DISTRICT OF NEVADA

RONNIE MITCHELL,

Plaintiff(s),

v.

LAS VEGAS METROPOLITAN POLICE
DEPARTMENT, et al.,

Defendant(s).

Case No. 2:17-CV-2188 JCM (GWF)

ORDER

Presently before the court is defendant Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department's ("LVMPD") motion to dismiss. (ECF No. 4). Plaintiff Ronnie Mitchell filed a response (ECF No. 8), to which defendant replied (ECF No. 10).

Also before the court is defendant Officer R. Shoemaker's motion to dismiss. (ECF No. 5). Plaintiff filed a response (ECF No. 9), to which defendant replied (ECF No. 11).

I. Facts

On August 13, 2015, plaintiff was arrested by Shoemaker and the LVMPD in Clark County, Nevada. (ECF No.1). After plaintiff was taken into custody, Shoemaker stepped on plaintiff's left hand, breaking it in three places. Id.

Shoemaker took plaintiff to University Medical Center ("UMC"). Id. Plaintiff was given medical treatment for his hand and was instructed to promptly follow up with an orthopedic surgeon. Id. Plaintiff remained in custody with LVMPD, which refused to provide for further medical treatment. Id.

Plaintiff alleges that, as a result of LVMPD's delay in treatment for his hand, his injuries were worsened and required surgery to repair. Id. Plaintiff's injuries are permanent. Id.

1 On August 14, 2017, plaintiff filed a complaint naming the LVMPD and Shoemaker as 2 defendants.<sup>1</sup> Id.

3 II. Legal Standard

4 A court may dismiss a complaint for “failure to state a claim upon which relief can be 5 granted.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6). A properly pled complaint must provide “[a] short and plain
6 statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a)(2); Bell
7 Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007). While Rule 8 does not require detailed 8 factual allegations, it demands “more than labels and conclusions” or a “formulaic recitation of the 9 elements of a cause of action.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009) (citation omitted).

10 “Factual allegations must be enough to rise above the speculative level.” Twombly, 550
11 U.S. at 555. Thus, to survive a motion to dismiss, a complaint must contain sufficient factual
12 matter to “state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.” Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678 (citation 13 omitted).

14 In Iqbal, the Supreme Court clarified the two-step approach district courts are to apply
15 when considering motions to dismiss. First, the court must accept as true all well-pled factual
16 allegations in the complaint; however, legal conclusions are not entitled to the assumption of truth.
17 Id. at 678–79. Mere recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported only by conclusory 18 statements, do not suffice. Id. at 678.

19 Second, the court must consider whether the factual allegations in the complaint allege a 20 plausible claim for relief. Id. at 679. A claim is facially plausible when the plaintiff’s complaint 21 alleges facts that allow the court to draw a reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the 22 alleged misconduct. Id. at 678.

23 Where the complaint does not permit the court to infer more than the mere possibility of 24 misconduct, the complaint has “alleged—but not shown—that the pleader is entitled to relief.” Id.
25 (internal quotation marks omitted). When the allegations in a complaint have not crossed the line
26 from conceivable to plausible, plaintiff’s claim must be dismissed. Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570.

27 _____
28 <sup>1</sup> Plaintiff’s complaint also named as defendants Doe Officers I through X and Roe Business Entities XXI through XXX. (ECF No. 1).

1 The Ninth Circuit addressed post-Iqbal pleading standards in Starr v. Baca, 652 F.3d 1202,
2 1216 (9th Cir. 2011). The Starr court stated, in relevant part:

3 First, to be entitled to the presumption of truth, allegations in a complaint or 4 counterclaim may not simply recite the elements of a cause of action, but must 5 contain sufficient allegations of underlying facts to give fair notice and to enable 6 the opposing party to defend itself effectively. Second, the factual allegations that are taken as true must plausibly suggest an entitlement to relief, such that it is not unfair to require the opposing party to be subjected to the expense of discovery and continued litigation.

8 III. Discussion

9 LVMPD and Shoemaker filed separate motions to dismiss plaintiff's claims against them.
10 (ECF Nos. 4, 5).

11 a. Plaintiff's claims against LVMPD

12 LVMPD argues that both plaintiff's first cause of action for violations under § 1983, and 13 plaintiff's second cause of action for negligence under state law should be dismissed. (ECF No.
14 4).

