

1
2
3
4
5
6
7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22
23 24
25 26

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT DISTRICT OF NEVADA

CHAZ HIGGS,	)
	)
Petitioner,	)	3:10-cv-00050-RCJ-WGC
	)
vs.	)	ORDER
	)
DWIGHT NEVEN, et al. ,	)
	)
Respondents.	)
	/

This action is a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2254, by Chaz Higgs, a Nevada state prisoner represented by counsel. This matter comes before the Court on the merits of the petition.

I. Procedural History

On September 28, 2006, the State charged Petitioner in Reno Justice Court by criminal complaint with open murder in violation of NRS 200.010 and 200.030. (Exhibit 2).<sup>1</sup> Following a preliminary hearing, Petitioner was bound over to the district court for trial. (Exhibit 14, at p. 136).

On December 12, 2006, the state charged Petitioner in the Second Judicial District Court, County of Washoe, State of Nevada, by information with open murder in violation of NRS 200.010 and 200.030. (Exhibit 16). Petitioner pleaded not guilty. (Exhibit 17, at p. 3).

---

<sup>1</sup> The exhibits referenced in this order are found in the Court’s record at ECF Nos. 6-9.

1           On January 12, 2007, Petitioner filed a pretrial petition for a writ of habeas corpus on the 2 basis that there was insufficient evidence to support the justice court's finding of probable cause.
3 (Exhibit 18). After briefing and argument, the trial court denied the petition. (Exhibit 31, at pp. 26-4 27).

5           Trial commenced on June 18, 2007. (Exhibit 87). After a two-week trial, the jury convicted
6 Petitioner of the first-degree murder of his wife, Kathy Augustine. (Exhibit 97, at p. 1583).
7 Following a brief penalty hearing, the jury selected a sentence of life in prison with the possibility of 8 parole after 20 years. (Id., at pp. 1620-21). The trial court confirmed the sentence. (Id., at p. 1623).
9 Judgment was entered on June 29, 2007. (Exhibit 98).

10           Petitioner pursued a direct appeal. (Exhibit 107). Petitioner, by way of counsel, filed his 11 opening brief with the Nevada Supreme Court. (Exhibit 117). On September 16, 2008, the Nevada
12 Supreme Court issued its unpublished order of affirmance. (Exhibit 134). Petitioner filed a petition
13 for rehearing, which was denied. (Exhibits 137 & 141). The Nevada Justice Association requested
14 that the court's decision be published, and on January 14, 2010, the Nevada Supreme Court filed a 15 published opinion affirming Petitioner's conviction. (Exhibit 144; Higgs v. State, 126 Nev. ___, 222 16 P.3d 648 (2010)). Remittitur issued on February 9, 2010. (Exhibit 145).

17           Petitioner filed his federal habeas petition on January 27, 2010. (ECF No. 1). The petition
18 contains five grounds for relief. Petitioner claims that his rights under the United States Constitution
19 were violated because: (1) the trial court denied his request for a continuance; (2) the trial court
20 failed to adopt the standard for admissibility of expert testimony set forth in Daubert v. Merrell Dow
21 Pharmaceuticals, Inc., 509 U.S. 579 (1993); (3) the trial court declined to give a spoliation
22 instruction; (4) there is insufficient evidence to sustain his conviction; and (5) he was prejudiced by 23 the cumulative effect of plain errors at trial. (ECF No. 1).

24           Respondents previously filed a motion to dismiss certain grounds as unexhausted. (ECF No.
25 5). By order filed March 24, 2011, this Court denied the motion to dismiss and directed the 26

1 respondents to file an answer to all grounds of the petition. (ECF No. 17). Respondents have filed
2 an answer (ECF No. 19) and Petitioner has filed a traverse (ECF No. 22). The Court now addresses
3 the merits of each claim of the federal petition.

4 II. Federal Habeas Corpus Standards

5 The Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act (“AEDPA”), at 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d), 6 provides the legal standard for the Court’s consideration of this habeas petition:

7 An application for a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of a person in 8 custody pursuant to the judgment of a State court shall not be granted
9 with respect to any claim that was adjudicated on the merits in State
10 court proceedings unless the adjudication of the claim –

11 (1) resulted in a decision that was contrary to, or involved an 12 unreasonable application of, clearly established Federal law, as 13 determined by the Supreme Court of the United States; or

14 (2) resulted in a decision that was based on an unreasonable
15 determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the State 16 court proceeding.

17 The AEDPA “modified a federal habeas court’s role in reviewing state prisoner applications
18 in order to prevent federal habeas ‘retrials’ and to ensure that state-court convictions are given effect
19 to the extent possible under law.” Bell v. Cone, 535 U.S. 685, 693-694 (2002). A state court
20 decision is contrary to clearly established Supreme Court precedent, within the meaning of 28 U.S.C.
21 § 2254, “if the state court applies a rule that contradicts the governing law set forth in [the Supreme 22 Court’s] cases” or “if the state court confronts a set of facts that are materially indistinguishable from 23 a decision of [the Supreme Court] and nevertheless arrives at a result different from [the Supreme 24 Court’s] precedent.” Lockyer v. Andrade, 538 U.S. 63, 73 (2003) (quoting Williams v. Taylor, 529 25 U.S. 362, 405-406 (2000) and citing Bell v. Cone, 535 U.S. 685, 694 (2002)). The formidable 26 standard set forth in section 2254(d) reflects the view that habeas corpus is “‘a guard against extreme malfunctions in the state criminal justice systems,’ not a substitute for ordinary error correction

1 through appeal.” Harrington v. Richter, 562 U.S. ___, ___, 131 S.Ct. 770, 786 (2011) (quoting
2 Jackson v. Virginia, 443 U.S. 307, 332 n.5 (1979)).

3 A state court decision is an unreasonable application of clearly established Supreme Court
4 precedent, within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d), “if the state court identifies the correct
5 governing legal principle from [the Supreme Court’s] decisions but unreasonably applies that 6 principle to the facts of the prisoner’s case.” Lockyer v. Andrade, 538 U.S. at 75 (quoting Williams, 7 529 U.S. at 413). The “unreasonable application” clause requires the state court decision to be more
8 than merely incorrect or erroneous; the state court’s application of clearly established federal law
9 must be objectively unreasonable. Id. (quoting Williams, 529 U.S. at 409). In determining whether a 10 state court decision is contrary to, or an unreasonable application of federal law, this Court looks to 11 the state courts’ last reasoned decision. See Ylst v. Nunnemaker, 501 U.S. 797, 803-04 (1991);
12 Shackleford v. Hubbard, 234 F.3d 1072, 1079 n.2 (9th Cir. 2000), cert. denied, 534 U.S. 944 (2001).

13 In a federal habeas proceeding, “a determination of a factual issue made by a State court shall 14 be presumed to be correct,” and the petitioner “shall have the burden of rebutting the presumption of 15 correctness by clear and convincing evidence.” 28 U.S.C. § 2254(e)(1). If a claim has been 16 adjudicated on the merits by a state court, a federal habeas petitioner must overcome the burden set 17 in § 2254(d) and (e) on the record that was before the state court. Cullen v. Pinholster, 131 S.Ct.
18 1388, 1400 (2011).

19 III. Discussion

20 A. Ground 1

21 Petitioner claims that his Fifth, Sixth, and Fourteenth Amendment rights to a fair trial and 22 due process were violated by the trial court’s denial of a continuance. (ECF No. 1, at pp. 3, 18-34).

23 On direct appeal, the Nevada Supreme Court addressed this issue as follows:

24 Higgs argues that the district court violated his rights under the Fifth, 25 Sixth, and Fourteenth Amendments when it denied his motion to 26 continue the trial. He asserts that his defense expert did not have adequate time to evaluate the conclusions of the FBI’s toxicology

1 report that confirmed the presence of succinylcholine in 2 Augustine's urine. Specifically, he asserts that FBI toxicologist
3 Montgomery defied the court order instructing her to provide 4 discovery. Without the full FBI report, Higgs argues that his expert witness, Chip Walls, could not testify as to the validity of the FBI report and the defense could not adequately cross-examine Montgomery.

