In this capital habeas corpus action, the petitioner, Tracy Petrocelli, has filed a motion for reconsideration (docket #220), requesting that the court reconsider its order (docket #218) denying his motion for a stay (docket #203). The court finds that reconsideration of the denial of the stay is not warranted, and the court will deny the motion for reconsideration.

In his motion for a stay, Petrocelli argued that this action should be stayed so that he may return once again to state court to exhaust his unexhausted claims. In its order denying the stay, the court set forth the factual and procedural background of the case. Order entered March 10, 2011 (docket #218), pp. 1-6.

Petrocelli was convicted of first degree murder, and sentenced to death on September 8, 1982. In the 29 years since his conviction, Petrocelli has pursued a direct appeal to the Nevada Supreme Court and three state-court post conviction actions. See id. Despite his long history of state-court litigation, Petrocelli has filed in this federal habeas action a fourth amended

1 petition setting forth several claims for relief that have not been exhausted in state court. See Order 2 entered March 23, 2010 (docket #200); Order entered August 10, 2010 (docket #209).

3 In Rhines v. Weber, 544 U.S. 269 (2005), the Supreme Court held that a district court may 4 stay a mixed petition – a petition containing both exhausted and unexhausted claims – in “limited 5 circumstances,” so that a petitioner may present his unexhausted claims to the state courts without 6 losing his right to federal habeas review to the one-year statute of limitations. Rhines, 544 U.S. at 7 273-75. In Rhines, the Court ruled that a district court may stay a mixed petition only if: (1) the 8 petitioner has “good cause” for his failure to exhaust his claims in state court; (2) the unexhausted 9 claims are potentially meritorious; and (3) there is no indication that the petitioner intentionally 10 engaged in dilatory litigation tactics. Id. at 278. “[A] Rhines stay must be assessed “in light of the 11 Supreme Court’s instruction that the district court should only stay mixed petitions in ‘limited 12 circumstances.’” Wooten v. Kirkland, 540 F.3d 1019, 1024 (9th Cir.2008), citing Rhines, 544 U.S. at 13 273-75. Moreover, the court must keep in mind that AEDPA aims to encourage the finality of 14 sentences and to encourage petitioners to exhaust their claims in state court before seeking habeas 15 relief in federal court. Rhines, 544 U.S. at 276-77; see also Wooten, 540 F.3d at 1024. In the order 16 denying Petrocelli’s motion for a stay, the court considered each of his unexhausted claims, and 17 determined that Petrocelli did not satisfy the Rhines standards, to justify a stay, with respect to any of 18 those claims. Order entered March 10, 2011, pp. 7-26.

19 Additionally, the court considered whether, alternatively, a “Kelly stay” is justified, under the 20 Ninth Circuit cases of King v. Ryan, 564 F.3d 1133 (9th Cir.2009); Kelly v. Small, 315 F.3d 1063 21 (9th Cir.2003); and Calderon v. U.S. Dist. Ct. (Taylor), 134 F.3d 981, 986 (9th Cir.1998). Under 22 those authorities: (1) a federal habeas petitioner with unexhausted claims amends his petition to 23 delete the unexhausted claims; (2) the district court stays and holds in abeyance the amended, fully 24 exhausted petition, allowing the petitioner the opportunity to proceed to state court to exhaust the 25 deleted claims; and (3) the petitioner later amends his petition again incorporating the newly-26 exhausted claims. Kelly, 315 F.3d at 1070-71. The Kelly procedure has no requirement of a

