court dismisses a complaint under § 1915(a), the plaintiff should be given leave to amend the complaint with directions as to curing its deficiencies, unless it is clear from the face of the complaint that the deficiencies could not be cured by amendment. See Cato v. United States, 70 F.3d 1103, 1106 (9th Cir. 1995).

Rule 12(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provides for dismissal of a complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. Review under Rule 12(b)(6) is essentially a ruling on a question of law. North Star Intern. v. Arizona Corp. Comm'n, 720 F.2d 578, 580 (9th Cir. 1983). In considering whether the plaintiff has stated a claim upon which relief can be granted, all material allegations in the complaint are accepted as true and are to be construed in the light most favorable to the plaintiff. Russell v. Landrieu, 621 F.2d 1037, 1039 (9th Cir. 1980). Allegations of a pro se complaint are held to less stringent standards than formal pleading drafted by lawyers. Haines v. Kerner, 404 U.S. 519, 520 (1972) (per curiam).

Plaintiff did not submit a Complaint. Rather, he seeks to file a motion to vacate and remand an arbitration award entered December 7, 2010, pursuant to Section 10 of the Federal Arbitration Act.

Before he can file a motion to vacate and remand, he must first submit a complaint. A complaint is the initial pleading that starts a civil lawsuit and states the basis for a plaintiff's claim and the demand for relief. See Black's Law Dictionary (8th ed. 2004). If Plaintiff files a complaint, the court will screen it to determine whether it states a claim upon which relief can be granted. If it states a claim, the court will direct that it be served on Defendant. After Defendant has filed an answer or other responsive pleading, the court will enter a scheduling order to decide the case on the merits. Plaintiff is advised that Rule 8(a)(2) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure requires that a complaint contain "a short and plain statement of the claim showing the pleader is entitled to relief." Id. Additionally, Rule 8(e) states, "Each averment of a pleading shall be simple, concise, and direct." Taken together, these rules emphasize the requirement that pleadings should be clear and brief. Complaints should not be needlessly long, highly repetitive, or rambling. Plaintiff's complaint, therefore, should be limited to a short and plain statement of his claims against Defendant.
