

1       II. ANALYSIS

2           Plaintiff moves under Rule 60(b)(5) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure for relief from 3 the court’s order (ECF No. 23) denying the motion to disqualify Defendants’ attorney. Plaintiff 4 argues that by filing the motion to dismiss, Defendants made a general appearance in the case and 5 that the court should now consider Plaintiff’s motion to disqualify Defendants’ attorney.
6 Specifically, Plaintiff argues that the court’s order “as applied prospectively is no longer equitable,
7 moot and/or justified.” (Mot. to Vacate (ECF No. 43) at 3.)

8           Defendants respond that the federal courts have abolished the distinction between general
9 and special appearances. They further argue that they have not been properly served with process
10 and that every appearance they have made in this matter has been under protest because the court
11 does not have personal jurisdiction over Defendants. Finally, Defendants argue that Rule 60(b)(5) 12 deals with prospective application of a judgment and that the court’s order denying the motion to 13 disqualify Defendants’ attorney is not an order that has prospective application. Defendants state
14 that the proper course of action would have been for Plaintiff to re-file his motion to disqualify
15 rather than seeking to vacate a properly entered order. Defendants request an opportunity to oppose 16 the motion to disqualify on its merits if the court decides to grant Plaintiff’s motion to vacate.

17           Plaintiff replies that Defendants have conceded personal jurisdiction, citing a University of 18 Miami Law Review article from 1961 and a Fifth Circuit case from 1957. Although it is somewhat 19 unclear, the court also understands Plaintiff to be arguing that he moved to disqualify Defendants’
20 attorney before effectuating service based on Plaintiff’s perception that Defendants had waived 21 service. Plaintiff further argues that Defendants’ failure to oppose the previous motion to 22 disqualify constitutes a consent to the granting of the motion.

23           Rule 60(b)(5) of the Federal Rules of Civil procedure provides in relevant part that “[o]n 24 motion and just terms, the court may relieve a party or its legal representative from a final 25 judgment, order, or proceeding . . .” if “the judgment has been satisfied, released or discharged; it is 26 based on an earlier judgment that has been reversed or vacated; or applying it prospectively is no
27 longer equitable” or for “any other reason that justifies relief.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(5)-(6). Rule 28 60(b) relief is only available from final judgments, orders, and proceedings. See United States v.

1 Martin, 226 F.3d 1042, 1048 n. 8 (9th Cir. 2000) (stating that Rule 60(b) applies only to motions
2 attaching “final, appealable orders”). “Virtually all pretrial orders are nonfinal, and thus, not 3 appealable.” 19 James Wm. Moore et al., Moore’s Federal Practice § 201.14 (3d. ed. 2011).
4 Nevertheless, the court has the inherent power to reconsider or amend interlocutory orders so long
5 as the court has jurisdiction over the case. Martin, 226 F.3d at 1048-49. In this district, Local Rule 6 59-1 prescribes the procedure for seeking reconsideration of an interlocutory order.

7 Here, the order denying Plaintiff’s motion to disqualify as moot is not a final, appealable
8 order. The court therefore finds that Rule 60(b)(5) is inapposite here. Although the court could 9 construe Defendant’s motion to vacate as a motion for reconsideration, the court declines to do so 10 at this time. Given that Plaintiff has not filed proof of service as to Defendants and that 11 Defendants’ motion to dismiss on that issue is pending before the assigned district judge, it does 12 not appear that the court has personal jurisdiction over Defendants. See Direct Mail Specialists, 13 Inc. v. Eclat Computerized Tech., Inc., 840 F.2d 685, 688 (9th Cir. 1988) (stating that “[a] federal 14 court does not have jurisdiction over a defendant unless the defendant has been served properly
15 under Fed. R. Civ. P. 4.”). Until the service issue is resolved, the court declines to reopen 16 Plaintiff’s motion to disqualify Defendants’ counsel or to order further briefing on the 17 disqualification issue.

18 III. CONCLUSION

19 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that Plaintiff David Lee Phillips’s Motion to Vacate Order 20 Denying Plaintiff’s Motion to Disqualify Defense Counsel (ECF No. 43) is DENIED without 21 prejudice.
