20 Pending before the Court is a Motion to Dismiss (ECF No. 11) filed by Defendants
21 Christopher Lowden ("Lowden"), Harold Gray ("Gray"), SRC Nightclub & Grill, LLC
22 ("SRC"), and Stoney's Entertainment, Inc. ("SEI") (collectively, "Defendants"). Plaintiffs
23 Battalion Chief Grandchildren's Fund, by and through its trustee, Angelina Gallindo
24 ("Gallindo") on behalf of herself and nominal defendant SRC, Raven Entertainment, LLC
25 ("Raven") on behalf of itself and nominal defendant SEI, and Seer Cartel, LLC ("Seer Cartel")

1 (collectively, “Plaintiffs”) filed a Response (ECF No. 16), and Defendants filed a Reply (ECF
2 No. 19).<sup>1</sup>

3 I. BACKGROUND

4 This case arises as a member and shareholder derivative action against officer-
5 Defendants Lowden and Gray. (Compl. ¶ 1, ECF No. 1). Plaintiffs allege that Gray “organized 6 Nominal Defendant SRC for the stated purpose of conducting a nightclub and bar business at 7 the premises located at 9155 S. Las Vegas Blvd., Suite 300, Las Vegas, Nevada 89123
8 (‘Stoney’s’).” (Id. ¶ 15). Gray then allegedly “caused SRC to offer to the public 50 units of 9 membership interest in SRC at the price of $50,000 per unit.” (Id. ¶ 16). Gallindo bought one 10 membership unit, and Raven acquired three units. (Id. ¶¶ 17–19). Plaintiffs allege that 11 Defendants “raised over $2.5 million from private investors,” which they predominantly used
12 “to finance their extravagant lifestyle.” (Id. ¶ 20). Plaintiffs further allege that Defendants 13 “misappropriated from SRC tens of thousands of dollars in cash that was collected by SRC as 14 cover charges at Stoney’s and that was not accounted for in company books or reported to the 15 Internal Revenue Service . . . [and] SRC became insolvent.” (Id. ¶ 27–28).

16 Plaintiffs then allege that Defendants “created another company, SEI, and in August 17 2012 offered the previous SRC’s investors a membership-interest swap for SEI’s shares” while 18 also issuing “several [of] SEI’s shares to new investors.” (Id. ¶ 29). Plaintiffs allege that any 19 distributions to any investors were “financed from other investors’ money,” paid to “selectively 20 picked investors, mostly their friends and families,” and none of it was properly documented.
21 (Id. ¶¶ 26, 33–35, 37). Raven “signed the equity-swap agreement, thus becoming a shareholder
22 of SEI,” while Gallindo “refused to sign . . . and subsequently lost her investment in SRC due
23 to Stoney’s closing its doors and SRC failing to renew its business license with the Nevada

25 <sup>1</sup> Defendants also filed a Motion for Leave to Exceed Page Limits on their Reply. (ECF No. 18). For good cause appearing, the Court grants Defendants’ Motion (ECF No. 18) and will consider Defendants’ Reply in full.

1 Secretary of State.” (Id. ¶¶ 31–32). Ultimately, SEI became insolvent and closed in 2013, and 2 its “remaining assets [were sold] to SRC 1, LLC, d/b/a Las Vegas Bull.” (Id. ¶¶ 36, 38).

3 Plaintiffs then allege similar facts regarding Defendants selling units for $50,000 for 4 Stoney’s Evansville, “a nightclub and bar business in Evansville, Indiana.” (Id. ¶¶ 41–42).
5 Plaintiff Seer Cartel bought one membership unit in Stoney’s Evansville. (Id. ¶ 43). Plaintiffs 6 assert similar allegations regarding Defendants’ use of investor money for other purposes than 7 Stoney’s Evansville. (Id. ¶¶ 44–48).

