UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF NEVADA

CLARKWESTERN DIETRICH BUILDING SYSTEMS LLC, d/b/a CLARKDIETRICH, Plaintiff,

vs.

ALLSTEEL & GYPSUM PRODUCTS, INC.,
a Florida corporation, et al.,

Defendants.

Case No.: 2:14-cv-01319-RFB-GWF

ORDER
Re: Motion for Leave to Amend
Answer (#56)

This matter is before the Court on Defendants’ Motion Seeking Leave to File First Amended Answer of Defendants (#56), filed on January 21, 2015. Plaintiff’s filed their Opposition (#57) on February 6, 2015 and Defendants filed their Reply (#61) on February 17, 2015. The Court conducted a hearing in this matter on March 10, 2015.

BACKGROUND

Plaintiff ClarkWestern Dietrich Building Systems, LLC (“ClarkDietrich”) filed its complaint on August 13, 2014 alleging claims against the Defendants for conspiracy to restrain trade in violation of Section 1 of the Sherman Act, 15 U.S.C. §1; Violation of RICO, 18 U.S.C. §§ 1962(c), 1962(d) and 1964(c); intentional interference with prospective economic advantage; common law civil conspiracy; and unjust enrichment. Defendants filed their answer on September 8, 2014. On October 2, 2014, the Court approved the parties’ proposed discovery plan and scheduling order which provided that the parties had until February 6, 2015 in which to file any motions to amend the pleadings.

1 Defendants' instant motion seeks to amend their answer to allege the following affirmative 2 defenses: Twenty-Fifth Affirmative Defense: The anti-trust claim under the Sherman Act is 3 barred under the Noerr-Pennington doctrine; Twenty-Sixth Affirmative Defense: The claim under 4 the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act ("RICO"), 18 U.S.C. §§ 1961-1968, is 5 barred under the Noerr-Pennington doctrine; and Twenty-Seventh Affirmative Defense: The 6 claims of Plaintiff are barred by the First Amendment to the United States Constitution. Motion 7 (#56), Proposed First Amended Answer, pgs 30-31. Plaintiff opposes the motion on the grounds that 8 the proposed affirmative defenses are invalid as a matter of law and the proposed amendment would 9 therefore be futile.

10 Plaintiff ClarkDietrich alleges that it, and its predecessor entities, manufacture nonstructural 11 steel framing products, steel studs and tracks, which are used to create interior walls of office 12 buildings, hotels, warehouses, stores and other commercial buildings. Plaintiff uses "large scale cold 13 reduction mill technology" and equivalent "EQ" coatings in the manufacture of its products which 14 allegedly give it a cost and economic advantage over its competitors. Defendants are competing 15 manufacturers of nonstructural steel framing products and were or are members of the Steel Stud 16 Manufacturers Association, Inc. ("SSMA"), a trade association of steel framing product 17 manufacturers. Plaintiff was also formerly a member of the SSMA. Complaint (#1), ¶¶ 15-18.

18 Plaintiff alleges that in 2009 an Ohio manufacturer, Marino/WARE, filed a lawsuit against 19 Plaintiff's predecessor companies in the United States District Court in New Jersey which involved 20 the parties' disagreements about the interpretation of various industry standards relating to the 21 manufacture of nonstructural steel framing products. The parties entered into a settlement agreement 22 in January 2010 which referenced the SSMA's development of a program pursuant to which it would 23 certify nonstructural steel framing products as compliant with applicable building codes. The parties 24 agreed to cooperate with the SSMA in its development of the "SSMA Compliance Program" and to 25 comply with it when it became effective. Complaint (#1), ¶¶ 19-20.

26 Thereafter, the SSMA's Technical Task Force drafted, approved and recommended for 27 adoption technical requirements which were met by Plaintiff's products. ¶ 22. Plaintiff alleges, 28 however, that the Defendants conspired to add "sham elements" to the SSMA Compliance Program

1 which included a “ductility”/“elongation” requirement and a “coatings” requirement that had not 2 been recommended by the Technical Task Force. Plaintiff’s nonstructural steel products could not 3 comply with the additional requirements. Plaintiff alleges that there was no scientific, technical, 4 engineering or safety justification for these requirements and that the Defendants conspired to have 5 the SSMA adopt them in order to eliminate Plaintiff’s competitive advantage. ¶ 23.

