Order Staying Case and Denying Pending Motion

[ECF No. 13]

The Bank of New York Mellon filed this action to challenge a homeowners association’s (HOA’s) non-judicial foreclosure sale of a home on which the bank held a first deed of trust, after the Nevada Supreme Court held in SFR Investments Pool 1, LLC v. U.S. Bank that an HOA’s proper foreclosure under Nevada’s statutory scheme “will extinguish a first deed of trust.”¹ A federal-state split in the interpretation and effect of the statute has arisen, and the HOA has moved to dismiss the bank’s claims, arguing that the state approach controls.² But because an impending answer to a question certified to the Nevada Supreme Court may soon resolve this split, I sua sponte stay this case pending that answer and deny the HOA’s pending motion to dismiss.

Background

In the decade since Las Vegas’s real estate crash, lenders and investors have battled over the legal effect of an HOA’s nonjudicial foreclosure of a superpriority lien on a lender’s first trust deed. After the Nevada Supreme Court held in SFR that a properly conducted foreclosure sale extinguishes a first-trust-deed interest, the banks’ emphasis shifted to their constitutional challenge—they contend that the statute on its face violated their due process rights before it was

² ECF No. 13.

1 amended in 2015 because it did not require HOAs to give notice to first-trust-deed holders. The 2 Ninth Circuit panel in Bourne Valley Court Trust v. Wells Fargo Bank agreed.³ The lynchpin of 3 that holding is the panel’s interpretation of Chapter 116’s notice requirements: it found that the 4 statute’s scheme was an opt-in one that required notice of the foreclosure “only if the lender had 5 affirmatively requested notice,” expressly rejecting the notion that NRS Chapter 116 6 incorporated the notice rules from NRS 107.090 so foreclosing HOAs “were required to provide 7 notice to mortgage lenders even absent a request.”⁴

8 The Nevada Supreme Court expressly “declined to follow” Bourne Valley in Saticoy Bay
9 v. Wells Fargo and held that “the Due Process Clauses of the United States and Nevada
10 Constitutions are not implicated in an HOA’s nonjudicial foreclosure of a superpriority lien.”⁵ 11 But the Saticoy Bay decision turned on the absence of state action, so the court did “not 12 determine whether NRS 116.3116 et seq. incorporates the notice requirements set forth in NRS
13 107.090.”⁶

14 The Bourne Valley purchaser petitioned for a writ of certiorari in the United States
15 Supreme Court to resolve the federal-state split, but cert was denied.⁷ So, this court is now 16 bound to follow Bourne Valley unless and until the Nevada Supreme Court indicates that the 17 panel’s interpretation of NRS 116.3116 was incorrect.⁸

18 That indication may be on its way. In accepting a certified question from Judge Boulware
19 from this district, the Nevada Supreme Court has agreed to address the issue it shelved in Saticoy

1 Bay:

2 Whether NRS § 116.31168(1)'s incorporation of NRS § 107.090
3 required a homeowner's association to provide notices of default
4 and/or sale to persons or entities holding a subordinate interest 5 even when such persons or entities did not request notice, prior to 6 the amendments that took effect on October 1, 2015?⁹

7 Briefing is underway and is scheduled to be completed later this month. And if the footnotes in 8 the Nevada Supreme Court's recent unpublished orders are any indication, the answer will likely 9 be yes.¹⁰ So, to save the parties from the need or inclination to invest resources further briefing
10 the effect of Bourne Valley before the Nevada Supreme Court answers this certified question, I 11 sua sponte stay this case pending the answer to the certified question and deny the pending 12 motion to dismiss¹¹ without prejudice to its refiling after the stay is lifted.

11 Discussion

12 A district court has the inherent power to stay cases to control its docket and promote the 13 efficient use of judicial resources.¹² When determining whether a stay is appropriate pending the 14 resolution of another case—often called a “Landis stay”—the district court must weigh: (1) the 15 possible damage that may result from a stay, (2) any “hardship or inequity” that a party may 16 suffer if required to go forward, (3) “and the orderly course of justice measured in terms of the 17 simplifying or complicating of issues, proof, and questions of law” that a stay will engender.¹³ I

1 find that a Landis stay is appropriate here.

