the Fenton parties. [Id. at 11:11-23.] However, the 12 procedures established in the July 2 Order prevented that by permitting the witnesses to be 13 deposed a second time, after the statute of limitations expired. This procedure (confirmed in the 14 December 9 Order) properly avoids the "sword and shield" problem discussed in Chevron Corp.
15 v. Pennzoil Co., 974 F.2d 1156, 1162 (9th Cir. 1992), because the parties (including the Third-16 party Defendants) still have the opportunity to fully question Hannon and Wentland under oath to 17 prepare for trial (and to prepare dispositive motions). Hannon and Wentland now confirm 18 unequivocally that they will testify without invoking the Fifth Amendment because the 19 limitations periods for most of the potential crimes have now expired. [See Dkt. #231 at 3:24-
20 4:25.] If they refuse to so testify at their second depositions without a proper basis, then 21 significant sanctions may be warranted.
22
24

25 limitations, the witnesses would testify to "name, rank and serial number only." [Dkt. #179 at 26 4:17-20.] Such a threat is not only unprofessional (and a poor strategy), it casts a nefarious cloud 27 upon the subsequent assertions of the privilege. Nevertheless, the Court must review those 28 assertions in the context of the questions being asked. United States v. Neff, 615 F.2d 1235, 1239-
40 (9th Cir. 1980) ("In determining whether such a real and appreciable danger of incrimination exists, a trial judge must examine the implications of the question(s) in the setting in which (they are) asked. . . ." (internal quotation marks and citation omitted)).

1 The Fenton parties complain that they have been forced to incur “enormous time and 2 expenses to defend the charges that the defendants have brought” against them, including 3 “attending the 12 depositions which have been taken. . . .” [Dkt. #225 at 5:7-9.] But such 4 expenses were not caused by Hannon and Wentland’s invocation of the Fifth Amendment.
5 Rather, they are litigation costs normally incurred in connection with such lawsuits. If the third-
6 party claims filed against them are frivolous, they have recourse under Fed.R.Civ.P. 11, and other
7 potential remedies. Moreover, the procedures set forth in the July 2 Order gave the parties the 8 choice of waiting to depose Wentland, Hannon, and Goldsmith until after December 12, or 9 proceeding with those depositions at the risk that the witnesses would have to be deposed a 10 second time after invoking their Fifth Amendment rights. Slagowski, 291 F.R.D. at 586.
11 Plaintiffs chose to proceed under that risk. If the witnesses properly asserted the privilege, then 12 the Third-party Defendants suffered no harm because they would have to take the depositions a 13 second time anyhow. Thus, the only harm they could suffer is having to re-ask questions that 14 were improperly objected to, if any. Given that few, if any, of the assertions of privilege were 15 improper, any prejudice is minimal.⁴

18 Because the court has a “definite and firm conviction that a mistake has been made,” the 19 December 9, 2013 Order must be modified in part. Ctr. for Biological Diversity, 290 F. Supp. 2d 20 at 1199-200 (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). Specifically, the portion ordering 21 that “Central Washington Asphalt, Hannon, Wentland, and Goldsmith are barred from 22 withdrawing assertions of the Fifth Amendment or testifying about the same subject[] matters 23 with regard to [their] claims against Fenton and Fenton Trucking, LLC” punishes Defendants for 24 the rightful exercise of their Fifth Amendment rights.
25

27 _____
28 ⁴ To the extent that the Fenton parties contend they are prejudiced because their expert witness already prepared his report [Dkt. 225 at 5:11-12], Magistrate Judge Ferenbach may consider allowing supplementation of that report after the depositions are completed.

1 Finally, the December 9 Order improperly limits the scope of Goldsmith's deposition to:
2 "(1) any previously asked question to which Hannon or Wentland asserted the Fifth Amendment
3 privilege, and (2) any other area of inquiry not previously pursued." [Dkt. #189 at 12:22-24.]
4 Because Goldsmith was not previously deposed, the scope of his deposition should not be limited.

5 Based on the foregoing,

6 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the Objections filed by Law [Dkt. #204] and Zemke
7 [Dkt. #205] are DENIED AS MOOT because the remedy awarded to the Fenton parties in the 8 December 9 Order is hereby reversed. The two Objections filed by the Defendants [Dkt. ##208, 9 210] are GRANTED IN PART and DENIED IN PART.

11 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Hannon, Wentland, and Goldsmith will be re-deposed
12 in Las Vegas, but the Defendants may not commence their questioning until after the other parties
13 complete their portions of the depositions of Hannon, Wentland, or Goldsmith.
14

15 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the scope of Hannon and Wentland's depositions will 16 be limited to: (1) any previously asked question to which Hannon or Wentland asserted the Fifth 17 Amendment privilege and (2) any other area of inquiry not previously pursued.
18

19 IT IS FURTHERER ORDERED that the parties will notify Magistrate Judge Ferenbach 20 when the depositions will occur so that he may be available by phone to resolve objections if 21 requested.

22 DATED this 18th day of February, 2014.
