

1 that some of the documents they have filed under seal are not confidential. See, e.g., Docket No. 50 at 2 5 (explaining that seven “non-sensitive” exhibits were filed under seal “out of an abundance of 3 caution”); Docket No. 55 at 2 (similarly arguing that documents “contained in the public record” should 4 be sealed “out of an abundance of caution”). This kind of blanket approach is incompatible with the 5 applicable standards established by controlling Ninth Circuit authority.²

6 At this time, the Court declines to rule on the twelve motions to seal. Instead, the Court will 7 provide guidance on two of them and allow the parties an opportunity to supplement or revise their 8 positions. In particular, the parties shall file joint supplements to Defendant Experian’s motion to seal
9 at Docket No. 50 and to Plaintiff Regina Florence’s motion to seal at Docket No. 55. Such supplements 10 shall be filed no later than March 31, 2017, and must comply with the instructions outlined below.

11 I. STANDARDS

12 The Ninth Circuit has held that there is a strong presumption of public access to judicial records.
13 See Kamakana v. City & County of Honolulu, 447 F.3d 1172, 1178 (9th Cir. 2006); Foltz v. State Farm
14 Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 331 F.3d 1122, 1135 (9th Cir. 2003). A party seeking to file documents under seal 15 bears the burden of overcoming that presumption. Pintos v. Pac. Creditors Ass’n, 605 F.3d 665, 678
16 (9th Cir. 2010) (quoting Kamakana, 447 F.3d at 1178).

17 The standard applicable to a motion to seal turns on whether the sealed materials are submitted
18 in conjunction with a dispositive or a non-dispositive motion. Whether a motion is “dispositive” turns 19 on “whether the motion at issue is more than tangentially related to the underlying cause of action.” See 20 Center for Auto Safety v. Chrysler Group, LLC, 809 F.3d 1092, 1101 (9th Cir. 2016), cert. denied, 137
21 S.Ct. 38 (2016). Parties “who seek to maintain the secrecy of documents attached to dispositive motions 22 must meet the high threshold of showing that ‘compelling reasons’ support secrecy.” Kamakana, 447 23 F.3d at 1180. Those compelling reasons must outweigh the competing interests of the public in having

25 ² The Court is well aware that complying with the Ninth Circuit sealing directives in this case may 26 require the commitment of significant resources by the parties and by this Court. See, e.g., In re NCAA 27 Student-Athlete Name & Likeness Licensing Litig., 2013 WL 240359, at *2 (reviewing exhibits one-by-one, 28 and declarations paragraph-by-paragraph to determine whether sealing and/or redaction is appropriate). The parties have not, however, cited any case law indicating that the voluminous nature of a filing or a set of filings exempts a case from those directives or that the applicable standards should otherwise be relaxed.

1 access to the judicial records and understanding the judicial process. Id. at 1178-79; see also Pintos, 605
2 F.3d at 679 & n.6 (court must weigh “relevant factors,” including the public’s interest in understanding 3 the judicial process).

4 The Ninth Circuit has indicated that “‘compelling reasons’ sufficient to outweigh the public’s 5 interest in disclosure and justify sealing court records exist when such ‘court files might have become 6 a vehicle for improper purposes,’ such as the use of records to gratify private spite, promote public 7 scandal, circulate libelous statements, or release trade secrets.” Kamakana, 447 F.3d at 1179 (citing 8 Nixon v. Warner Commc’ns Inc., 435 U.S. 589, 598 (1978)); see also Apple Inc. v. Samsung Elecs. Co., 9 727 F.3d 1214, 1221-22 (Fed. Cir. 2013) (applying Ninth Circuit law regarding competitive harm to 10 business and the definition of “trade secret”). On the other hand, “[t]he mere fact that the production 11 of records may lead to a litigant’s embarrassment, incrimination, or exposure to further litigation will 12 not, without more, compel the court to seal its records.” Kamakana, 447 F.3d at 1179 (citing Foltz, 331 13 F.3d at 1136).

14 The burden to show compelling reasons for sealing is not met by general assertions that the 15 information is “confidential” or a “trade secret,” but rather the movant must “articulate compelling 16 reasons supported by specific factual findings.” Id. at 1178. The Ninth Circuit has rejected efforts to 17 seal documents under the “compelling reasons” standard based on “conclusory statements about the 18 contents of the documents—that they are confidential” and that, in general, their disclosure would be 19 harmful to the movant. Kamakana, 447 F.3d at 1182; see also Vaccine Ctr. LLC v. GlaxoSmithKline
20 LLC, 2013 U.S. Dist Lexis 68298, *5-6 (D. Nev. May 14, 2013) (finding insufficient general assertions 21 regarding confidential nature of documents). Such “conclusory offerings do not rise to the level of 22 ‘compelling reasons’ sufficiently specific to bar the public access to the documents.” Kamakana, 447
23 F.3d at 1182. In allowing the sealing of a document, the Court must “articulate the basis for its ruling, 24 without relying on hypothesis and conjecture.” See, e.g., Pintos, 605 F.3d at 679 (quoting Hagestad v.
25 Tragesser, 49 F.3d 1430, 1434 (9th Cir. 1995)).