15 i. Plaintiff's § 1983 claim against LVMPD

16 LVMPD argues that plaintiff's first cause of action, brought under § 1983, should be 17 dismissed because the claim only alleges that Shoemaker "willfully, negligently and recklessly"
18 disregarded plaintiff's safety by refusing to allow plaintiff to receive additional medical treatment
19 for his hand resulting in additional injury. (ECF No. 4). LVMPD asserts this claim fails as to 20 LVMPD because (1) a municipality cannot be held liable under § 1983 on a respondeat superior
21 theory of liability, and (2) plaintiff has not alleged how an LVMPD policy or custom deprived him
22 of this right. Id.

23 Plaintiff argues that for his § 1983 claim against LVMPD to survive a motion to dismiss,
24 he need only allege facts to state a claim for relief that is plausible on its face. (ECF No. 8).
25 Plaintiff asserts that he has met that burden by alleging that the conduct of Shoemaker violated the 26 policies and procedures of LVMPD and that LVMPD violated plaintiff's constitutional rights. Id.

27 ...

28 ...

1 In Monell v. Department of Social Services, the court found that the language of § 1983, as 2 it was originally passed

3 plainly imposes liability on a government that, under color of some official policy,
4 “causes” an employee to violate another’s constitutional rights. At the same time, 5 that language cannot be easily read to impose liability vicariously on governing bodies solely on the basis of the existence of an employer-employee relationship with a tortfeasor.

6 436 U.S. 658, 692, 98 S. Ct. 2018, 2036 (1978). The court in Monell held that a local government
7 may not be sued under § 1983 for an injury inflicted solely by its employees or agents.” Id. at 694.
8 However, a local government may be held liable under § 1983 when “execution of a government’s 9 policy or custom . . . inflicts the injury.” Id.

10 In Miranda v. City of Cornelius, the Ninth Circuit held that 11 In order to impose liability based on a policy of deliberate inaction, the plaintiff 12 must establish: (1) that he [or she] possessed a constitutional right of which he [or 13 she] was deprived; (2) that the municipality had a policy; (3) that this policy amounts to deliberate indifference to the plaintiff’s constitutional right; and (4) that the policy was the moving force behind the constitutional violation.

14 429 F.3d 858, 868 (9th Cir. 2005).

15 Plaintiff’s response acknowledges that claims against a municipality for deliberate inaction
16 under the Eighth Amendment require that the municipality have a policy that amounts to deliberate
17 indifference of a constitutional right. (ECF No. 8). However, plaintiff fails to allege that LVMPD
18 has such a policy. Id.

19 Plaintiff also argues that immunity cannot be applied to LVMPD because an officer has 20 been alleged to have affirmatively caused harm to the plaintiff and that LVMPD failed to 21 adequately train its officers. Id. However, these allegations are unsupported and amount to mere 22 speculation. Plaintiff has failed to identify a specific LVMPD policy that amounts to deliberate 23 indifference. Id. Further, plaintiff’s complaint alleges that Shoemaker’s actions violated the 24 LVMPD policy and therefore does not support imposing liability on the LVMPD. See Bd. of the 25 Cty. Comm’rs v. Brown, 520 U.S. 397, 403, 117 S. Ct. 1382, 1388 (1997) (holding that to impose 26 liability on a municipality, a plaintiff must “identify a municipal ‘policy’ or ‘custom’ that caused 27 the plaintiff’s injury”); see also Monell, 436 U.S. at 694.

28 Accordingly, plaintiff’s first cause of action against LVMPD for violation of his Eighth Amendment rights under § 1983 is dismissed.

1                   ii. Plaintiff's second cause of action against LVMPD

2                   LVMPD argues that plaintiff's second cause of action should be dismissed because it fails
3 to comply with the two-year limitations period within NRS § 41.036(2) to file a claim arising out
4 of a tort against any political subdivision of the state. (ECF No. 4).

5                   NRS § 41.036(2) states that “[e]ach person who has a claim against any political 6 subdivision of the State arising out of a tort must file the claim within 2 years after the time the 7 cause of action accrues with the governing body of that political subdivision.”

8                   District courts have determined that LVMPD is a “political subdivision of the State” and 9 have addressed similar challenges to claims under NRS § 41.036(2). See Hartrim v. Las Vegas
10 Metro. Police Dep't, No. 2:11-cv-00003-RLH-PAL, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 74945, at *6 (D. Nev.
11 July 8, 2011); see also Zaic v. Las Vegas Metro. Police Dep't, No. 2:10-CV-01814-PMP-GWF, 12 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 24956, at *8 (D. Nev. Mar. 11, 2011).