6 Prior to the October 2010 SSMA meeting in Las Vegas, Plaintiff and the Association of the 7 Walls and Ceiling Industry (“AWCI”), an association of companies that purchase nonstructural steel 8 framing products, sent letters to the SSMA board of directors and members objecting to the proposed 9 “ductility”/“elongation” and “coatings” requirements. Plaintiff warned the SSMA and the 10 Defendants that the adoption of these requirements would violate anti-trust law. ¶¶ 24-26.
11 Notwithstanding these objections and warnings, a majority of the SSMA members, including the 12 Defendants, voted to adopt the SSMA Compliance Program with the “ductility”/“elongation” and 13 “coatings” requirements. ¶ 27. Plaintiff alleges that “[t]he adoption of the sham standards had an 14 immediate and lasting impact” on its business and that its share of the nationwide market dropped 15 significantly. ¶¶ 28-29.

16 In addition to alleging that Defendant’s conduct in promoting and adopting the “sham 17 standards” was unlawful, Plaintiff further alleges as follows:

18 96. On November 12, 2010, in an effort to intimidate AWCI into 19 backing the sham SSMA standards, SSMA’s General Counsel wrote to 20 AWCI, threatening to sue AWCI and its President over its opposition 21 to the sham standards. The SSMA had no good faith basis to threaten 22 a lawsuit, which would have itself been a sham.

21 Complaint (#1), ¶ 96.

22 Plaintiff alleges that the AWCI responded to the letter by advising the SSMA that its actions 23 were not constructive and that it would “not be intimidated into shirking its responsibility to the 24 industry.” ¶ 97. Plaintiff’s first claim for relief for conspiracy to restrain trade in violation of 25 Section 1 of the Sherman Act, incorporates each preceding paragraph of the complaint, including 26 paragraph 96. ¶ 139. Plaintiff also specifically includes the allegations in paragraph 96 as part of the 27 fraudulent and predicate acts of wire and mail fraud in its second claim for relief under the RICO 28 statutes. ¶¶ 131, 150, 154, 155, and 158.

1 DISCUSSION

2 Rule 15(a)(2) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provides that where leave of court is 3 required to amend a pleading, leave should be freely given when justice so requires. Within this 4 liberal standard, the court has the discretion to deny leave to amend based on consideration of the 5 following factors: bad faith, undue delay, prejudice to the opposing party, futility of amendment and 6 whether the party has previously amended its pleading. Johnson v. Buckley, 356 F.3d 1067, 1077 7 (9th Cir. 2004), citing Nunes v. Ashcroft, 348 F.3d 815, 818 (9th Cir. 2003). “Futility alone can 8 justify the denial of a motion to amend.” Id. In this case, Defendants moved for leave to amend 9 their answer within the scheduling order deadline for such motions. Defendants have not previously 10 amended their answer, and there is no allegation that Defendants have acted in bad faith or engaged 11 in undue delay, or that Plaintiff will be unfairly prejudiced if the amended answer is allowed. The 12 sole basis for objection is that the amendment is futile. “[A] proposed amendment is futile only if no 13 set of facts can be proved under the amendment to the pleadings that would constitute a valid and 14 sufficient claim or defense.” Miller v. Rykoff-Sexton, Inc., 845 F.2d 209, 214 (9th Cir. 1988), citing 15 Baker v. Pacific Far East Lines, Inc., 451 F.Supp. 84, 89 (N.D.Cal. 1978) and 3 J. Moore, Moore’s
16 Federal Practice ¶ 15.08[4] (2d ed. 1974). See also Sweaney v. Ada County, Idaho, 119 F.3d 1385, 17 1393 (9th Cir. 1997).

18 There is a split of authority as to whether a motion to amend a pleading is a dispositive 19 matter, particularly where the opposition is based on the alleged futility of the amendment. Hall v.
20 Norfolk Southern Railway Co., 469 F.3d 590, 594-95 (7th Cir. 2006) holds that a motion for leave to 21 amend a pleading is a non-dispositive motion under 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1)(A). In Allendale Mutual 22 Ins. Co. v. Rutherford, 178 F.R.D. 1, 2 (D. Me. 1998), however, the district court held that the 23 magistrate judge’s order denying defendant’s motion to amend its answer was a dispositive ruling 24 because it eliminated a potential defense. District courts within the Ninth Circuit also disagree on 25 this issue. See JJCO, Inc. v. Isuzu Motors America, Inc., 2009 WL 3818247 (D. Hawaii 2009) 26 (magistrate judge’s order denying leave to amend complaint was non-dispositive); Gossett v.
27 Stewart, 2009 WL 3379018 (D. Ariz. 2009) (denial of motion for leave to amend was treated as 28 dispositive because the denial would effectively dismiss four of plaintiff’s proposed causes of