5 "This court reviews the district court's decision regarding a motion for 6 continuance for an abuse of discretion." Rose v. State, 123 Nev. 194, 206, 163 P.3d 408, 416 (2007). Each case turns on its own particular 7 facts, and much weight is given to the reasons offered to the trial judge at the time the request for a continuance is made. Zessman v. State, 94 8 Nev. 28, 31, 573 P.2d 1174, 1177 (1978). This court has held that generally, a denial of a motion to continue is an abuse of discretion if it 9 leaves the defense with inadequate time to prepare for trial. See id. In other instances, we have held that a denial of a motion to continue was 10 an abuse of discretion if "a defendant's request for a modest continuance to procure witnesses . . . was not the defendant's fault."
11 Rose, 123 Nev. at 206, 163 P.3d at 416. However, if a defendant fails to demonstrate that he was prejudiced by the denial of a continuance, 12 then the district court's decision to deny the continuance is not an abuse of discretion. Id.

13 We conclude that the district court did not abuse its discretion when it 14 denied Higgs' motion to continue the trial because Higgs has failed to demonstrate that he was prejudiced by the denial.

15 By defense counsel's own admission, there was no explanation for the 16 delay in asking for more information regarding the FBI's toxicology report. Higgs' expert witness, Chip Walls, had approximately six 17 months to question, evaluate, and determine whether additional information about the toxicology report would be necessary for his 18 consideration. During the hearing on the motion to continue, the State explained that Walls had received the toxicology report on December 19 7, 2006, yet Higgs failed to ask for additional information about the report until May 2007. In regard to the delay, defense counsel stated, 20 "The fault, unfortunately, really doesn't lie anywhere." Defense counsel, Walls, the State, and Montgomery all worked together to 21 compile the list of materials, which constituted part of the discovery orders signed by Judge Polaha. In addition, Montgomery spoke to 22 Walls on the phone. Walls later testified that during that phone conversation, the two exchanged information and Montgomery 23 answered his questions. Walls admitted that he could have asked Montgomery more specific questions and she would have answered 24 them, but he chose not to ask additional questions. Walls confirmed that he and Montgomery exchanged information and all that was left 25 was for him to "complete [his] thoughts with her." The additional information that Montgomery compiled for Walls had to be cleared by 26 the FBI's attorneys before it could be sent to Walls. Accordingly, we

1 conclude that there is no evidence in the record supporting Higgs'
2 contention that Montgomery violated the district court's discovery
3 order. Rather, substantial evidence on the record shows that 4 Montgomery was cooperative with the defense.

5 We further observe that on the morning of June 18, 2007, before the 6 beginning of trial, Walls testified extensively during a motion-in-7 limine hearing regarding expert witness testimony. He testified about 8 succinylcholine in general and the difficulties of testing the substance, 9 as well as the problems with testing urine samples for succinylcholine.
10 Walls' testimony was thoughtful and thorough; he explained the 11 aspects of the FBI testing he agreed with and the aspects he 12 questioned. Perhaps most importantly, Walls testified that while he 13 had some reservations regarding the FBI's methodology, he agreed 14 with the findings of Montgomery's toxicology report.

15 Higgs does not offer any reason why Walls did not testify at trial as he 16 did at the hearing on the motion in limine. However, Walls' testimony
17 during the motion-in-limine hearing supplied Higgs the discovery
18 necessary to conduct an effective cross-examination of Montgomery.
19 See Pantano v. State, 122 Nev. 782, 790, 138 P.3d 477, 482 (2006)
20 (observing that "the Confrontation Clause guarantees an opportunity 21 for effective cross-examination, not cross-examination that is effective 22 in whatever way, and to whatever extent, the defense might wish" 23 (quoting Delaware v. Van Arsdall, 475 U.S. 673, 679 (1986))).
24 Moreover, by defense counsel's own statements at the continuance 25 hearing, Walls had known for weeks that the FBI lab machine that 26 Montgomery had used had malfunctioned at one point. The evidence on the record shows that the discovery available to Higgs at the time of trial met constitutional guarantees of an opportunity to effectively cross-examine Montgomery, and therefore, we conclude that Higgs was not prejudiced by the district court's denial of the motion to continue.

We also note that Higgs had a number of other opportunities before trial to seek a continuance because he needed more time to evaluate the toxicology report. The district court held several pretrial hearings on other motions during which Higgs could have again asked for more time. Specifically, the district court held a hearing on June 8, 2007, to confirm the trial date, during which Higgs' defense counsel expressly stated, "We'll be ready on June 18th."

We make a final observation with regard to the motion to continue. It was based on the defense's need for more time to investigate evidence relating to the cause of death. This court has held that cause of death can be shown by circumstantial evidence. West v. State, 119 Nev.
410, 416, 75 P.3d 808, 812 (2003). A denial of a motion to continue to allow the defense to investigate a report as to the cause of death is not prejudicial when the State could prove cause of death with other circumstantial evidence. Even if Higgs had more time to investigate

1 the FBI toxicology report, it would not change the fact that the State 2 had enough circumstantial evidence to prove Augustine's cause of death.

3 We therefore conclude that the district court did not abuse its 4 discretion when it denied Higgs' motion to continue the trial because Higgs fails to demonstrate that any prejudice resulted from the denial.

5 Exhibit 144, at pp. 9-13; Higgs, 126 Nev. at ___, 222 P.3d at 653-54 (emphasis in original).

6 Petitioner filed a motion for rehearing, contending that the Nevada Supreme Court had
7 misapprehended material facts and law in rendering its decision. (Exhibit 137). The Nevada
8 Supreme Court denied the petition:

9 In the petition for rehearing, Higgs contends that the district court's 10 denial of the motion to continue violated his constitutional rights.
11 Higgs asserts that the majority misapprehended the material fact that 12 FBI toxicologist and State expert witness Madeline Montgomery 13 "flouted" a district court discovery order that she turn over her toxicology report. Citing the dissent, Higgs contends that Montgomery's refusal to turn over her full toxicology report impinged on his Sixth Amendment right to confrontation. Higgs misstates the facts and the law.

14 This court's order of affirmance did not misapprehend the material 15 facts. Our review of the following material facts demonstrates that 16 Montgomery did not "flout" the district court's discovery order. By 17 defense counsel's own statements in court and the motion in limine 18 testimony of defense expert Chip Walls, the FBI sent Walls its 19 toxicology report in December 2006, 24 weeks before the trial date.
20 Four weeks before trial, in May 2007, Walls informed defense counsel
21 that he needed additional information. By defense counsel's own 22 admission, there was no explanation for the delay in asking for more 23 information. At the hearing on the motion to continue, defense
24 counsel stated, "The fault, unfortunately, really doesn't lie anywhere."
25 Defense counsel, Walls, the State, and Montgomery all worked 26 together to compile the list of materials, which constituted part of the discovery order signed by Judge Polaha. In addition, Montgomery spoke to Walls on the phone. Walls later testified that during that phone conversation, the two exchanged information and Montgomery answered his questions. The additional information that Montgomery compiled for Walls had to be cleared by the FBI's attorneys before it could be sent to Walls. Accordingly, we conclude that there is no evidence on the record suggesting that Montgomery violated a discovery order. Rather, substantial evidence on the record shows that Montgomery was cooperative with Higgs and Walls.

1 The majority's order did not misapprehend the law. It correctly
2 concluded that the denial of the motion to continue did not violate Higgs' Sixth Amendment right to confrontation.

3 On the morning of June 18, 2007, before beginning trial, Walls
4 testified extensively during a motion in limine hearing. Walls testified
5 thoughtfully and thoroughly regarding Montgomery's FBI toxicology 6 report, testifying as to what parts he agreed with and what parts he 7 questioned. Walls further testified about succinylcholine in general, 8 the difficulties of testing the substance, as well as the problems with 9 testing urine samples for succinylcholine. Walls testified that he had 10 spoken to Montgomery and she had answered his questions. In 11 addition, Montgomery told Walls that she would put another package
12 together for him but it would have to get cleared through the FBI 13 lawyers before it was released. Walls admitted that he could have 14 asked Montgomery more specific questions and she would have 15 answered them, but he chose not to ask additional questions. He 16 confirmed that he and Montgomery exchanged information and all that 17 was left was for him "to complete [his] thoughts with her." Perhaps 18 most importantly, Walls testified that while he had some reservations 19 regarding the FBI's methodology, he agreed with the findings of 20 Montgomery's toxicology report.