26 Lastly, any request to seal documents must be “narrowly tailored” to remove from the public 27 sphere only the material that warrants secrecy. E.g., Ervine v. Warden, ___ F. Supp. 3d ___, 2016 WL 28 5870797, at *2 (E.D. Cal. Oct. 7, 2016) (citing Press-Enterprise Co. v. Superior Court of Cal., 464 U.S.

1 501 (1986)). As a corollary, to the extent any confidential information can be easily redacted while 2 leaving meaningful information available to the public, the Court must order that redacted versions be 3 filed rather than sealing entire documents. Foltz, 331 F.3d at 1137; see also In re Roman Catholic 4 Archbishop of Portland in Oregon, 661 F.3d 417, 425 (9th Cir. 2011) (the district court must “keep in 5 mind the possibility of redacting the sensitive material”).

6 II. DOCKET NO. 50

7 Through this motion, Defendant seeks to seal the entirety of its motion for summary judgment 8 and hundreds of pages of exhibits. See Docket No. 50; see also Docket No. 51 (materials for which 9 sealing is sought). Defendant has not established compelling reasons for sealing and, further, has not 10 established that redaction is not a viable option to the extent some of the information at issue merits 11 secrecy.

12 A. Defendant’s Information

13 Defendant seeks to seal information related to its business procedures, including its internal 14 procedures for investigating claims. Docket No. 50 at 4. Defendant contends that such information is 15 “sensitive,” “proprietary,” and “confidential.” Id. at 3, 4. Without elaboration, Defendant represents 16 that the secrecy of the information is “incalculably valuable.” Id. at 4. The conclusory assertions posited 17 fail to establish compelling reasons. See, e.g., Kamakana, 447 F.3d at 1182. Moreover, Defendant has 18 failed to provide any specific factual support, through declaration or otherwise, on which this Court 19 could articulate a basis to seal documents. See id. at 1178-79. As such, an insufficient basis has been 20 presented to seal the materials at issue based on Defendant’s asserted interest in confidentiality.

21 B. Plaintiff’s Information

22 The bulk of Defendant’s motion to seal relates to concerns regarding Plaintiff’s personal 23 information. To the extent this concern relates to Plaintiff’s personal identifiers and financial account 24 numbers, that information must be redacted without Court order. *See, e.g., Fed. R. Civ. P. 5.2.*³ To the 25 extent this concern goes beyond the scope of Rule 5.2, conclusory assertions of an opposing party’s

26
27 ³ The Court fails to discern how the existence of such information would suffice to seal entire 28 documents, as opposed to redacting it. Indeed, it appears that some of the currently-sealed documents already redact personal identifiers. See, e.g., Docket No. 51-5 at 8 (redacting financial account numbers).

1 privacy or confidentiality interests do not establish compelling reasons. Instead, the filing party should 2 meet-and-confer with the opposing party before filing such information to determine if a basis for 3 sealing exists and, if so, should obtain a declaration from the opposing party detailing the reasons for 4 seeking to seal it. Cf. Docket No. 31 at 2. No such declaration was submitted.

5 C. Redaction

6 The motion seeks to seal the entirety of the motion for summary judgment, and the entirety of 7 all exhibits thereto. Defendant states in conclusory fashion that redaction “is simply not an option as 8 it is impossible to parse the sensitive information, which appears throughout the document, from the 9 non-sensitive information.” Docket No. 50 at 4. This contention is not persuasive.⁴ As a threshold 10 matter, a party making such an assertion should identify with specificity which parts of a document or 11 documents it contends warrant secrecy. See Foltz, 331 F.3d at 1137. Defendant has not done so, leaving 12 the Court to guess exactly what statements or information in each document Defendant believes warrant 13 secrecy. Moreover, the summary judgment brief itself contains large swaths of non-sealable content, 14 including legal standards, legal discussion, and discussion of the (already-public) pleadings in this case.
15 The Court will not sift through the documents itself to determine sua sponte what (if anything) warrants 16 secrecy. To the extent Defendant (or Plaintiff(s)) believe any of the factual contentions made in the 17 summary judgment brief merit secrecy, they must identify that statement with particularity and must 18 provide an explanation (properly supported) as to why that is the case. Similarly, Defendant (or 19 Plaintiff(s)) must specifically identify any portion of the exhibits at issue that they believe merit secrecy 20 and support that contention.

