4	PERCY LAVAE BACON,	Case No.: 2:18-cv-00319-JAD-NJK
5	Plaintiff	Order Denying Motions for Temporary Restraining Order, Preliminary
6		Injunction, and a Hearing
7	JAMES COX, et al.,	[ECF Nos. 31, 32, 55]
8	Defendants
10	Pro se prisoner-plaintiff Percy Lavae Bacon brings this civil-rights action for events he
11	claims occurred at Nevada's Southern Desert Correctional Center. Bacon is before me asking
12	2 for injunctive relief arising out of his claim that prison officials violated the ADA by denying
13	him the ability to obtain work credit because of his disabilities. ¹ As defendants note in
14	responding to these motions, the overarching problem for Bacon is that I have seen this request
15	before and I have denied it. ² In fact, I denied essentially this same request just days before
16	Bacon filed his instant motion. ³ So I treat Bacon's request as a motion for reconsideration under
17	⁷ Local Rule 59-1. ⁴
18	Reconsideration is not proper here. I denied Bacon's prior request for injunctive relief on
19	his ADA claim because he failed to make the required showing of irreparable harm:
20	Bacon cannot show that the alleged ADA violation has caused him
21	irreparable harm. Based on his violated the ADA, he would have	allegations, had defendants not earned 1,400 early release credits,
22	thus advancing his parole-eligibility date. But these allegations are
23	3
24	¹ ECF Nos. 31, 32. Bacon also separately asks for a hearing. ECF No. 55.
25	2 ECF No. 37 at 6 (discussing my order at ECF No. 30 at 9–10).
26	³ See ECF No. 30.
27 28	⁴ That Bacon characterizes one of his current motions as seeking a temporary restraining order

presumes that he: (a) would have earned all 1,400 early release credits, (b) was eligible for a prison job during this entire time period, (c) would have remained employed during this entire time period, and (d) that the parole board would have granted Bacon parole at this earlier parole-board hearing. With these numerous contingencies, Bacon cannot show irreparable harm in the absence of preliminary relief.⁵

Bacon's current motions do not address—let alone cure—these deficiencies.⁶

At best, Bacon attempts to tackle the issue of irreparable harm in his reply.⁷ I need not consider arguments raised for the first time in reply.⁸ But even were I to consider these contentions, Bacon has not overcome the deficiencies that I previously identified that render his injury too speculative to demonstrate irreparable harm. Instead, Bacon merely reiterates that he is injured by being prevented from earning institutional work credits, that an inmate serving 190 10 months would have had the opportunity to earn 1,900 days of work credit, and that he would 11 have been discharged by the parole board had he actually earned that work credit.⁹ Bacon makes 12 no showing that he would have actually earned all of those credits, was eligible for a job during 13 14 this entire period, and would have remained employed during this entire period. Moreover, 15 Bacon provides no support for his bare assertion that parole would have been granted had the work credit been earned. 16

Accordingly, IT IS HEREBY ODERED that Bacon's latest motions for injunctive relief [ECF Nos. 31, 32] are DENIED because Bacon has not shown that appropriate grounds exist

⁶ See ECF Nos. 31, 32. It appears that Bacon may have mailed these motions before allowing me to rule on his previous motions for the same injunctive relief. See ECF No. 31-1 at 28 (proof of service, providing date of mailing of October 18, 2018).