21 Higgs does not offer any reason why Walls did not testify at trial as he 22 did at the motion in limine. Armed with only the information that 23 Walls testified to during the motion in limine hearing, there is no
24 question that Higgs had the discovery necessary to conduct an effective 25 cross-examination of Montgomery. See Pantano v. State, 122 Nev.
26 782, 790, 138 P.3d 477, 482 (2006) (observing that "the Confrontation Clause guarantees an opportunity for effective cross-examination, not cross-examination that is effective in whatever way, and to whatever extent, the defense might wish" (quoting Delaware v.
Van Arsdall, 475 U.S. 673, 679 (1986))). Moreover, by defense counsel's own statements at the continuance hearing, he had known for weeks that the FBI lab machine that Montgomery had used had malfunctioned at one point. Therefore, months before the trial date, defense counsel had the discovery necessary for an effective cross-examination of Montgomery. Additionally, it had a State-appointed, well respected expert, Walls, who could effectively testify as to the deficiencies of the FBI's toxicology report – Walls was present on the first day of trial and testified extensively at a motion in limine hearing that morning. The evidence on the record shows that the discovery available to Higgs at the time of trial met constitutional guarantees of an opportunity to effectively cross-examine Montgomery.

27 Higgs further assigns error to the majority's conclusion that he could 28 have renewed his motion for continuance at a pretrial hearing. In so 29 holding, Higgs argues that the majority overlooks Richmond v. State, 30 118 Nev. 924, 59 P.3d 1249 (2002). He contends that a failure to grant a continuance cannot be justified by his failure to renew the motion at 1 another date. Higgs asserts that the denial of the motion to continue 2 was with prejudice and therefore there was nothing more to be done.

3 Not only does Higgs misstate the majority's conclusion, but Richmond
4 is wholly inapposite.

5 In its order affirming the district court, the majority states that "Higgs
6 could have sought additional time to review the evidence at the motion
7 in limine but failed to do so." Higgs v. State, Docket No. 49883
8 (Order of Affirmance, May 19, 2009). First, we take this opportunity 9 to note that this point was more an observation than a holding. It 10 follows the substantive discussion regarding why the majority did not 11 find that it was an abuse of discretion when the district court denied 12 the motion to continue. The majority does not state, nor can it be 13 logically implied from the observation, that there was no abuse of 14 discretion simply because Higgs never raised the issue again. To the 15 contrary, the order makes it clear that the majority noted that Higgs did 16 not again ask the court for additional time.

17 In addition, Higgs' reliance on Richmond is misplaced. In Richmond, 18 this court held "where an objection has been fully briefed, the district
19 court has thoroughly explored the objection during a hearing on a 20 pretrial motion, and the district court has made a definitive ruling, then 21 a motion in limine is sufficient to preserve an issue for appeal." 118
22 Nev. at 932, 59 P.3d at 1254. Richmond was, therefore, concerned 23 with the preservation of issues for appeal. It did not, either expressly 24 or impliedly, discuss the futility of renewing motions before the district 25 court. As the majority correctly opined, there was nothing to prevent 26 Higgs from asking again for more time.

In addition, Higgs fails to point out that the district court held a hearing on June 8, 2007, to confirm the trial date, during which Higgs' defense counsel expressly stated, "We'll be ready on June 18th." Moreover, the record does not support Higgs' argument that the denial of the continuance was with prejudice. Nowhere in its ruling did the district court judge use those words; he merely concluded by stating, "I don't want to grant an extension . . . I do not believe that the interests of justice in this case will be furthered by a continuance." Therefore, we conclude that Higgs misstates the facts and the law as to his argument that this court overlooked Richmond.

Higgs argues that the denial of the motion to continue deprived him due process because it resulted in the exclusion of key evidence in the form of Walls' testimony. Higgs' contention fails.

As we have discussed above, Walls was present, able, and willing to testify at trial. He was present the morning of the first day of trial and testified extensively to his expertise, opinion, and conclusions as to succinylcholine and the FBI toxicology report. Walls testified that he had a few follow-up questions for Montgomery – questions which arose from his one-on-one phone conversation with her. Higgs'

1 decision not to put Walls on the stand at trial was just that – his 2 decision. Further, Higgs has not put forth any evidence alleging that 3 he could not secure other evidence or testimony due to the lack of 4 time. Accordingly, Higgs’ argument, that the denial of the motion to 5 continue deprived him of due process because it prevented him from 6 presenting important circumstantial evidence, is without merit.

(Exhibit 141, at pp. 2-7) (emphasis in original).

7 Petitioner presents the arguments of the two justices of the Nevada Supreme Court who 8 dissented from the affirmance of his conviction. (ECF No. 1, at pp. 29-34). Petitioner argues that 9 the denial of his request for a continuance violated his constitutional rights because it denied him
10 “potentially crucial evidence” and “had an adverse affect on [his] presentation of the case.” (Id., at 11 pp. 29, 33). Petitioner argues that the Nevada Supreme Court’s decision is contrary to California v.
12 Trombetta, 467 U.S. 479, 485 (1984) (criminal defendants must be provided a meaningful 13 opportunity to present a complete defense); Chambers v. Mississippi, 410 U.S. 284, 302 (1973)
14 (“Few rights are more fundamental than that of an accused to present witnesses in his own
15 defense.”); and Kyles v. Whitley, 514 U.S. 419 (1995) (once a court finds a Brady error, “there is no 16 need for further harmless error review”).

17 The Nevada Supreme Court rejected Petitioner’s assertion that this case involved the 18 violation of a discovery order or the withholding of evidence. (Exhibit 144, at p. 11). Both the state 19 district court and the Nevada Supreme Court detailed the time line of discovery and noted that the 20 defense’s expert was provided with the State’s expert’s report six months before trial, but waited just 21 weeks before trial to declare that he needed additional information. (Exhibit 56, at p. 18; Exhibit 22 144, at p. 11). The Nevada Supreme Court found that the defense expert had an opportunity to 23 obtain further information by questioning the State’s expert during a telephone conversation, but 24 failed to take advantage of that opportunity. (Exhibit 144, at p. 11). The Nevada Supreme Court 25 pointed out that only ten days before trial, and three weeks after filing the motion to continue, 26 defense counsel stated that he was ready to proceed. (Exhibit 144, at pp. 12-13). Both the state district court and the Nevada Supreme Court found that there was sufficient discovery available to

1 Petitioner and his defense expert to allow the defense expert to challenge the State’s expert witness
2 and provide for effective cross-examination. (Exhibit 56, at pp. 18-19; Exhibit 144, at pp. 11-12;
3 Exhibit 141 at p. 4; see Exhibit 87, at pp. 9-22) (cross-examination of State’s witness Dr. William H.
4 Anderson during motions hearing); Exhibit 88, at pp. 12-35 (testimony of defense expert Dr. H. Chip
5 Walls during motions hearing)). Notably, the Nevada Supreme Court found that the defense’s expert
6 ultimately agreed with the State’s expert regarding the presence of succinylcholine in the victim’s
7 urine. (Exhibit 144, at p. 4; see Exhibit 88, at pp. 24, 29 (pre-trial testimony of Dr. Walls)). The 8 Nevada Supreme Court determined that Petitioner was not prejudiced based on its finding that, 9 absent its expert witness, the State still had enough circumstantial evidence to prove the cause of 10 death. (Exhibit 144, at p. 13).

11         The factual findings of the state court are entitled to a presumption of correctness. 28 U.S.C.
12 § 2254(e)(1); see Williams v. Rhoades, 354 F.3d 1101, 1108 (9th Cir. 2004) (“On habeas review, state
13 appellate court findings – including those that interpret clear or ambiguous trial court findings – are 14 entitled to the same presumption of correctness that [is afforded to] trial court findings.”). This 15 presumption can be overcome only by “clear and convincing evidence.” 28 U.S.C. § 2254(e)(1).
16 Petitioner fails to show by clear and convincing evidence that the state court findings were 17 erroneous. Petitioner offers nothing more than argument and unsupported statements. (ECF No. 1, 18 at pp. 18-34).