8 Plaintiffs state that they first learned of the alleged fraud on December 5, 2012. (Id.
9 ¶ 49). Plaintiff’s Complaint, filed on December 5, 2015, includes the following ten claims for 10 relief: (1) RICO, 18 U.S.C. §§ 1961-1968—Civil RICO and NRS 207.470; (2) breach of 11 fiduciary duties; (3) intentional misrepresentation (fraud); (4) unjust enrichment; (5) civil 12 conspiracy; (6) accounting; (7) securities fraud, violations of Securities Act Section 17(a), 15
13 U.S.C. § 77q(a); (8) securities fraud, violations of Exchange Act Section 10(b), 15 U.S.C.
14 § 78j(b); (9) securities fraud, violations of Exchange Act Rule 13b2-2, 17 C.F.R. § 240.13b2-2;
15 and (10) securities fraud, violations of Exchange Act Rule 13(b)(2)(A) and 13(b)(2)(B).

16 II. LEGAL STANDARD

17 Dismissal is appropriate under Rule 12(b)(6) where a pleader fails to state a claim upon 18 which relief can be granted. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6); Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 19 555 (2007). A pleading must give fair notice of a legally cognizable claim and the grounds on 20 which it rests, and although a court must take all factual allegations as true, legal conclusions
21 couched as a factual allegations are insufficient. Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555. Accordingly, Rule 22 12(b)(6) “requires more than labels and conclusions, and a formulaic recitation of the elements 23 of a cause of action will not do.” Id.

24 “To survive a motion to dismiss, a complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, 25 accepted as true, to ‘state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.’” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556
U.S. 662, 678 (2009) (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555). “A claim has facial plausibility

1 when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference
2 that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged.” Id. This standard “asks for more than a 3 sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.” Id.

4 “Generally, a district court may not consider any material beyond the pleadings in ruling
5 on a Rule 12(b)(6) motion . . . However, material which is properly submitted as part of the 6 complaint may be considered on a motion to dismiss.” Hal Roach Studios, Inc. v. Richard
7 Feiner & Co., 896 F.2d 1542, 1555 n.19 (9th Cir. 1990) (citations omitted). Similarly,
8 “documents whose contents are alleged in a complaint and whose authenticity no party 9 questions, but which are not physically attached to the pleading, may be considered in ruling on 10 a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss” without converting the motion to dismiss into a motion for 11 summary judgment. Branch v. Tunnell, 14 F.3d 449, 454 (9th Cir. 1994), overruled on other 12 grounds by Galbraith v. Cty. of Santa Clara, 307 F.3d 1119 (9th Cir. 2002). Under Federal 13 Rule of Evidence 201, a court may take judicial notice of “matters of public record.” Mack v. S.
14 Bay Beer Distrib., 798 F.2d 1279, 1282 (9th Cir. 1986). Otherwise, if the district court
15 considers materials outside of the pleadings, the motion to dismiss is converted into a motion
16 for summary judgment. See Arpin v. Santa Clara Valley Transp. Agency, 261 F.3d 912, 925
17 (9th Cir. 2001).

18 If the court grants a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, leave to amend should 19 be granted unless it is clear that the deficiencies of the complaint cannot be cured by 20 amendment. DeSoto v. Yellow Freight Sys., Inc., 957 F.2d 655, 658 (9th Cir. 1992). Pursuant 21 to Rule 15(a), the court should “freely” give leave to amend “when justice so requires,” and in 22 the absence of a reason such as “undue delay, bad faith or dilatory motive on the part of the 23 movant, repeated failure to cure deficiencies by amendments previously allowed, undue 24 prejudice to the opposing party by virtue of allowance of the amendment, futility of the 25 amendment, etc.” Foman v. Davis, 371 U.S. 178, 182 (1962).

1 III. DISCUSSION

2 Defendants seek to dismiss this case because they argue that the investors knew the risks
3 associated with their investment, but they are “now unhappy with their lack of profits.” (Def.
4 Mot. to Dismiss (“MTD”) 2:4–5, ECF No. 11). Defendants further contend that Plaintiffs’
5 security fraud claims are both “barred by the statute of limitations” and “unsubstantiated.” (Id.
6 2:6–7). Further, Defendants assert that Plaintiffs’ “federal RICO claim fails because it is based 7 on securities fraud.” (Id. 2:7–8). Lastly, Defendants argue that all state law claims should be 8 dismissed “because they are not adequately pled and are directly contradicted by the very 9 documents upon which they are purportedly based.” (Id. 2:8–9).