1 action). Because the undersigned concludes that leave to amend should be granted in this case, the 2 concern with the potential dispositive effect of a decision on the motion is lessened, if non-existent.
3 If an objection is filed to this order, however, the district judge may be required to determine the 4 appropriate level of review. A magistrate judge’s ruling on a non-dispositive matter may be reversed
5 only if it is clearly erroneous or contrary to law. A recommendation on a dispositive motion, 6 however, is subject to de novo review by the district judge. If the district judge determines that the 7 subject motion is dispositive in nature, then the undersigned requests that this order be treated as a 8 recommendation pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1)(B).

9 Defendants seek to assert the Noerr-Pennington doctrine as an affirmative defense to 10 Plaintiff’s Sherman Act and civil RICO claims. Defendants also seek to assert their First 11 Amendment rights as an affirmative defense to Plaintiff’s complaint, generally. In Allied Tube & 12 Conduit Corp. v. Indian Head, Inc., 486 U.S. 492, 499-500, 108 S.Ct. 1931, 1936-37 (1988), the 13 Supreme Court summarized the Noerr-Pennington doctrine as follows:

14 Concerted efforts to restrain or monopolize trade by petitioning 15 government officials are protected from antitrust liability under the 16 doctrine established by Noerr;¹ Mine Workers v. Pennington, 381 U.S.
17 657, 669–672, 85 S.Ct. 1585, 1593–1595, 14 L.Ed.2d 626 (1965); and 18 California Motor Transport Co. v. Trucking Unlimited, 404 U.S. 508, 19 92 S.Ct. 609, 30 L.Ed.2d 642 (1972). The scope of this protection 20 depends, however, on the source, context, and nature of the 21 anticompetitive restraint at issue. “[W]here a restraint upon trade or 22 monopolization is the result of valid governmental action, as opposed 23 to private action,” those urging the governmental action enjoy absolute 24 immunity from antitrust liability for the anticompetitive restraint.
25 Noerr, 365 U.S., at 136, 81 S.Ct., at 529; see also Pennington, supra, 26 381 U.S., at 671, 85 S.Ct., at 1594. In addition, where, independent of 27 any government action, the anticompetitive restraint results directly 28 from private action, the restraint cannot form the basis for antitrust liability if it is “incidental” to a valid effort to influence governmental action. Noerr, supra, 365 U.S., at 143, 81 S.Ct., at 532–533. The validity of such efforts, and thus the applicability of Noerr immunity, varies with the context and nature of the activity. A publicity campaign directed at the general public, seeking legislation or executive action, enjoys antitrust immunity even when the campaign employs unethical and deceptive methods. Noerr, supra, 365 U.S., at 140–141, 81 S.Ct., at 531. But in less political arenas, unethical and deceptive practices can constitute abuses of administrative or judicial processes that may result in antitrust violations. California Motor

¹*Eastern Railroad Presidents Conference v. Noerr Motor Freight Inc.*, 365 U.S.127, 81 S.Ct. 523 (1961)

1 Transport, supra, 404 U.S., at 512–513, 92 S.Ct., at 612.

2 In Allied Tube, the plaintiff, a manufacturer of polyvinyl chloride electrical conduit, sued the 3 defendant under the Sherman Act for conspiring to prevent the inclusion of polyvinyl chloride
4 electrical conduit in the National Electrical Code published by the National Fire Protection 5 Association (“NFPA”). The plaintiff had initiated a proposal to include polyvinyl chloride conduit 6 as an approved type of electrical conduit in the National Electrical Code. A professional panel of the 7 NFPA approved the proposal and scheduled it for a vote at the NFPA’s convention where it could be 8 adopted or rejected by majority vote. The defendant conspired with members of the steel industry, 9 other steel conduit manufacturers and independent sales agents to pack the NFPA’s annual meeting 10 with new members whose only function was to vote against the polyvinyl chloride proposal. The 11 plan succeeded and the proposal was rejected.