1 showing of good cause for the petitioner’s failure to exhaust. However, compared to the Rhines
2 procedure, the Kelly procedure has a significant drawback for petitioners. “Unlike the Rhines
3 procedure, the Kelly procedure does nothing to protect a petitioner’s unexhausted claims from 4 untimeliness in the interim.” King, 564 F.3d at 1141. If the Kelly procedure is followed, in order to 5 avoid a statute of limitations bar under 28 U.S.C. § 2244(d)(1), the newly-exhausted claims, to be set 6 forth in an amended petition after the stay is lifted, must relate back to claims in the fully-exhausted
7 stayed petition. See King, 564 F.3d at 1142. “An amendment of a pleading relates back to the date 8 of the original pleading when ... the claim ... asserted in the amended pleading arose out of the 9 conduct, transaction, or occurrence set forth or attempted to be set forth in the original pleading.”
10 Fed.R.Civ.Pro. 15(c)(2). In Mayle v. Felix, 545 U.S. 644 (2005), the Supreme Court held that a 11 petitioner may amend to add a new claim into a pending federal habeas petition after the expiration 12 of the limitations period only if the new claim shares a “common core of operative facts” with the 13 claims in the pending petition. Mayle, 545 U.S. at 659. An amended habeas petition, “does not 14 relate back when it asserts a new ground for relief supported by facts that differ in both time and type 15 from those the original pleading set forth.” Id. at 649. A district court exercises discretion in 16 determining whether or not to grant a Kelly stay. Kelly, 315 F.3d at 1070. The court may properly 17 refuse to stay an exhausted habeas petition when the statute of limitations would prevent the 18 petitioner from ever successfully amending to re-assert his claim. See King, 564 F.3d. at 1141-42.
19 In Petrocelli’s case, the one-year AEDPA limitations period ran out long ago, and, therefore, a Kelly
20 stay would benefit Petrocelli only to the extent that his newly-exhausted claims – those to be added 21 back into the federal petition following the requested stay – would relate back to exhausted claims to 22 be included in the stayed petition. The court noted that Petrocelli made general arguments that his 23 newly-exhausted claims would not be time-barred, but that he did not provide any specific analysis
24 in this regard with respect to any particular claim. The court, however, examined Petrocelli’s 25 unexhausted claims, and compared those claims to the exhausted claims in the fourth amended 26 petition, and found that there could be colorable arguments that only three of the unexhausted claims

1 might relate back, under Mayle, to exhausted claims in Petrocelli’s fourth amended petition. The 2 court assumed, for purposes of its analysis only, and without finally deciding the relation-back issue, 3 that Grounds 15(d), 17, and 19 would relate back to exhausted claims, and could therefore survive a 4 statute of limitations challenge following a Kelly stay. However, the court exercised its discretion to 5 deny Petrocelli a Kelly stay. The court noted that in the nearly three decades since his conviction, 6 Petrocelli has litigated, in state court, a direct appeal and three state habeas actions, the last of those 7 between August 2003 and July 2007. The court stated that, in exercising its discretion, the court is 8 mindful of the important principles of comity and federalism, and stated that the State has a strong 9 interest in the finality of its criminal judgments, and execution of its capital sentences without undue 10 delay. The court was also mindful of the congressional intent behind AEDPA, the most recent wide-11 ranging federal legislation in the habeas area, to “reduce delays in the execution of state and federal 12 criminal sentences, particularly in capital cases.” See Rhines, 544 U.S. at 276. The court was also 13 cognizant, however, that, facing the ultimate punishment, capital habeas petitioners must be 14 provided reasonable opportunity to exhaust potentially meritorious habeas claims in state court, to 15 avoid unnecessary forfeiture of such claims. The court concluded, with respect to the question of a 16 Kelly stay, that it cannot countenance another stay of this action to provide time for yet another – it 17 would be Petrocelli’s fourth – state habeas action. See Order entered March 10, 2011, pp. 26-29.

18 The court, therefore, denied Petrocelli’s motion for a stay. Id. at 29-30. The court required 19 Petrocelli to abandon his unexhausted claims or face dismissal of his entire fourth amended petition.
20 Id. However, the court subsequently suspended the requirement that Petrocelli abandon his 21 unexhausted claims, pending the resolution of his motion for reconsideration. See Minute Order 22 entered April 14, 2011 (docket #221).

23 A district court “possesses the inherent procedural power to reconsider, rescind, or modify an 24 interlocutory order for cause seen by it to be sufficient.” City of L.A., Harbor Div. v. Santa Monica 25 Baykeeper, 254 F.3d 882, 888 (9th Cir.2001) (internal citation omitted); see also Fed. R. Civ. Pro.
26 54(b) (“any order or other decision, however designated, that adjudicates fewer than all the claims ...

1 may be revised at any time before the entry of a judgment”). Thus, all district court rulings are 2 subject to revision at any time before the entry of judgment so long as the court retains jurisdiction
3 over the case. United States v. Smith, 389 F.3d 944, 949 (9th Cir.2004) (emphasis omitted).
4 Reconsideration may be appropriate if a district court: (1) is presented with newly discovered 5 evidence, (2) committed clear error or the initial decision was manifestly unjust, or (3) there has been 6 an intervening change in controlling law. Nunes v. Ashcroft, 375 F.3d 805, 807–08
7 (9th Cir.2004); School Dist. No. 1J, Multnomah County v. ACandS, Inc., 5 F.3d 1255, 1263 (9th 8 Cir.1993).