19         In light of the state court findings, the Nevada Supreme Court’s decision was not an 20 unreasonable application of Chambers, Trombetta, or Kyles. In Chambers, the United States
21 Supreme Court found a due process violation where the trial court had applied a state law that 22 precluded a defendant from treating a defense witness as adverse and cross-examining the witness 23 regarding the witness’s out-of-court statements. 410 U.S. at 284. The Court determined that the 24 mechanical application of evidentiary rules is not appropriate “where constitutional rights directly 25 affecting the ascertainment of guilt are implicated.” Id. at 302. The Court specified that it was not 26

1 signaling any “diminution in the respect traditionally accorded to the States in the establishment and
2 implementation of their own criminal trial rules,” but held that “under the facts and circumstances of 3 this case the rulings of the trial court deprived [the defendant] of a fair trial.” Id. at 302-03. The 4 present case is distinguishable from Chambers. Petitioner was not precluded from cross-examining 5 any witness. His own expert was ready and willing to testify, as shown by his pretrial testimony
6 (Exhibit 88, at pp. 12-35) but was not called as a witness by the defense. (See Exhibit 144, at p. 12).
7 The denial of the continuance was not based on the mechanical application of an evidentiary rule.
8 Rather, it was based on the trial court’s determination that, in light of the circumstances, a 9 continuance was unnecessary. (See Exhibit 56, at pp. 18-19).

10       In Trombetta, the United States Supreme Court determined that the Fourteenth Amendment 11 did not require states to preserve breath samples in order for the results of breath analysis tests to be 12 admissible at trial. 467 U.S. at 481. The Court decided that “[w]hatever the duty the Constitution 13 imposes on the States to preserve evidence, that duty must be limited to evidence that might be 14 expected to play a significant role in the suspect’s defense.” Id. at 488. To meet this standard, the 15 evidence in question “must both possess an exculpatory value that was apparent before the evidence
16 was destroyed, and be of such a nature that the defendant would be unable to obtain comparable 17 evidence by other reasonably available means.” Id. at 489. Neither condition is met on the facts of 18 the instant case. Even if Petitioner’s claim that he was improperly denied a continuance can be 19 morphed into a claim that the prosecution withheld evidence, that evidence was not destroyed, it was 20 not exculpatory, and it was reasonably available by other means. Therefore, it was immaterial for 21 constitutional purposes. See id.

22       The Court in Kyles stated that once a reviewing court has found a constitutional violation of 23 Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963), and its progeny, “there is no need for further harmless-error 24 review.” 514 U.S. at 435. This rule means that once a successful Brady claim is made, prejudice has 25 already been shown. Id. Petitioner argued before the Nevada Supreme Court that the trial court
26

1 erred by denying a continuance – not that the prosecution had withheld material evidence. (See
2 Exhibit 117, at pp. 12-20). To the extent that Petitioner raised a Brady claim on rehearing, the 3 Nevada Supreme Court rejected it. (Exhibit 141, at pp. 2-3). The Nevada Supreme Court found no
4 withholding of evidence by the prosecution. (Exhibit 144, at p. 11; Exhibit 141, at pp. 2-3). And,
5 even assuming that evidence was withheld, the Nevada Supreme Court’s determination that there
6 was no prejudice renders that evidence immaterial for Brady purposes. See U.S. v. Bagley, 473 U.S.
7 667, 682 (1985) (“[E]vidence is material only if there is a reasonable probability that, had the 8 evidence been disclosed to the defense, the result of the proceeding would have been different.”).

9         Petitioner further argues that the Nevada Supreme Court’s decision was an unreasonable
10 application of Ungar v. Sarafite, 376 U.S. 575 (1964). In Ungar, the United States Supreme Court
11 stated that “[t]here are no mechanical tests for deciding when a denial of a continuance is so arbitrary
12 as to violate due process. The answer must be found in the circumstances present in every case, 13 particularly in the reasons presented to the trial judge at the time the request is denied.” 376 U.S. at 14 589. The Nevada Supreme Court’s decision did not run afoul of the rule announced in Ungar. The 15 Nevada Supreme Court did not, as Petitioner suggests, apply a mechanical test when reviewing the 16 denial of the motion to continue, but instead examined the particular circumstances of Petitioner’s
17 motion before concluding that the district court had not abused its discretion. (Exhibit 144, at pp. 9-18 13; Exhibit 141, at pp. 2-7).

19         Petitioner has failed to meet his burden of proving that the Nevada Supreme Court’s ruling 20 was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established federal law, as 21 determined by the United States Supreme Court, or that the ruling was based on an unreasonable
22 determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the state court proceeding. Federal 23 habeas relief is denied as to Ground 1 of the petition.

24 ///

25 ///

26

1 In Hallmark, we stated that Daubert and federal court decisions
2 discussing it “may provide persuasive authority.” Hallmark, 124 Nev.
3 at ___, 189 P.3d at 650. We did not, however, and do not today, adopt 4 the Daubert standard as a limitation on the factors that a trial judge in Nevada may consider. We expressly reject the notion that our decision in Hallmark inferentially adopted Daubert or signaled an intent by this court to do so.

5 * * *

6 We hold that NRS 50.275 provides the standard for admissibility of 7 expert witness testimony in Nevada.

8 With those principles in mind, we now turn to whether the district
9 court abused its discretion in allowing Montgomery to testify as an 10 expert witness. We first consider whether Montgomery was qualified 11 to testify as an expert witness. Among the factors the court may have considered in determining Montgomery’s qualifications were whether she had formal schooling, proper licensure, employment experience, and practical experience and specialized training. See Hallmark, 124
Nev. at ___, 189 P.3d at 650-51.

12 Montgomery had a science degree, was employed with the FBI’s 13 toxicology department, and had acquired specialized knowledge and 14 training with regard to succinylcholine testing. Accordingly, we conclude that the district court acted within its discretion when it found that Montgomery met the qualification requirement.

15 Next, we consider whether Montgomery’s testimony assisted the jury 16 to understand the evidence or to determine a fact in issue. We have 17 explained that expert witness testimony “will assist the trier of fact 18 only when it is relevant and the product of reliable methodology. Id. at 19 ___, 189 P.3d at 651 (citations omitted). While each case turns upon 20 varying factors, as discussed above, in Hallmark, we articulated five 21 factors to judge reliability of a methodology, instructing the district 22 court to consider whether the proffered opinion is

(1) within a recognized field of expertise; (2) testable and has been tested; (3) published and subjected to peer review; (4) generally accepted in the scientific community (not always determinative); and (5) based more on particularized facts rather than assumption, conjecture, or generalization.

23 Id. at ___, 189 P.3d at 651-52 (citations omitted).

24 We conclude that the district court did not abuse its discretion when it
25 found that Montgomery’s testimony would assist the jury.
26 Montgomery is part of a small group of toxicologists in the country with experience in testing for succinylcholine. In addition, she had

1 ongoing training in the field, and had authored dozens of publications
2 and given numerous presentations on matters relevant to her field.
3 Montgomery's work was testable although it is unclear whether it had 4 been tested. The record does not contain evidence as to whether 5 Montgomery's work had been subject to peer review. And, while it is 6 unclear the scope of acceptance that Montgomery's methodology has 7 in the scientific community, Walls testified in the pretrial hearings that 8 he did not take issue with her methodology or results. While the 9 testing methodology used by Montgomery did not meet all the 10 Hallmark factors for assessing reliability, those factors may be 11 afforded varying weights and may not apply equally in every case. It is 12 up to the district court judge to make the determination regarding the 13 varying factors as he or she is the gatekeeper – not this court. In this 14 case, we determine that the district court acted within its discretion 15 when it found that Montgomery's testimony would assist the jury in 16 understanding the evidence and determining a fact in issue.