12 The Supreme Court noted that the NFPA “is a private, voluntary organization with more than 13 31,500 individual and group members representing industry, labor, academia, insurers, organized 14 medicine, firefighters, and government.” 486 U.S. at 495, 108 S.Ct. at 1934. The National Electrical 15 Code establishes product and performance requirements for the design and installation of electrical 16 wiring systems, including conduit. The Court noted that a substantial number of state and local 17 governments routinely adopt the code into law with little or no change, and that private laboratories 18 normally will not list and label an electrical product that does not meet the code’s standards. The 19 Court also noted that insurance underwriters will not insure structures that are not built in conformity 20 with the code and that many inspectors, contractors and distributors will not use a product that falls 21 outside the code. Id., 486 U.S. at 495-96, 108 S.Ct. at 1934. In holding that the defendant was not 22 entitled to immunity under the Noerr-Pennington doctrine, the Court stated:

23 Whatever de facto authority the Association enjoys, no official 24 authority has been conferred on it by any government, and the 25 decisionmaking body of the Association is composed, at least in part, 26 of persons with economic incentives to restrain trade. See Continental 27 Ore Co. v. Union Carbide & Carbon Corp., 370 U.S. 690, 707–708, 28 82 S.Ct. 1404, 1415, 8 L.Ed.2d 777 (1962). See also id., at 706–707, 82 S.Ct., at 1414–1415; Goldfarb v. Virginia State Bar, 421 U.S. 773, 791–792, 95 S.Ct. 2004, 2015, 44 L.Ed.2d 572 (1975). “We may presume, absent a showing to the contrary, that [a government] acts in the public interest. A private party, on the other hand, may be presumed to be acting primarily on his or its own behalf.” Hallie v.

1 Eau Claire, 471 U.S. 34, 45, 105 S.Ct. 1713, 1719–1720, 85 L.Ed.2d 2 24 (1985). The dividing line between restraints resulting from 3 governmental action and those resulting from private action may not 4 always be obvious. But where, as here, the restraint is imposed by 5 persons unaccountable to the public and without official authority, 6 many of whom have personal financial interests in restraining 7 competition, we have no difficulty concluding that the restraint has 8 resulted from private action.

9 Allied Tube, 486 U.S. at 501-02, 108 S.Ct. at 1937-38.

10 Although the Court recognized that the defendant’s effort was also aimed at influencing state 11 and local legislative bodies who adopt the NFPA’s code, the Court declined to extend the Noerr- 12 Pennington doctrine to the conduct at issue. Id., 486 U.S. at 502-509, 108 S.Ct. 1038-42. Insofar as 13 Plaintiff ClarkDietrich’s claims are predicated on Defendants’ alleged conduct in causing the SSMA 14 to adopt “ductility/elongation” and “coatings” requirements as association standards, All Tube 15 appears to be “on all-fours” with this case and bars Defendants from asserting the Noerr-Pennington 16 doctrine as an affirmative defense.

17 Defendants argue, however, that the affirmative defenses are properly asserted in regard to 18 Plaintiff’s allegations relating to civil actions between the parties. In Sosa v. Direct TV, Inc., 437 19 F.3d 923 (9th Cir. 2006), the plaintiff alleged that Direct TV violated the RICO statutes by sending 20 letters to thousands of individuals who had purchased smart card programming equipment, which 21 could be used to illegally access Direct TV’s satellite television programs, threatening them with 22 civil legal actions unless they forfeited the equipment to Direct TV and paid Direct TV an 23 unspecified sum to settle its claim. The district court dismissed the action on the grounds that Direct 24 TV’s sending of the demand letters was immunized from RICO liability under the Noerr-Pennington
25 doctrine. In affirming the district court’s decision, the Ninth Circuit noted that the Supreme Court 26 has extended the Noerr-Pennington doctrine to matters outside the antitrust field. Sosa, 437 F.3d at 27 930. The court further noted that in BE & K Construction Co. v. NLRB, 536 U.S. 516, 525, 122 28 S.Ct. 2390 (2002), the Supreme Court held that the doctrine prevented the NLRB from “impos[ing] liability on an employer for its unsuccessful prosecution of lawsuits that, while not objectively baseless, were brought for the purpose of retaliating against workers for exercising the rights the NLRA protects.” Id. “The Court found that because the lawsuits at issue were not baseless, they did