9 In his motion for reconsideration, as a predicate, Petrocelli repeatedly states that this court, 10 in the order denying a stay, held “that ineffectiveness of post-conviction counsel can never constitute 11 good cause.” See, e.g., Motion for Reconsideration (docket #220), p. 4; see also, e.g., id. at 5 12 (referring to court’s “blanket holding that ineffective assistance of post-conviction counsel can never 13 constitute good cause for failing to exhaust”). However, the court’s March 10, 2011 order does not 14 say that. Petrocelli oversimplifies and distorts this court’s ruling. On this subject, the court’s ruling 15 was as follows:

16 While this court might hesitate to place an “excusable neglect” label on the 17 Rhines good cause standard, this court agrees with the court in Hoyos [v. Cullen, 2011
18 WL 11425 (S.D.Cal.2011) at *9-10] and the court in Corjasso [v. Ayers, 2006 WL
19 618380 (E.D.Cal March 9, 2006) at *3], that a simple statement that state post-conviction 20 counsel was ineffective for overlooking the issue is not enough to show good cause under 21 Rhines, and that some factor either external to, or outside the control of, the petitioner 22 and his counsel is required.

23 In this court’s view, under the circumstances in this case, to conclude that 24 Petrocelli had good cause for his failure to exhaust, based simply upon his conclusory 25 and unsupported assertion of ineffective assistance of counsel, without more, would 26 conflict with the Supreme Court’s instruction in Rhines that mixed petitions should be 27 stayed in only limited circumstances, and it would disregard and undermine the goals of 28 the AEDPA, to encourage the finality of sentences, and to encourage petitioners to 29 exhaust their claims in state court before filing in federal court. See Rhines, 544 U.S. at 30 273-77; see also Wooten, 540 F.3d at 1024. This court finds that Petrocelli has not 31 shown good-cause, under Rhines, for his failure to previously exhaust, in state court, the 32 claim in Ground 8(b).

Order entered March 10, 2011, p. 11.

1 Petrocelli also argues that the court erred in ruling that “Petrocelli’s justification, that his 2 post-conviction counsel performed ineffectively in failing to raise the claim, is one that could be 3 raised in virtually every case.” See Motion for Reconsideration, pp. 8-10; see also Order entered 4 March 10, 2011, p. 10. However, it simply an unavoidably is the case that in any case in which a 5 claim is unexhausted, a federal petitioner can argue that his state post-conviction counsel was 6 ineffective for not exhausting the claim. In fact, in Petrocelli’s motion for reconsideration, his 7 footnotes 2 and 4 are illuminating. In those footnotes, Petrocelli points out that his assertion of 8 ineffective assistance of counsel as good cause, and the court’s rejection of that argument, apply to 9 all his unexhausted claims; Petrocelli makes that assertion without any analysis specific to his 10 individual claims, or any analysis of his counsel’s handling of his individual claims. See Motion for 11 Reconsideration, p. 3 n. 2, and p. 9 n. 4; see also Reply in Support of Motion for Reconsideration 12 (docket #223), p. 5 n. 1. It is just that sort of generic argument, applicable to any unexhausted claim, 13 that Wooten appears to foreclose.

14 Petrocelli points out that, in Crump v. Warden, 113 Nev. 293, 934 P.2d 247 (1997), the 15 Nevada Supreme Court recognized a limited right to effective state post-conviction counsel. It does 16 not follow, however, that, because the Nevada Supreme Court has recognized a right to effective 17 assistance of counsel in certain state post-conviction proceedings, he had good cause, within the 18 meaning of the Rhines decision, for not exhausting, in state court, claims that he now raises in his 19 federal habeas petition.

20 In his motion for reconsideration, Petrocelli revisits his argument that there was good cause 21 for his failure to exhaust in state court the claim in Ground 7(e) of his fourth amended petition in this 22 case, because the case of Sechrest v. Ignacio, 549 F.3d 789 (9th Cir.2008) was decided after he filed 23 his opening brief on the appeal in his third state habeas action. See Motion for Reconsideration, 24 pp. 12-14. However, Petrocelli still fails to show that the timing of the Sechrest decision somehow 25 shows good cause for his failure to exhaust Ground 7(e). As the court stated in its March 10, 2011 26

1 order: “it is plain from the record that the claim in Ground 7(e) could have been articulated, and 2 exhausted in state court, before Sechrest was decided.” Order entered March 10, 2011, p. 8.