17 18 19 20 21 22
23 24
25 26 27 28 29 30 31 32 33 34 35 36 37 38 39 40 41 42 43 44 45 46 47 48 49 50 51 52 53 54
55 56 57 58 59 60 61
62
63
64
65
66
67 68
69 70 71 72 73
74
75 76
77
78
79 80
81 82 83
84 85 86 87
88 89 90
91 92
93 94
95
96
97
98
99 100 101 102 103 104
105
106
107
108 109
110 111
112 113
114
115
116
117 118
119
120 121 122 123 124 125 126
127 128
129
130 131 132 133
134 135 136
137
138
139 140 141 142 143 144 145 146 147 148 149 150 151 152 153
154 155 156 157 158
159 160 161 162 163 164
165 166
167 168 169 170 171 172 173
174 175
176 177 178
179 180 181 182 183 184
185
186 187 188 189 190
191 192 193
194 195 196 197
198 199 200 201 202 203 204 205
206 207 208 209 210 211
212 213 214
215
216
217 218 219 220
221
222 223 224
225
226 227
228 229
230 231
232 233 234 235 236 237 238 239
240 241 242 243 244
245 246
247
248
249 250 251 252 253 254 255 256 257 258 259 260 261
262
263 264
265 266 267 268 269
270
271 272
273 274 275 276 277 278 279 280 281 282 283 284 285 286
287 288 289
290 291 292
293
294 295 296 297 298 299 300 301 302 303 304 305
306
307 308 309
310 311 312 313
314 315 316 317
318 319
320 321 322 323
324 325
326
327 328 329
330 331
332 333 334 335 336 337 338
339 340
341 342 343
344 345 346 347 348 349 350 351 352
353 354 355 356
357
358
359 360 361 362 363 364 365 366
367
368 369 370 371 372 373 374
375
376 377 378
379
380 381 382 383
384
385 386 387
388
389 390 391
392 393
394
395
396 397 398 399 400 401
402 403 404
405
406
407 408 409 410 411 412
413
414
415 416 417
418
419 420
421 422
423 424
425 426 427 428 429 430 431
432 433
434 435 436
437
438 439 440 441
442 443 444
445 446 447 448 449
450
451 452
453 454 455 456 457 458 459 460 461 462 463 464 465
466 467 468 469 470 471 472 473
474 475
476 477 478
479
480 481 482 483 484 485 486
487 488
489 490 491 492 493 494 495
496 497
498
499 500 501 502 503 504
505 506
507
508
509
510
511 512
513
514 515 516 517 518
519 520 521 522
523 524 525
526
527 528
529 530 531 532
533 534 535 536
537
538
539 540
541 542 543 544 545 546 547 548 549 550 551 552 553 554 555 556 557 558 559 560
561 562 563
564
565
566 567
568 569 570 571 572 573 574 575 576 577
578 579 580 581 582 583
584 585 586 587
588 589
590 591 592 593
594 595
596 597 598 599 600 601
602 603
604 605 606 607
608
609 610
611 612 613
614
615
616
617
618 619 620 621 622 623 624 625
626 627 628 629
630 631
632 633 634 635 636 637
638 639
640 641
642 643 644 645 646
647 648
649 650
651
652
653 654 655 656
657 658
659 660 661 662 663
664 665
666
667 668 669
670 671 672 673 674 675
676 677
678 679
680 681 682 683
684 685 686
687
688 689 690
691
692
693 694 695 696 697 698 699 700 701 702
703
704 705 706
707
708 709 710
711 712
713 714
715 716
717
718 719 720
721 722
723 724 725
726 727 728 729 730 731 732
733 734 735
736 737 738 739
740 741 742
743
744 745 746 747 748 749 750
751 752
753 754 755
756 757 758 759 760 761 762
763 764 765 766 767 768
769 770 771 772
773
774 775 776 777 778 779
780 781 782 783 784
785 786 787 788 789 790 791
792 793 794 795 796
797 798
799 800 801
802 803 804 805 806
807
808
809 810
811 812
813
814 815 816
817 818
819
820 821 822 823
824
825 826
827 828 829
830 831 832 833 834 835
836 837 838
839 840
841
842 843 844 845 846 847 848
849 850 851 852 853 854 855 856 857
858 859 860 861 862
863 864 865 866
867
868 869 870 871 872 873 874
875 876
877 878 879 880 881 882 883 884 885 886
887
888
889 890 891 892
893 894 895 896
897 898 899 900 901 902 903
904
905 906
907 908 909 910
911
912
913
914
915 916 917 918
919 920
921 922 923 924
925 926 927
928 929
930 931 932
933
934 935
936 937
938
939 940
941 942
943 944 945 946 947 948 949 950 951 952 953
954
955
956
957
958
959 960 961 962 963 964 965 966 967
968
969 970 971 972
973 974
975
976 977 978 979 980 981
982 983 984 985 986 987 988 989 990 991
992
993 994 995 996
997
998
999
1000

Lastly, we consider whether the district court correctly determined that Montgomery's testimony met the limited scope requirement. We conclude that it did because Montgomery's testimony consisted almost entirely of the highly particularized facts of testing Augustine's tissues and urine samples for succinylcholine. She explained the testing procedures for succinylcholine and the drug's volatile nature. Accordingly, Montgomery's testimony was limited to matters within the scope of her knowledge. In sum, as Montgomery had scientific and specialized knowledge, her testimony assisted the jury in understanding succinylcholine, and it was limited to her knowledge and expertise, we conclude that the district court did not abuse its discretion when it allowed Montgomery to testify.

Exhibit 144, at pp. 16-28; Higgs, 126 Nev. at ___, 222 P.3d at 655-60. Petitioner filed a motion for rehearing, contending that the Nevada Supreme Court had misapprehended material facts and law in rendering its decision. (Exhibit 137). The Nevada Supreme Court denied the petition, as follows:

Higgs once again asks this court to adopt Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals, Inc., 509 U.S. 579 (1993). In his petition for rehearing, Higgs cloaks the argument in the guise that this court misapprehended a controlling issue of law to get around the rule that he cannot use the rehearing to reargue matters already considered and decided.

Higgs contends that this court misapplied its own standard for expert witness testimony articulated in Hallmark v. Eldridge, 124 Nev. ___, 189 P.3d 646 (2008). Specifically, Higgs asserts that this court confused the Hallmark "assistance" requirement for the admission of expert witness testimony with the "qualified" requirement. We note that in his opening brief, Higgs conceded that pursuant to Nevada's current law, Montgomery was qualified to testify as an expert witness.

1 Now, Higgs again concedes that she is “qualified,” has “specialized
2 knowledge,” and testified to matters “within the scope of her 3 knowledge,” but argues that her testimony did not assist the trier of fact because it was not reliable. Higgs’ contentions are meritless and misapprehend the law.

4 This court applied NRS 50.275 and Hallmark in concluding that the 5 district court did not abuse its discretion in allowing Montgomery to 6 testify regarding the succinylcholine found in Kathy Augustine’s body.
7 In Hallmark, this court stated that “[i]f a person is qualified to testify
8 as an expert under NRS 50.275, the district court must then determine 9 whether his or her testimony will assist the trier of fact in understanding the evidence or determining a fact in issue.” 124 Nev.
___, 189 P.3d at 651 (emphasis added). As an initial point, we observe that Higgs is incorrect in stating that Hallmark does not stand for an “assistance” requirement because the express language of the opinion states otherwise.

10 In Hallmark, this court explained what it meant by assistance: “An 11 expert’s testimony will assist the trier of fact only when it is relevant 12 and the product of reliable methodology.” Id. This court then 13 articulated five criteria to judge reliability of a methodology, instructing the district court to consider whether the proffered opinion is

(1) within a recognized field of expertise; (2) testable
and has been tested; (3) published and subjected to peer review; (4) generally accepted in the scientific community (not always determinative); and (5) based more on particularized facts rather than assumption,
conjecture, or generalization.

17 124 Nev. ___, 189 P.3d at 651-52 (citations omitted).

18 We conclude that Montgomery and her testimony met the Hallmark 19 criteria for assistance. Montgomery and Walls are part of a small but 20 recognized group of experts in the field of succinylcholine and its 21 testing. Montgomery’s work was testable – it is unclear whether it had 22 been tested. The record does not contain evidence as to whether 23 Montgomery’s work had been subject to peer review. And, while it is 24 unclear the scope of acceptance that Montgomery’s testing of 25 succinylcholine has in the scientific community, Walls testified that he 26 did not take issue with her methodology or results. Lastly, Montgomery’s testimony concerned almost entirely the highly particularized facts of testing Augustine’s tissue and urine samples for succinylcholine. Accordingly, Montgomery’s testimony assisted the jury in understanding a drug that, by its very nature, is highly volatile and reactive. We therefore applied the correct standard in holding that the district court acted within its discretion when it allowed Montgomery to testify as an expert witness for the State.

1 (Exhibit 141, at pp. 7-9) (emphasis in original).