2 A. A stay will promote the orderly course of justice.

3 At the center of this case is an HOA-foreclosure sale under NRS Chapter 116 and the 4 competing arguments that the foreclosure sale either extinguished the bank’s security interest or 5 had no legal effect because the statutory scheme violated the bank’s due-process rights. When a 6 federal right depends on the interpretation of state law as this due-process challenge does, the 7 federal courts must apply the interpretation of that law ascribed by the state’s highest court.¹⁴
8 And when “the state’s highest court has not adjudicated the issue, a federal court must make a 9 reasonable determination of the result the highest state court would reach if it were deciding the 10 case.”¹⁵ But that determination is just an educated guess of how the state’s highest court would 11 interpret its law.¹⁶ And a panel’s prediction binds lower courts only “in the absence of any 12 subsequent indication” from the state’s highest court that the panel’s “interpretation was 13 incorrect.”¹⁷

14 For Bourne Valley’s interpretation of NRS 116.3116, that “subsequent indication” may be 15 nigh. The Nevada Supreme Court’s acceptance of a certified question about its foundational 16 statutory interpretation leaves the continued viability of Bourne Valley uncertain. Because that 17 answer—which may be dispositive of the central issues in this case—is imminent, it makes

25 legislation”); see also New York v. Ferber, 458 U.S. 747, 767 (1982) (discussing the federal-state Owen v. United States, 713 F.2d 1461, 1464 (9th Cir. 1983)).

1 judicially economical sense to wait for it before making dispositive rulings in this case. Each 2 time the jurisprudence in this area of unique Nevada law evolves, the parties in the scores of 3 foreclosure-challenge actions pending in this courthouse file new motions or move to supplement 4 the ones that they already have pending, often resulting in docket-clogging entries and an 5 impossible-to-follow chain of briefs in which arguments are abandoned and replaced. Staying 6 this case pending the answer to the certified question will permit the parties to evaluate—and me
7 to consider—the viability of the claims under the most complete authority. This will simplify 8 and streamline the proceedings and promote the efficient use of the parties’ and the court’s 9 resources.

10 B. Hardship and inequity

11 All parties face the prospect of hardship if I resolve the claims or issues in this case
12 before the certified question is answered. A stay and denial of all pending motions will prevent 13 unnecessary briefing and the expenditures of time, attorney’s fees, and resources that could be 14 wasted in the event that Bourne Valley’s interpretation is deemed incorrect by the Nevada
15 Supreme Court.

16 C. Damage from a stay

17 The only potential damage that may result from a stay is that the parties will have to wait 18 longer for resolution of this case and any motions that they have filed or intend to file in the 19 future. But a delay would also result from any rebriefing or supplemental briefing that may be 20 necessitated once the Nevada Supreme Court answers the certified question. So it is not clear to 21 me that extending this stay pending the answer to that question will ultimately lengthen the life
22 of this case. I thus find that any possible damage that the extension of this stay may cause the 23 parties is minimal.

24 D. The length of the stay is reasonable.

25 Finally, I note that a stay of this case pending the anticipated answer to the certified
26 question is expected to be reasonably short. Briefing is scheduled to be completed in just a 27 couple of weeks. Because the length of this stay is directly tied to the certified-question 28 proceeding, it is reasonably brief, and it is not indefinite.

1 Conclusion

2 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that THIS CASE IS STAYED for all purposes.¹⁸

3 Once the Nevada Supreme Court has answered the certified question in Bank of New York
4 Mellon v. Star Hill Homeowners Association, 2:16-cv-2561-RFB-PAL/Nev. S. Ct. Case No.
5 72931, any party may move to lift this stay.

6 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Motion to Dismiss [ECF No. 13] is DENIED
7 without prejudice to its filing once the stay is lifted.