21 Defendant similarly takes the position that it cannot file publicly seven admittedly non-sensitive 22 documents because “it is difficult” to do so. Id. at 5. Such contention is not persuasive. As noted

23
24 ⁴ Defendant’s motion appears at some points confused about the redaction process. In particular, 25 Defendant contends that certain documents “cannot be successfully redacted without significantly affecting 26 Experian’s ability to defend itself.” Docket No. 50 at 5. Redaction should have no impact on Defendant’s 27 ability to defend itself. Instead, an unredacted version would be filed under seal (which can inform the 28 Court’s decision and allow Defendant to present whatever information and/or argument it deems necessary), while a redacted version will be filed on the public docket so that confidential information is not disseminated publicly. Filing a redacted public version has no impact on Defendant’s ability to present its arguments.

1 above, a request to seal must be narrowly tailored to encompass only information that meets the 2 applicable standard. Moreover, it is common practice for attorneys to file a public version of a 3 declaration attaching exhibits with place-holders for sealed exhibits and a complete copy of the non-4 confidential exhibits. No indication is made why that was not done here. The Court is unable to find 5 an appropriate justification to seal entire exhibits that are admittedly not confidential.

6 III. DOCKET NO. 55

7 Plaintiff's motion to seal seeks the sealing of her motion for summary judgment, and all exhibits
8 filed in support thereof. Docket No. 55 at 2. As with Defendant's motion to seal, Plaintiff's motion 9 seeks to seal every word of hundreds of pages of briefing and exhibits. The reasons provided by Plaintiff 10 are even more bare-bones than those provided by Defendant, contending that an assertion of 11 confidentiality "has been or could be claimed" for unidentified documents produced in discovery. *Id.*⁵ 12 Plaintiff continues on to explain that some deposition testimony contains reference to medical 13 conditions. *Id.*⁶ Plaintiff lastly asserts that she "believes it best to seal all exhibits attached to the 14 Motion for Partial Summary Judgment out of an abundance of caution," even those that are already 15 "contained in the public record." Id. To the extent the motion to seal even purports to argue that some 16 of the information is confidential, the factually unsupported and conclusory assertions provided to 17 establish compelling reasons. To the extent the motion to seal seeks to maintain the secrecy of 18 documents or information that is admittedly not confidential, such a request is not narrowly tailored and 19 sufficient justification is not provided for redaction rather than outright sealing. As such, the motion 20 fails to establish compelling reasons for sealing for the same reasons as Defendant's motion fails.

23 ⁵ Although it is not entirely clear whether Plaintiff is making such an argument, the mere fact that 24 a party has designated a document confidential under a blanket stipulated protective order does not justify 25 its sealing. See, e.g., Docket No. 31 at 2 ("The fact that a court has entered a blanket stipulated protective 26 order and that a party has designated a document as confidential pursuant to that protective order does not, 27 standing alone, establish sufficient grounds to seal a filed document. See Foltz v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins.
28 Co., 331 F.3d 1122, 1133 (9th Cir. 2003); see also Beckman Indus., Inc. v. Int'l Ins. Co., 966 F.2d 470, 476 (9th Cir. 1992)").

⁶ Plaintiff notes that certain personal identifiers should not be made public. Id. No explanation is provided why that concern cannot be addressed through redactions already mandated by Rule 5.2.

1 IV. CONCLUSION

2 The pending motions to seal at Docket Nos. 50 and 55 fail to justify sealing the underlying 3 materials. The Court will allow the parties one further opportunity to seek to seal the underlying 4 information. A joint supplement shall be filed on each motion no later than March 31, 2017. The joint 5 supplement must identify with particularity by page and line each portion of the underlying documents 6 in which Plaintiff(s) and/or Defendant contend information exists that should be sealed under the 7 compelling reasons standard. For each such contention, the party or parties seeking sealing must provide 8 an explanation why they believe the compelling reasons standard has been met. For each such 9 contention, the party or parties seeking sealing must point to a declaration or other competent evidence 10 making a specific factual showing to support their contention that compelling reasons exist. To the 11 extent the party or parties believe that redaction is truly not practicable with respect to any particular 12 document, they must provide a meaningful explanation in support of that position consistent with the 13 standards outlined above.

14 In the interim, the Clerk’s Office shall continue to maintain the subject documents under 15 seal.