2 Petitioner claims that the Nevada Supreme Court’s decision was an unreasonable application
3 of Zafiro v. United States, 506 U.S. 534 (1993) and United States v. Scheffer, 523 U.S. 303 (1998).
4 Petitioner cites these cases for general rules that were not essential to their holdings. Zafiro involved
5 a severance issue. 506 U.S. at 535. In its opinion, the United States Supreme Court reiterated that 6 “[a]n important element of a fair trial is that a jury consider only relevant and competent evidence
7 bearing on the issue of guilt or innocence.” Id. at 540 (alteration and emphasis in original) (quoting
8 Bruton v. U.S. , 391 U.S. 123, 131 n.6 (1968)). In Scheffer, the United States Supreme Court
9 discussed the constitutionality of Military Rule of Evidence 707, a rule excluding polygraph 10 evidence at trials. 523 U.S. at 309. In so doing, the Court stated that “State and Federal 11 Governments unquestionably have a legitimate interest in ensuring that reliable evidence is presented 12 to the trier of fact in a criminal trial.” Id. at 309. Neither of these cases requires the Nevada 13 Supreme Court to apply the Daubert standard. As such, the Nevada Supreme Court’s decision was 14 not an unreasonable application of these cases. The Nevada Supreme Court, applying Nevada law, 15 determined that the evidence at issue in this case was admissible. (Exhibit 144, at pp. 26-28; Higgs, 16 126 Nev. ___, 222 P.3d at 659-60; Exhibit 141, at pp. 7-9).

17 To the extent that Petitioner argues that the testimony of the State’s expert, Montgomery, did 18 not satisfy the requirements of the federal standards set forth in Daubert or Frye, his argument is 19 irrelevant. Neither standard is based upon or required by the United States Constitution. See 20 Daubert, 509 U.S. at 597 (interpreting the Federal Rules of Evidence); Frye, 293 F. at 1013-14.
21 Neither standard is applicable in Nevada state courts. See Hallmark, 124 Nev. at ___, 189 P.3d at 22 650 (“The statute governing the admissibility of expert testimony in Nevada district courts is NRS 23 50.275.”).

24 Regarding Petitioner’s argument that Montgomery’s testimony failed to satisfy the 25 requirements of Hallmark, and that the Nevada Supreme Court’s rejection of this claim on rehearing 26

1 constituted an unreasonable determination of the facts, Petitioner’s Hallmark claim is not cognizable
2 in a federal habeas petition because it is a claim that evidence – the challenged expert testimony –
3 was improperly admitted under state law. Unless an issue of federal constitutional law is implicated
4 by the facts presented, a claim that evidence was improperly admitted under state rules of evidence is 5 not cognizable in federal habeas corpus. See Estelle v. McGuire, 502 U.S. 62, 68 (1991). A state
6 law issue cannot be mutated into one of federal constitutional law merely by invoking the specter of 7 a due process violation. Langford v. Day, 110 F.3d 1380, 1389 (9th Cir. 1996), cert. denied, 522
8 U.S. 881 (1997). The Nevada Supreme Court applied state law and determined that the evidence
9 admitted against Petitioner satisfied the “assistance” requirement of Hallmark that evidence be both 10 relevant and the product of reliable methodology. (Exhibit 141, at p. 8). Petitioner is foreclosed 11 from challenging the state court’s application of this state evidentiary rule in federal court. See
12 Estelle, 502 U.S. at 67-68. Petitioner fails to identify any United States Supreme Court decision 13 holding or otherwise rendering the Hallmark standard unconstitutional.

14 Finally, the factual findings of the state court are presumed correct. 28 U.S.C. § 2254(e)(1).
15 Petitioner has failed to meet his burden of proving that the Nevada Supreme Court’s ruling was 16 contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established federal law, as
17 determined by the United States Supreme Court, or that the ruling was based on an unreasonable
18 determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the state court proceeding. Federal 19 habeas relief is denied as to Ground 2 of the petition.

20 C. Ground 3

21 Petitioner alleges that his Fifth, Sixth, and Fourteenth Amendment rights to due process and a 22 fair trial were violated by the trial court’s refusal to instruct the jury on the spoliation of evidence.
23 (ECF No. 1, at pp. 5-6, 43-53). Petitioner raised this claim on direct appeal and the Nevada Supreme 24 Court rejected the claim, ruling as follows:

25 Higgs contends that the district court abused its discretion when it
26 refused to give Higgs’ proffered spoliation instruction regarding the

1 State's alleged failure to properly preserve evidence of an injection site
2 tissue sample from Augustine's body. Higgs urges this court to apply
3 the spoliation rule set forth in Bass-Davis v. Davis, 122 Nev. 442, 452-
4 53, 134 P.3d 103, 109-10 (2006), to criminal cases. In Bass-Davis, a 5 civil case, this court determined that even when missing evidence is 6 not willfully destroyed, but rather is negligently destroyed, the party
7 prejudiced by the loss of evidence is entitled to an "adverse inference 8 instruction." Id.

9 We reject Higgs' suggestion that we extend the spoliation rule set forth 10 in Bass-Davis to criminal cases. This court has articulated the rule for 11 failure to preserve evidence in criminal cases, and we see no reason to 12 depart from that standard.

13 "Due process requires the State to preserve material evidence." Steese 14 v. State, 114 Nev. 479, 491, 960 P.2d 321, 329 (1998). The State's 15 failure to preserve material evidence can lead to dismissal of the 16 charges "if the defendant can show 'bad faith or connivance on the part 17 of the government' or 'that he was prejudiced by the loss of the 18 evidence.'" Daniels v. State, 114 Nev. 261, 267, 956 P.2d 111, 115 19 (1998) (quoting Howard v. State, 95 Nev. 580, 582, 600 P.2d 214, 20 215-16 (1979). Moreover, district courts have "broad discretion to 21 settle jury instructions." Cortinas v. State, 124 Nev. ___, ___, 195
22 P.3d 315, 319 (2008). Our review is, therefore, limited to inquiring 23 whether there was an abuse of discretion or judicial error. Id.

24 In the present case, Higgs proffered three different adverse-inference 25 jury instructions regarding spoliation of evidence. He asserted that the 26 jury instructions were necessary because the State inadequately inspected and preserved the tissue sample from an injection site on Augustine's body. We disagree.

The district court properly rejected Higgs' proffered jury instructions because there was no evidence that the State acted in bad faith, and Higgs failed to show he was prejudiced by the State's failure to preserve the tissue sample. First, Higgs does not argue that the State acted in bad faith, but that it was negligent in its preservation of the tissue sample. With no issue raised as to bad faith, nor any evidence supporting such a determination, we need only consider if Higgs was prejudiced by the spoliation.

We determine that Higgs was not prejudiced by the spoliation of the tissue sample because the State did not benefit from its failure to preserve the evidence. See Sanborn v. State, 107 Nev. 399, 408, 812
P.2d 1279, 1286 (1991) (in holding that defendant was prejudiced by the State's failure to preserve evidence, the court explained that the State's case was "buttressed by the absence of [the] evidence"). The State's forensic toxicologist, Dr. Clark, admitted that she could not confirm that the tissue sample was from the site at which the succinylcholine was administered. More importantly, the defense's

1 forensic toxicologist, Dr. Sohn, testified that while he could not retest
2 the tissue sample to date it, he did examine it microscopically. He 3 stated that his microscopic examination, along with the autopsy 4 pictures of the site led him to conclude – with medical certainty – that 5 the wound could not have been inflicted before Augustine was 6 admitted to the hospital. The failure to preserve the tissue sample
7 prevented Dr. Sohn from dating the tissue sample, not from forming a 8 medical conclusion in support of Higgs’ defense that he did not inject 9 his wife with succinylcholine. Accordingly, Higgs was not prejudiced 10 by the State’s failure to preserve the tissue sample from the injection 11 site.

12 Exhibit 144, at pp. 28-30; Higgs, 126 Nev. ___, 222 P.3d at 660-61.

13 To obtain federal habeas relief based on an improper jury instruction, Petitioner must 14 establish that the instruction so infected the entire trial that the resulting conviction violates due 15 process. Masoner v. Thurman, 996 F.2d 1003, 1006 (9th Cir. 1993); Estelle v. McGuire, 502 U.S. 62, 16 72 (1991); Henderson v. Kibbe, 431 U.S. 145, 154 (1977). In reviewing jury instructions, the court
17 inquires as to whether the instructions as a whole were misleading or inadequate to guide the jury’s
18 deliberation. U.S. v. Garcia-Rivera, 353 F.3d 788, 791 (9th Cir. 2003) (citing United States v. Frega, 19 179 F.3d 793, 806 n.16 (9th Cir. 1999) (internal citations omitted). An instruction may not be judged
20 in isolation, “but must be considered in the context of the instructions as a whole and the trial 21 record.” Id. Furthermore, jurors are presumed to follow the instructions that they are given. U.S. v.
22 Olano, 507 U.S. 725, 740 (1993). Even if an instructional error is found, it is subject to harmless
23 error review. Calderon v. Coleman, 525 US. 141 (1998) (citing Brecht v. Abrahamson, 507 U.S. 619 24 (1993)). The question is whether the error had a “substantial and injurious effect or influence in 25 determining the jury’s verdict.” Id.