13                   Section 41.036(2) does not require a plaintiff to give notice as a condition precedent to 14 filing suit, however, it does give “a claimant two years to notify the State’s political subdivision
15 of the claim.” Zaic, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 24956, at *13. Applying this time limitation, the court 16 in Hartrim, held that the “[p]laintiff’s claim is barred because [p]laintiff did not serve notice of the 17 complaint within the time period set forth by the statute. Hartrim, 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 74945, 18 at *7.

19                   LVMPD asserts that it is a “political subdivision of the State.” (ECF No. 4). Therefore,
20 LVMPD argues that to comply with NRS 41.036(2), Nevada law required plaintiff to present his 21 claims to LVMPD no later than August 13, 2017, two years after the August 13, 2015 incident
22 allegedly giving rise to plaintiff’s negligence claim. Id. However, plaintiff did not serve LVMPD
23 until August 18, 2017. Id.

24                   Plaintiff does not address LVMPD’s challenge to his second cause of action. (ECF No. 8).

25                   Therefore, because NRS § 41.036(2) creates a two-year statute of limitations and plaintiff
26 did not file his complaint with the governing body of the LVMPD within the statute of limitations, 27 plaintiff’s second cause of action against LVMPD is dismissed.

28                   ...

1           b. Plaintiff's claims against Shoemaker

2           Shoemaker asserts that both plaintiff's first cause of action under § 1983 and second cause
3 of action for negligence under state law against him should be dismissed. (ECF No. 5).

4                   i. Plaintiff's § 1983 claim against Shoemaker

5           Shoemaker asserts that plaintiff's first cause of action against him should be dismissed
6 because plaintiff has failed to state a cognizable negligence claim under § 1983. (ECF No. 5).
7 Shoemaker asserts that because negligence claims are not the sort of abuses the due process clause
8 was intended to protect against. (ECF No. 5). Shoemaker argues that plaintiff's § 1983 claim 9 attempts to use the Constitution to further a tort law claim and should accordingly be dismissed.
10 Id.

11           Plaintiff does not directly address Shoemaker's argument that his § 1983 claim should be 12 dismissed because constitutional claims are not intended to supplant traditional tort claims for 13 negligence. (ECF No. 9). However, plaintiff does assert that he has sufficiently alleged his § 1983
14 causes of action and that his claims should, therefore, not be dismissed. Id.

15                   1. Plaintiff's due process allegation

16           In Daniels v. Williams, the Supreme Court of the United States held that "the Due Process
17 Clause is simply not implicated by a negligent act of an official causing unintended loss of or 18 injury to life, liberty, or property." 474 U.S. 327, 328, 106 S. Ct. 662, 663 (1986). The Court
19 reaffirmed this in Kingsley v. Hendrickson, where it held that "liability for negligently inflicted 20 harm is categorically beneath the threshold of constitutional due process." 135 S. Ct. 2466, 2472 21 (2015) (quoting County of Sacramento v. Lewis, 523 U.S. 833, 849, 118 S. Ct. 1708, 140 L. Ed.
22 2d 1043 (1998)); see also Francis v. California, 303 F. App'x 427, 429 (9th Cir. 2008) (holding 23 that the district court was correct to dismiss the due process claim because "[t]he facts alleged in 24 the fourth amended complaint allege only negligence.").

25           However, in County of Sacramento v. Lewis, the Court held that some official acts
26 amounting to recklessness or gross negligence may be actionable. 523 U.S. 833, 849, 118 S. Ct.
27 1708, 1718 (1998). The court held that this analysis should not be mechanically applied and stated 28 that "[d]eliberate indifference that shocks in one environment may not be so patently egregious in

1 another, and our concern with preserving the constitutional proportions of substantive due process
2 demands an exact analysis of circumstances before any abuse of power is condemned as 3 conscience-shocking.” Id. at 850.

4 In his complaint, plaintiff asserts that Shoemaker “intentionally and/or negligently and with 5 [reckless] disregard” stepped on plaintiff’s hand causing injury. (ECF No. 5). While plaintiff
6 includes “intentionally” as a possible mental state for Shoemaker when the alleged violation
7 occurred, plaintiff provides no factual assertions supporting the claim that Shoemaker acted 8 intentionally. Further, facts relating to his allegation that Shoemaker acted negligently and with 9 reckless disregard are also insufficient to demonstrate that Shoemaker’s actions were “so patently
10 egregious” to make the claim actionable under the Fourteenth Amendment.