10 A. Securities Fraud (Claims Seven through Ten)

11 First, with regard to Plaintiffs’ security fraud causes of action, claims seven through ten,
12 28 U.S.C. § 1658(b)(1) provides a two-year statute of limitations, as of the date of discovery,
13 for all fraud related to securities law.<sup>2</sup> Plaintiffs’ Complaint alleges that they discovered the 14 facts constituting the violations on December 5, 2012 (Compl. ¶ 49), and the Complaint was 15 filed on the same date three years later. Defendants make this statute of limitations argument in 16 their Motion, and Plaintiffs fail to respond. As such, the Court finds that Plaintiffs’ securities
17 fraud claims are clearly outside the statute of limitations. Because the statute of limitations
18 bars these claims, leave to amend would be futile. Accordingly, the Court dismisses claims 19 seven through ten with prejudice.

20 B. Federal Civil RICO Claim

21 Next, with regard to Plaintiffs’ federal RICO claim, Defendants argue that this claim is 22 barred by the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act (“PSLRA”). (Def. MTD 2:1–2).

25 <sup>2</sup> “[A] private right of action that involves a claim of fraud, deceit, manipulation, or contrivance in contravention of a regulatory requirement concerning the securities laws . . . may be brought not later than . . . 2 years after the discovery of the facts constituting the violation.” 28 U.S.C. § 1658(b)(1).

1           The PSLRA provides for an exclusion from federal civil RICO of any claim based on
2 alleged misconduct that would have been actionable as securities fraud. See 18 U.S.C.
3 § 1964(c). Under SEC Rule 10b–5, it is illegal to “engage in any act, practice, or course of 4 business which operates or would operate as a fraud or deceit upon any person, in connection
5 with the purchase or sale of any security.” 17 C.F.R. § 240.10b–5. Plaintiffs insists that the 6 transactions involved were not “in connection with the purchase or sale of any security,” and 7 they should therefore be free to proceed with their federal civil RICO claim despite the PSLRA
8 exclusion. (Pl. Resp. 16:25–18:17, ECF No. 16). The Court finds otherwise.

9           The definition of a security is “a flexible rather than a static principle, one that is capable 10 of adaptation to meet the countless and variable schemes devised by those who seek the use of 11 the money of others on the promise of profits.” SEC v. W.J. Howey Co., 328 U.S. 293 (1946) 12 (noting also “the Supreme Court’s repeated rejection of a narrow and literal reading of the 13 definition of securities”). The Ninth Circuit further clarified Howey by explaining that the 14 Court held that a security requires an investment of funds in a common enterprise “with an 15 expectation of profits produced by the efforts of others.” Warfield v. Alaniz, 569 F.3d 1015, 16 1020 (9th Cir. 2009) (quoting SEC v. Rubera, 350 F.3d 1084, 1090 (9th Cir. 2003)).

17           The requirement under section 10(b) that the fraud committed be “in connection with” a 18 securities transaction means “that a certain relationship [must] be established between the fraud
19 and the transaction that resulted in the injury complained of.” In re Fin. Corp. of Am. S’holder
20 Litig., 796 F.2d 1126, 1129–30 (9th Cir. 1986). To satisfy the “in connection with”
21 requirement, “[i]t is enough that the scheme to defraud and the sale of securities coincide.” SEC
22 v. Zandford, 535 U.S. 813, 822 (2002) (theft of money from client’s mutual fund account was 23 securities fraud because it required broker to make otherwise legitimate sales of securities in 24 the account).

1 Plaintiffs' federal civil RICO allegations clearly demonstrate a connection with 2 securities. Plaintiffs allege that they invested funds in SRC, SEI, and Stoney's Evansville—
3 common enterprises—expecting a return on their investment, profits, produced by Defendants'
4 efforts. (See, e.g., Compl. ¶ 17). As the Supreme Court explained in Zandford, “This is not a 5 case in which, after a lawful transaction had been consummated, a broker decided to steal the 6 proceeds and did so. Nor is it a case in which a thief simply invested the proceeds of a routine
7 conversion in the stock market.” Zandford, 535 U.S. at 820. Plaintiffs' federal civil RICO
8 claim specifically alleges that Defendants “falsely represented” what the investment money 9 would be used for, “unlawfully issued membership interests, without consideration,” “issued
10 and mailed to investors false financial statements, K-1s, and equity statements,” created a 11 “pyramid-like scheme,” and “coerced and/or swindled SRC investors into swapping their 12 shares for a membership interest in SEI.” (Compl. ¶¶ 57–63). The allegations that Defendants 13 embezzled the investment money “to support their lavish personal expenditures” does not 14 remove the connection to the overall fraudulent securities scheme. (Id. ¶ 56).