26 In the instant case, the Nevada Supreme Court declined to apply a civil trial rule and instead recited the Nevada criminal rule regarding the loss of evidence. Relief is only warranted “if the defendant can show ‘bad faith on the part of the government’ or ‘that he was prejudiced by the loss of the evidence.’” Daniels v. State, 114 Nev. 261, 267, 956 P.2d 111, 115 (1998) (quoting Howard
v. State, 95 Nev. 580, 582, 600 P.2d 214, 215-16 (1979)); Exhibit 144, at pp. 28-30; Higgs, 126 Nev.

1 ____, 22 P.3d at 660-61. In this case Petitioner did not allege bad faith on the part of the State, he
2 merely suggested negligence. Exhibit 117, at p. 32. Accordingly, the Nevada Supreme Court
3 reviewed the record to determine whether Petitioner had been prejudiced. Exhibit 144, at pp. 29-30;
4 Higgs, 126 Nev. at ____, 222 P.3d at 661. The court concluded that Petitioner was not prejudiced.
5 Id. The court further concluded that because there was no violation of the law on the part of the 6 State, the proposed instructions were unnecessary. Exhibit 144, at p. 29; Higgs, 126 Nev. at ____, 7 222 P.3d at 661.

8 Petitioner claims that the Nevada Supreme Court's decision was an unreasonable application
9 of Matthews v. United States, 485 U.S. 58 (1988), and California v. Trombetta, 467 U.S. 479 (1984).
10 In Matthews, a case involving entrapment, the United States Supreme Court stated that "[a]s a 11 general proposition a defendant is entitled to an instruction as to any recognized defense for which 12 there exists evidence sufficient for a reasonable jury to find in his favor." 485 U.S. at 63. That case 13 is irrelevant here, because the fact that non-exculpatory evidence may have been lost due to 14 negligence on the part of the State is not a defense to murder.

15 In California v. Trombetta, the United States Supreme Court held that the Constitution 16 imposes a duty on States to preserve evidence, when the evidence in question is both exculpatory and 17 unavailable from other sources. 467 U.S. at 481-89. The Nevada Supreme Court's decision in this 18 case was not contrary to Trombetta. As the United States Supreme Court held in Arizona v.
19 Youngblood, "unless a criminal defendant can show bad faith on the part of the police, failure to 20 preserve potentially useful evidence does not constitute a denial of due process of law." 488 U.S. 51, 21 58 (1988). Petitioner did not allege bad faith, nor was the evidence at issue in this case exculpatory.
22 Because Petitioner failed to show that the State violated his constitutional rights or otherwise acted 23 in a way inconsistent with United States Supreme Court precedent, the Nevada Supreme Court's 24 decision that the proposed jury instructions were unnecessary was not contrary to clearly established 25 federal law, as determined by the United States Supreme Court.

1           Petitioner contends that the Nevada Supreme Court’s decision was unreasonable because the 2 existence of different rules of jury instruction for civil and criminal cases violates equal protection.
3 This claim is without merit. The Equal Protection Clause “creates no substantive rights,” but rather,
4 “embodies a general rule that States must treat like cases alike but may treat unlike cases
5 accordingly.” Vacco v. Quill, 521 U.S. 793, 799 (1997). A civil litigant and a criminal defendant are 6 not “similarly situated” and therefore they are not entitled to identical treatment. See Cleburne v.
7 Cleburne Living Center, Inc., 473 U.S. 432, 439 (1985) (the Equal Protection Clause “is essentially a
8 direction that all persons similarly situated should be treated alike”). Because Petitioner, a criminal 9 defendant, is not similarly situated to a civil litigant, the fact that different state rules exist in 10 criminal and civil contexts provides no basis for an equal protection claim.

11           The failure of the trial court to give the spoliation instructions proffered by Petitioner did not 12 violate his constitutional rights, and it certainly did not “infect the entire trial so that the resulting 13 conviction violates due process.” Masoner v. Thurman, 996 F.2d 1003, 1006 (9th Cir. 1993). Even 14 assuming that the trial court’s failure to give the spoliation instructions was in error, the error was 15 harmless, as it did not have a substantial and injurious effect or influence in determining the jury’s
16 verdict. Calderon v. Coleman, 525 US. 141 (1998) (citing Brecht v. Abrahamson, 507 U.S. 619 17 (1993)). The factual findings of the state court are presumed correct. 28 U.S.C. § 2254(e)(1).
18 Petitioner has failed to meet his burden of proving that the Nevada Supreme Court’s ruling was 19 contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established federal law, as 20 determined by the United States Supreme Court, or that the ruling was based on an unreasonable
21 determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the state court proceeding. Federal 22 habeas relief is denied as to Ground 3 of the petition.

23           D. Ground Four

24           Petitioner claims that his Fifth and Fourteenth Amendment right to due process was violated
25 because there was insufficient evidence to sustain his conviction. (ECF No. 1, at pp. 6-7, 53-59).

1           When a habeas petitioner challenges the sufficiency of evidence to support his conviction, the 2 court reviews the record to determine “whether, after viewing the evidence in the light most 3 favorable to the prosecution, any rational trier of fact could have found the essential elements of the 4 crime beyond a reasonable doubt.” Jackson v. Virginia, 443 U.S. 307, 319 (1979); Jones v. Wood,
5 207 F.3d 557, 563 (9th Cir. 2000). The Jackson standard does not focus on whether a correct guilt or 6 innocence determination was made, but whether the jury made a rational decision to convict or 7 acquit. Herrera v. Collins, 506 U.S. 390, 402 (1993). Under the Jackson standard, the prosecution
8 has no obligation to rule out every hypothesis except guilt. Wright v. West, 505 U.S. 277, 296 (1992)
9 (plurality opinion); Jackson, 443 U.S. at 326; Schell, 218 F.3d at 1023. Jackson presents “a high 10 standard” to habeas petitioners claiming insufficiency of the evidence. Jones v. Wood, 207 F.3d 557, 11 563 (9th Cir. 2000).

12           Sufficiency claims are limited to a review of the record evidence submitted at trial. Herrera, 13 506 U.S. at 402. Such claims are judged by the elements defined by state law. Jackson, 443 U.S. at 14 324, n.16). The reviewing court must respect the exclusive province of the fact-finder to determine 15 the credibility of witnesses, to resolve evidentiary conflicts, and to draw reasonable inferences from 16 proven facts. United States v. Hubbard, 96 F.3d 1223, 1226 (9th Cir. 1996). The district court must 17 assume the trier of fact resolved any evidentiary conflicts in favor of the prosecution, even if the 18 determination does not appear on the record, and must defer to that resolution. Jackson, 443, U.S. at 19 326. The United States Supreme Court has recently held that “the only question under Jackson is 20 whether [the jury’s] finding was so insupportable as to fall below the threshold of bare rationality.”
21 Coleman v. Johnson, 132 S.Ct. 2060, 2065, ___ U.S. ___ (per curium) (2012).

22           On direct appeal, the Nevada Supreme Court rejected Petitioner’s claim of insufficient 23 evidence to sustain his conviction of first-degree murder:

24                     Higgs argues that the evidence presented at trial does not support a 25 conviction of first-degree murder. We disagree.

1 In reviewing the sufficiency of the evidence, we must decide “whether,
2 after viewing the evidence in the light most favorable to the 3 prosecution, any rational trier of fact could have found the essential
4 elements of the crime beyond a reasonable doubt.” Rose v. State, 123
5 Nev. 194, 202, 163 P.3d 408, 414 (2002) (quoting Origel-Candido v.
6 State, 114 Nev. 378, 381, 956 P.2d 1378, 1380)). We conclude that 7 there was sufficient evidence to support Higgs’ conviction.