3 Petrocelli also revisits his argument that there is good cause for his failure to exhaust 4 Ground 11 because the case of Polk v. Sandoval, 503 F.3d 903 (9th Cir.2007) was not decided until 5 after he filed his opening brief on the appeal in his third state habeas action. See Motion for 6 Reconsideration, pp. 14-15. However, as the court explained in its March 10, 2011 order, it is plain 7 that Petrocelli’s ability to raise, in state court, the claim in Ground 11 was not dependent on the 8 decision in Polk:

9 Petrocelli could have raised this claim in state court before Polk was decided.
10 Petrocelli demonstrated this himself. In the state district court, in his third petition for 11 writ of habeas corpus, filed August 11, 2003 – about four years before Polk was decided 12 – Petrocelli made this claim. Exhibit 26, pp. 21-25. Had Petrocelli asserted the claim 13 on the appeal in that action, it would now be exhausted. However, Petrocelli did not do 14 that. The claim was abandoned and not asserted on appeal before the Nevada Supreme 15 Court. See Exhibit 38, pp. 18-20 (statement of issues presented on appeal in third state 16 habeas action). Petrocelli has provided no explanation – much less “good cause” – for 17 his abandonment of this claim on the appeal in his third state habeas action.

18 So, while the decision in Polk may have added some weight to Petrocelli’s claim, 19 Petrocelli’s ability to exhaust the claim was not dependent on the Polk decision, and 20 Petrocelli has not shown good cause for his failure to exhaust the claim.

21 Order entered March 10, 2011, pp. 12-13.

22 Petrocelli, then, has not shown any reason why this court should reconsider its ruling that he 23 has not shown good cause, under Rhines, for his failure to exhaust claims.

24 Furthermore, Petrocelli does not show any reason why the court should reconsider its denial 25 of a Kelly stay. Petrocelli’s argument that a stay, to allow him an opportunity for a fourth state 26 habeas action, would advance the interests in comity, federalism, and finality, is specious. The State has a strong interest in the finality of its criminal judgments, and execution of its capital sentences without undue delay. The interests in comity, federalism, and finality will not be undermined if Petrocelli, in this federal habeas action, is limited to only the claims he has exhausted in his three decades of state-court litigation.

The court will, therefore, deny the motion for reconsideration.

1 As a final matter, it has come to the court's attention that the docket in this case needs 2 updating, regarding the named respondents. The court is informed that Renee Baker is now the 3 warden of Ely State Prison, the prison where Petrocelli is incarcerated. See, e.g., Castillo v. Baker, 4 2:04-cv-0868-RCJ-GWF, Motion for Substitution of Respondent (docket #110). Therefore, pursuant 5 to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 25(d), Renee Baker is substituted for her predecessor, E.K.
6 McDaniel, as the respondent warden. Additionally, the court notes that the docket lists 7 Ron Angelone, a former director of the Nevada Department of Corrections, as a respondent.
8 However, Petrocelli's fourth amended petition does not name Ron Angelone, or any director of the 9 Nevada Department of Corrections, as a respondent. See Fourth Amended Petition for Writ of 10 Habeas Corpus (docket #162). Therefore, Ron Angelone shall be removed from the docket as a 11 named respondent.

12 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that petitioner's Motion for Reconsideration of Order 13 Denying Petitioner's Motion for Stay and Abeyance (docket #220) is DENIED.

14 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that petitioner shall have 30 days from the date of entry of 15 this order to file a notice of abandonment of unexhausted claims, abandoning the claims in his fourth 16 amended petition that have been held to be unexhausted in state court (Grounds 7(e), 8(b), 9, 11, 14, 17 15(a), 15(b), 15(c), 15(d), 15(e), 16(a), 16(b), 16(c), 16(d), 16(e), 16(f), 16(g), 16(h), 16(i), 17, 18, 18 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, and 31). If petitioner does not, within the time allowed, 19 file a notice of abandonment of unexhausted claims, abandoning all of his unexhausted claims, 20 petitioner's Fourth Amended Petition (docket #162) will be dismissed, in its entirety, pursuant to 21 Rose v. Lundy, 455 U.S. 509 (1982).

22 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that, if petitioner files a notice of abandonment of 23 unexhausted claims, abandoning all of his unexhausted claims, within the time allowed, respondent 24 shall thereafter have 90 days to file an answer, responding to the exhausted claims remaining in 25 petitioner's fourth amended petition (Grounds 6(c), 6(d), 7(b), 7(f), 10, 12, and 13).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that, in all other respects, the schedule for further proceedings set forth in the order entered November 16, 2007 (docket #147) shall remain in force.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Clerk of the Court shall substitute Renee Baker for E.K. McDaniel, on the docket, as the respondent warden; shall remove Ron Angelone from the docket, as a respondent; and shall update the caption of the action to reflect these changes.