15 Plaintiffs argue that their Complaint's predicate RICO claims are not securities, but 16 rather Defendants' “numerous illegal misappropriation, embezzlement, and fraudulently drafted
17 financial documents covering up their wrongdoing by mail and wire.” (Pl. Resp. 17:9–12).
18 However, these allegations are clearly akin to “a broker who accepts payment for securities that 19 he never intends to deliver, or who sells customer securities with intent to misappropriate the 20 proceeds,” which demonstrates a violation of § 10(b). Zandford, 535 U.S. at 819. The 21 investments in SRC, SEI, and Stoney's Evansville are the lynchpins of the fraudulent scheme
22 alleged. Further, Plaintiffs cannot assert a RICO claim based on predicate acts that sound in 23 securities fraud even if the claim is plead as a matter of mail fraud or wire fraud. See Howard v.
24 America Online Inc., 208 F.3d 741, 749–50 (9th Cir. 2000), cert. denied, 531 U.S. 828 (2000).

1 Accordingly, the Court finds that Plaintiffs’ federal civil RICO claim fails as a matter of law
2 because the PSLRA excludes securities fraud from federal civil RICO actions.

3 Because the PSLRA bar would apply under any internally consistent set of facts, it
4 would be futile to amend the RICO claim. Consequently, the Court will dismiss Plaintiffs’
5 federal civil RICO claim with prejudice. See Albrecht v. Lund, 845 F.2d 193, 195 (9th Cir.
6 1988) (if “the allegation of other facts consistent with the challenged pleading could not 7 possibly cure the deficiency, then . . . dismissal without leave to amend is proper.”); see also 8 Foman, 371 U.S. at 182.

9 C. Remaining State Law Claims

10 The dismissal with prejudice of Plaintiffs’ securities fraud and federal civil RICO claims 11 leaves only Plaintiffs’ state law claims. Jurisdiction over state law claims arises under 12 supplemental jurisdiction. See 28 USC § 1367; (see also Compl. ¶ 5). Supplemental 13 jurisdiction is a doctrine of discretion, not of right. City of Chicago v. Int’l College of Surgeons,
14 522 U.S. 156, 172 (1997); United Mine Workers of Am. v. Gibbs, 383 U.S. 715, 726 (1966). A 15 federal district court may decline to exercise supplemental jurisdiction over state law claims if 16 the district court has dismissed all claims over which it has original jurisdiction. See 28 USC
17 § 1367(c). The decision to decline to exercise supplemental jurisdiction under section 1367(c)
18 should be informed by the values of economy, convenience, fairness, and comity. Acri v.
19 Varian Assoc., Inc., 114 F.3d 999, 1001 (9th Cir. 1997) (en banc).

20 These values compel the Court to decline to continue exercising supplemental 21 jurisdiction over Plaintiffs’ remaining state law claims. “[I]n the usual case in which all 22 federal-law claims are eliminated before trial, the balance of factors . . . will point toward 23 declining to exercise jurisdiction over the remaining state-law claims.” Carnegie-Mellon Univ.
24 v. Cohill, 484 U.S. 343, 350 n.7 (1988). This case has not been extensively litigated in this 25 Court. On-going discussions remain regarding further discovery and a trial date has not yet

1 been set. Accordingly, the Court declines to exercise supplemental jurisdiction over Plaintiffs'
2 remaining state law claims and dismisses them without prejudice under 28 USC § 1367(c)(3).

3 IV. CONCLUSION

4 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Defendants' Motion to Dismiss (ECF No. 11) is 5 GRANTED. Plaintiffs' federal civil RICO claim, along with all four securities fraud claims
6 are dismissed with prejudice. Plaintiffs' remaining state law claims, including state civil RICO
7 under NRS 207.470, are dismissed without prejudice.

8 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Defendants' Motion for Leave to Exceed Page
9 Limits on their Reply (ECF No. 18) is GRANTED.

10 The Clerk of Court shall enter judgment accordingly and close the case.

11 DATED this 17 day of March, 2017.