11 Plaintiff’s allegation that Shoemaker negligently stepped on his hand does not support a 12 Due Process claim and plaintiff’s claim that Shoemaker intentionally stepped on plaintiff’s hand
13 does not amount to more than speculation. Therefore, because a complaint must contain sufficient
14 factual matter to “state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face” in order to survive a motion
15 to dismiss, plaintiff has not met his burden. See Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678 (citation omitted).

16 2. Plaintiff’s equal protection allegation

17 Shoemaker argues that plaintiff has failed to support his equal protection allegations with 18 specific facts that Shoemaker intended to discriminate against him based on his membership in a 19 protected class, and that he has not provided evidence of a governmental activity that was 20 discriminatory. (ECF No. 5).

21 The Equal Protection Clause “commands that no State shall ‘deny to any persons
22 within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws,’ which is essentially a 23 direction that all persons similarly situated should be treated alike.” Williams v.
24 Vidmar, 367 F. Supp. 2d 1265, 1269-70 (N.D. Cal. 2005) (quoting City of Cleburne
25 v. Cleburne Living Center, Inc., 473 U.S. 432, 439, 105 S. Ct. 3249, 87 L. Ed. 2d 313 (1985)). To establish an equal protection violation, a plaintiff must show the defendant acted with an intent or purpose to discriminate against the plaintiff based upon membership in a protected class. Thornton v. City of St. Helens, 425 F.3d 1158, 1166 (9th Cir. 2005).

26 Gardner v. Las Vegas Metro. Police Dep’t, No. 2:16-cv-01384-GMN-CWH, 2018 U.S. Dist.
27 LEXIS 32833, at *11 (D. Nev. Feb. 28, 2018).

1 Plaintiff alleges no facts in his complaint that would support the assertion that Shoemaker
2 violated his equal protection rights by stepping on his hand “intentionally and/or negligently and 3 with [reckless] disregard.” See (ECF No. 9). Therefore, plaintiff’s equal protection claim fails.

4 ii. Plaintiff’s second cause of action against Shoemaker

5 Shoemaker asserts that plaintiff’s second cause of action should be dismissed because 6 Shoemaker is entitled to discretionary function immunity. (ECF No. 5). Shoemaker also argues
7 that the second cause of action should be dismissed because it does not comply with NRS §
8 41.036(2). Id.

9 Plaintiff asserts that Shoemaker is not entitled to discretionary immunity. (ECF No. 9).
10 Plaintiff also asserts that Shoemaker acted in bad faith because his willful or deliberate disregard 11 for plaintiff’s rights caused plaintiff’s injuries. Id.

12 1. Discretionary function immunity

13 Shoemaker asserts that plaintiff’s second cause of action against him for negligence should 14 be dismissed because Shoemaker is entitled to discretionary immunity. (ECF No. 5). Shoemaker 15 argues that discretionary immunity protects him because the decision to arrest plaintiff and the 16 methods used to do so were discretionary and Shoemaker did not cause injury in bad faith. Id.

17 Nevada has waived its general state immunity under NRS § 41.031. Nevada’s waiver of 18 immunity is not absolute and the state has retained a “discretionary function” form of immunity 19 for officials exercising policy-related or discretionary acts. See NRS § 41.032.

20 The Nevada Supreme Court adopted the United States Supreme Court’s Berkovitz-Gaubert
21 two-part test regarding discretionary immunity. See Martinez v. Maruszczak, 123 Nev. 433, 168
22 P.3d 720, 722, 728-29 (Nev. 2007). Under Nevada law, state actors are entitled to discretionary-
23 function immunity under NRS § 41.032 if their decision “(1) involve[s] an element of individual 24 judgment or choice and (2) [is] based on considerations of social, economic, or political policy.”
25 Id. at 729. “[F]ederal courts applying the Berkovitz-Gaubert test must assess cases on their facts,
26 keeping in mind Congress’ purpose in enacting the exception: to prevent judicial second-guessing
27 of legislative and administrative decisions grounded in social, economic, and political policy 28 through the medium of an action in tort.” See id. at 729 (quoting United States v. S.A. Empresa de

1 Viacao Aerea Rio Grandense (Varig Airlines), 467 U.S. 797, 814, 104 S. Ct. 2755, 81 L. Ed. 2d
2 660 (1984)) (internal quotation marks omitted).

