3.4 Before disclosing any Confidential Information to any person listed in subparagraphs 3.2 (b) and (d) who is a competitor, or employee of, or consultant to, a competitor of the Producing Party, the parties shall give at least ten days advance notice in writing to counsel for the Producing Party, stating the names and addresses of the person(s) to whom the disclosure will be made, and stating the purpose of such disclosure. If, within the ten-day period, a motion is filed objecting to the proposed disclosure, disclosure is not permissible until and unless the Court denies such motion. If the Producing Party has reason to believe that a competitor has improperly acquired or learned of Confidential Information, upon written demand from the Producing Party, the Receiving Party shall reveal to the Producing Party whether Confidential Information was disclosed to any officer, director, employee, or consultant of such competitor. Such request may only be made by the Producing Party upon a good faith belief that information has been improperly received by a competitor and the Producing Party shall disclose the reasons for such belief.

MISTAKE OR INADVERTENCE

Documents or other discovery materials produced and not designated as Confidential Information through mistake or inadvertence shall likewise be deemed confidential upon notice by the Producing Party of such mistake or inadvertence. Where a Producing Party has inadvertently produced a document which the Producing Party later claims should not have been produced because of privilege, the Producing Party may require the return of any such document within 10 days of discovering that it was inadvertently produced (or inadvertently produced without redacting the privileged content). A request for the return of any document shall identify the document by Bates number and the basis for asserting that the specific document (or portions thereof) is subject to the attorney-client privilege, the work product doctrine, or any other applicable privilege or immunity from discovery, the basis for asserting that the production was inadvertent, and the date of discovery that there had been an inadvertent production.

15 The inadvertent production of any document which a Producing Party later claims should 16 not have been produced because of a privilege will not be deemed to be a waiver of any privilege 17 to which the Producing Party would have been entitled had the privileged document not 18 inadvertently been produced. If a Producing Party requests the return, pursuant to this paragraph, 19 of any such document from another party, the party to whom the request is made shall within 10 20 days return to the requesting party all copies of the document within its possession, custody, or control, including all copies in the possession of experts, consultants, or others to whom the 22 document was provided. In the event that only portions of the document contain privileged subject 23 matter, the Producing Party shall substitute a redacted version of the document at the time of making 24 the request for the return of the requested document. In the event the Receiving Party contests the 25 claim of privilege or inadvertent production, the Receiving Party shall file a motion within ten days 26 after return of the document to obtain a court determination that the document is not privileged.

The attorneys of record are responsible for employing reasonable measures, consistent with this Order, to control duplication of, access to, and distribution of copies of Confidential Information. Where a deponent is required under Paragraph 3 to sign a copy of Attachment "A" hereto before accessing Confidential Information, it is the responsibility of the attorney who wishes to use Confidential Information during the deposition to provide a copy of this Protective Order and Attachment "A" for the deponent to review and sign before Confidential Information may be disclosed to the deponent. Parties shall not duplicate any Confidential Information shall bear the appropriate confidential designation.

12. NO WAIVER