1 not fall within the established ‘sham litigation’ exception laid out in Professional Real Estate
2 Investors, Inc. v. Columbia Picture Industries, Inc., 508 U.S. 49, 113 S.Ct. 1920, 123 L.Ed.2d 611
3 (1993) (PRE II), or within the analogous rule in labor law contexts established in Bill Johnson’s.”
4 Id. 437 F.3d at 930-31. In light of BE & K’s application of Noerr-Pennington to the NLRA, Sosa 5 concluded that the doctrine stands for a general rule of statutory construction, applicable to any 6 statutory interpretation that could implicate rights protected by the Petition Clause of the First 7 Amendment. Id., 437 F.3d at 931. In determining whether the burdened conduct falls under the 8 protection of the Petition Clause, the court “must give adequate ‘breathing space’ to the right to 9 petition.” Id., at 932. The court noted, however, that neither the Petition Clause nor the Noerr- 10 Pennington doctrine protects sham petitions, and statutes need not be construed to permit them. Id.

11 Sosa noted that “only litigation activities which constitute ‘communication[s] to the court’ 12 may be fairly described as ‘petitions.’” Id., at 933, citing Freeman v. Lasky, Haas & Cohler, 410 13 F.3d 1180, 1184 (9th Cir. 2005). Such communications include a complaint, answer, counterclaim, 14 and assorted documents and pleadings filed by the parties. Although the presuit demand letters were 15 not themselves petitions, the court stated that the Petition Clause may nevertheless preclude 16 burdening them so as to preserve the breathing space required for the effective exercise of the rights 17 it protects. Id. The court stated that “[c]onsistent with the breathing space principle, we have 18 recognized that, in the litigation context, not only petitions sent directly to the court in the course of 19 the litigation, but also ‘conduct incidental to the prosecution of the suit’ is protected by the Noerr-
20 Pennington doctrine.” Id., at 934. The court concluded “that the connection between presuit 21 demand letters and access to the courts is sufficiently close that the Petition Clause issues raised by 22 providing a treble-damages remedy with regard to such letters are indeed substantial.” Id., at 936.

23 Defendants argue that Sosa supports the assertion of the proposed affirmative defenses 24 because Plaintiff’s Complaint alleges that “the seeds of the conspiracy” go back to the prior New 25 Jersey lawsuit. See Reply (#61), pg. 5, quoting paragraphs 19 and 20 of the Complaint. The Court 26 finds this basis for asserting the Noerr-Pennington doctrine to be unpersuasive. Plaintiff does not 27 allege that Defendants’ conduct in relation to the filing or prosecution of the New Jersey action 28 provides grounds for imposing antitrust, RICO or state law liability on the Defendants. Rather, the

1 prior New Jersey action is discussed only for purposes of providing a historical context for the 2 subsequent SSMA Compliance Program and the Defendants’ alleged efforts to misuse that program 3 for anti-competitive purposes.

4 Plaintiff, however, does allege that the SSMA sought to intimidate the AWCI into supporting 5 the “ductility/“elongation” and “coatings” requirements by threatening to sue the association and its 6 president over their opposition to those requirements. Complaint (#1), ¶ 96. Plaintiff makes this 7 allegation part of the factual basis for its Sherman Act conspiracy and RICO claims against the 8 Defendants. Pursuant to Sosa, the Noerr-Pennington doctrine may provide a valid defense to the 9 allegation in paragraph 96. The proposed Twenty-Fifth and Twenty-Sixth Affirmative Defenses 10 therefore cannot be deemed futile at this point in the litigation. Plaintiff may, of course, be able to 11 overcome these affirmative defenses by showing that the threatened lawsuit was not objectively 12 reasonable and was further evidence of Defendant’s wrongful intent.

13 Defendants’ proposed Twenty-Seventh Affirmative Defense that Plaintiff’s claims are barred 14 by the First Amendment is arguably superfluous to its affirmative defenses based on the Noerr- 15 Pennington doctrine. The Court will allow this affirmative defense with the understanding that it is 16 predicated in the same analysis underlying the assertion of the Noerr-Pennington doctrine.

17 CONCLUSION

18 Defendants’ proposed Twenty-Fifth, Twenty-Sixth and Twenty-Seventh Affirmative defenses 19 assert potentially valid defenses to a portion of the conduct alleged by Plaintiff to be in violation of 20 ...

21 ...
22 ...
23 ...
24 ...
25 ...
26 ...
27 ...

1 the antitrust laws and the RICO statutes. The proposed amendment is therefore not futile.

2 Accordingly,

3 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Defendants' Motion Seeking Leave to File First Amended