3 Police officers “exercise[ ] discretion and [are] thus generally immune from suit where the 4 act at issue require[s] ‘personal deliberation, decision, and judgment,’ rather than ‘obedience to 5 orders, or the performance of a duty in which the officer is left no choice of his own.” Sandoval
6 v. Las Vegas Metro. Police Dep’t, 756 F.3d 1154, 1168 (9th Cir. 2014) (citing Davis v. City of Las 7 Vegas, 478 F.3d 1048, 1059 (9th Cir. 2007)). However, “acts which violate the Constitution are 8 not discretionary.” Estate of Saucedo ex rel. Saucedo v. City of N. Las Vegas, no. 2:11-cv-02116-
9 APG-NJK, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25867 2015 WL 871611, at *9 (D. Nev. Mar. 2, 2015),
10 reconsideration denied sub nom. Estate of Saucedo v. City of N. Las Vegas, no. 2:11-cv-02116-
11 GMN-NJK, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 160909, 2015 WL 7737338 (D. Nev. Dec. 1, 2015).

12 In analyzing the second factor for the Nevada test for discretionary immunity, the trial court 13 does not determine a police officer’s “subjective intent in exercising the discretion conferred by 14 statute or regulation, but [rather focuses] on the nature of the actions taken and on whether they 15 are susceptible to policy analysis.” Id. at 728 (quoting United States v. Gaubert, 499 U.S. 315, 16 325, 111 S. Ct. 1267, 113 L. Ed. 2d 335 (1991)).

17 As for the first factor of the test for discretionary-function immunity under NRS § 41.032, 18 Shoemaker has asserted that the decision to arrest and the method of doing so were discretionary.
19 (ECF No. 5). Regarding the second factor, Shoemaker has alleged that his actions were rooted in 20 policy considerations. (ECF No. 11). Shoemaker cites to Sandoval v. Las Vegas Metropolitan 21 Police Department, 854 F. Supp. 2d 860, 881 (D. Nev. 2012), where the court held that “the 22 officers’ decision to arrest plaintiffs is ‘fundamentally rooted in policy considerations, and that 23 judicial second-guessing of this decision thus is not appropriate.” Id. (quoting Mesa v. United 24 States, 123 F.3d 1435, 1438 (11th Cir. 1997)).

25 Plaintiff cites to Davis v. City of Las Vegas, 478 F.3d 1048, 1061 (9th Cir. 2007), to assert 26 that where an officer arrests a citizen in an abusive manner “because of hostility toward a suspect
27 or a particular class of suspect . . . or because of a willful or deliberate disregard for the rights of a 28 particular citizen or citizens,” then the officer’s conduct amounts to bad faith and the officer is not

1 immune. (ECF No. 9). However, plaintiff has not shown that the holding in Davis is applicable
2 to this case. The facts in Davis are vastly different than those presented here and plaintiff has not 3 otherwise alleged facts amounting to more than mere speculation that Shoemaker acted with 4 hostility or with “a willful or deliberate disregard” for plaintiff’s rights.

5 Because the court finds that Shoemaker meets the two factors of the discretionary immunity
6 test, Shoemaker is entitled discretionary immunity as to plaintiff’s second cause of action.

7 2. Statute of limitations on plaintiff’s second cause of action

8 Shoemaker argues that plaintiff’s second cause of action should be dismissed for failure to 9 comply with NRS § 41.036(2). (ECF No. 5). Plaintiff fails to address this challenge.

10 Because the court has determined that Shoemaker is entitled to discretionary immunity as 11 to the second cause of action, it will not address this challenge.

12 c. Timeliness of plaintiff’s first cause of action against LVMPD and Shoemaker

13 LVMPD and Shoemaker argue that both plaintiff’s first cause of action is time-barred 14 because it was brought after the statute of limitations expired and should therefore be dismissed.
15 (ECF Nos. 4, 5). As LVMPD and Shoemaker acknowledge in their replies, plaintiff’s § 1983
16 claim is not time-barred. (ECF No. 10).

17 IV. Conclusion

18 In sum, the court will dismiss plaintiff’s first and second causes of action against both 19 LVMPD and Shoemaker.

20 Accordingly,

21 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, and DECREED that LVMPD’s motion to 22 dismiss (ECF No. 4) be, and the same hereby is, GRANTED.

23 IT IS FURTHER HEREBY ORDERED that SHOEMAKER’S motion to dismiss (ECF 24 No. 5) be, and the same hereby is, GRANTED.

25 DATED March 30, 2018.