8 The State presented testimony establishing that Augustine’s death was 9 not the result of natural causes but, rather, was the result of 10 succinylcholine poisoning. Attending physician Dr. Mashour testified 11 that routine tests at the hospital showed no signs of a stroke or heart 12 attack. He testified that because succinylcholine was found in 13 Augustin’s ante mortem urine sample, succinylcholine poisoning was 14 the likely cause of death. Two other physicians, Dr. Thompson and 15 Dr. Katz, similarly testified that Augustine’s death was a result of 16 succinylcholine poisoning. In addition, Dr. Clark, the forensic 17 pathologist who performed the autopsy on Augustine, also testified 18 that in her opinion the cause of death was succinylcholine toxicity.
19 She further testified that the drug could have been injected in such a 20 manner as to go undetected. Dr. Clark testified that the autopsy 21 revealed that Augustine’s heart showed no signs of disease that would 22 cause a massive heart attack. FBI toxicologist Montgomery explained 23 that she found succinylcholine and its breakdown product, 24 succinylmonocholine, in Augustine’s urine sample. Montgomery
25 testified that all three tests she ran on the urine sample tested positive 26 for the presence of succinylcholine and succinylmonocholine. She further stated that it is not unusual that the drug was not present in Augustine’s tissue sample because it is such a volatile chemical that the body acts quickly to break it down. The State also presented evidence that Augustine was not administered any succinylcholine at the hospital.

The State also presented evidence establishing that Higgs killed Augustine. Ramey testified that the day before Augustine was found unconscious, she had a conversation with Higgs during which he commented on a local murder trial saying, “That guy did it wrong. If you want to get rid of somebody, you just hit them with a little succs.”
Ramey testified that Higgs then made a gesture mimicking giving a person an injection. She further testified that Higgs explained to her that succinylcholine could not be detected postmortem. In addition to Ramey’s testimony, the State presented circumstantial evidence of Higgs’ access to succinylcholine. The substance is just one of the resources available to hospital staff like Higgs, who is an experienced nurse. Testimony established that succinylcholine is generally stored on crash carts, in emergency rooms, and in secured refrigerators, and while one needs a security code to access the refrigerated drugs, once accessed, additional drugs can be taken from the secured refrigerator without notice.

1 To build its theory that, as an experienced nurse, Higgs could easily
2 obtain succinylcholine as well as other drugs, the State offered the 3 testimony of Officer Jenkins. Officer Jenkins testified that when he 4 executed the search warrant at the Higgs/Augustine home, he found the 5 drug etomidate in a backpack in the master bedroom. Officer Jenkins
6 testified that later, when executing the arrest warrant in Hampton,
7 Virginia, the same backpack was in Higgs' possession and he collected
8 it. He explained that this time the backpack contained a nursing book 9 with a bookmark at the page concerning the administration of 10 succinylcholine and a laminated 3" x 5" card with information
11 concerning succinylcholine. Additionally, the State presented 12 evidence that there was no hospital record of a missing vial of 13 etomidate – even though a vial had indeed been found in the backpack
14 in Higgs' home – establishing that drugs can be taken out of secured 15 locations without notice.

9 The State also presented evidence of the deteriorated relationship
10 between Higgs and Augustine. Witnesses testified that Higgs regularly 11 used derogatory terms when referring to Augustine, he strongly
12 disparaged his wife to Augustine's mother just days after Augustine's 13 death, and he appeared unemotional throughout the ordeal.
14 Additionally, Ramirez testified as to the flirtatious relationship that she 15 had with Higgs and read from one of his e-mails in which Higgs stated 16 that he wanted to drive Augustine crazy, he had plans in motion, and 17 he would soon be free to be with Ramirez.

14 We conclude that, in addition to the medical evidence and the FBI 15 toxicology report, there was other significant evidence presented to the 16 jury – namely, Higgs' deteriorating relationship with his wife, his 17 access to succinylcholine, and his own comments to Ramey – that was 18 sufficient for any rational trier of fact to find the essential elements of 19 first-degree murder beyond a reasonable doubt.

18 Exhibit 144, at pp. 13-16; Higgs, 126 Nev. at ___, 222 P.3d at 654-55 (emphasis in original). The 19 Nevada Supreme Court applied the correct standard for sufficiency of the evidence challenges, 20 pursuant to Jackson v. Virginia, 443 U.S. 307, 319 (1979) (“whether, after viewing the evidence in 21 the light most favorable to the prosecution, any rational trier of fact could have found the essential 22 elements of the crime beyond a reasonable doubt”). The factual findings of the state court are 23 presumed correct. 28 U.S.C. § 2254(e)(1). Petitioner has failed to meet his burden of proving that 24 the Nevada Supreme Court's ruling was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of,
25 clearly established federal law, as determined by the United States Supreme Court, or that the ruling
26

1 was based on an unreasonable determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the 2 state court proceeding. Federal habeas relief is denied as to Ground 4 of the petition.

3 E. Ground Five

4 Petitioner claims that his Fifth, Sixth, and Fourteenth Amendment rights to due process and a
5 fair trial were violated by the cumulative impact of various instances of plain error. (ECF No. 1, at 6 pp. 7-8, 60-66). Petitioner raised this claim on direct appeal, and the Nevada Supreme Court rejected
7 the claim, as follows:

8 Higgs argues that a “prodigious” amount of plain error occurred during 9 trial. Higgs asserts 11 instances of alleged plain error, although he 10 does not fully brief the instances in detail and admits that counsel did 11 not object to any of the 11 alleged instances of plain error. The 11 12 claims of error are as follows: (1) during Ramey’s testimony, she 13 described Higgs as a “player” and testified that she thought he was a 14 “liar”; (2) Ramey testified that when she learned that Augustine had 15 died, she thought Higgs had killed Augustine; (3) during Higgs’ 16 testimony, the trial was delayed due to his second suicide attempt; on 17 cross-examination, the State asked Higgs whether some people might 18 think that his during-trial suicide attempt was a ploy for sympathy and 19 demonstrated consciousness of guilt; (4) during the same cross-20 examination, the State asked Higgs what motive Ramey would have to 21 make up her testimony; (5) during the same cross-examination, the 22 State asked Higgs if he disagreed with Dr. Clark’s testimony, and 23 Higgs said he did; (6) State witness Michelle Ene, Augustine’s
24 executive assistant, testified that Higgs told her that he and Augustine
25 had worked out their differences the night before Augustine was found 26 dead; Ene testified that she “didn’t believe that for one minute” and was suspicious that Higgs may have had something to do with Augustine’s death and that he “might have murdered her”; (7) Nancy Vinnik, one of Augustine’s best friends, testified in the rebuttal case that Augustine frequently described Higgs as a “Doctor Jeckyll and a Mr. Hyde”; (8) during closing arguments, the State noted that Ramey was a good witness; (9) during closing arguments, the State noted that Higgs could not explain why Ramey would testify as she did, and that Dr. Richard Sehar, a State witness, who ordered the test to check for succinylcholine levels in Augustine’s body, had testified that he believed Ramey’s testimony; (10) the State argued that Higgs admitted that his toxicologist, Walls, did not disagree with the FBI’s conclusion that succinylcholine was in Augustine’s urine; and (11) during closing argument, the State said, “I know the defendant doesn’t have the burden . . . but he doesn’t have a leash on him that prevents him from doing any of these things either.”

1 “Where an error has not been preserved,” as in the case here because 2 Higgs failed to object to any of the instances of alleged error, “this 3 court employs plain-error review.” Valdez v. State, 124 Nev. ____, 4 ____, 196 P.3d 465, 477 (2008). Pursuant to our plain-error review
5 standard, “an error that is plain from a review of the record does not 6 require reversal unless defendant demonstrates that the error affected
7 his or her substantial rights, by causing ‘actual prejudice or a 8 miscarriage of justice.’” Id. (quoting Green v. State, 119 Nev. 542, 9 545, 80 P.3d 93, 95 (2003)).

6 We have reviewed each of Higgs’ claims of error and conclude that 7 Higgs has failed to demonstrate how any of the alleged errors affected 8 his substantial rights by causing actual prejudice or a miscarriage of 9 justice. We conclude that Higgs’ plain-error argument is without 10 merit.

9 Exhibit 144, at pp. 30-32; Higgs, 126 Nev. at ____, 222 P.3d at 661-62 (footnotes omitted).

10 Petitioner filed a motion for rehearing, contending that the Nevada Supreme Court had 11 misapprehended material facts and law in rendering its decision. (Exhibit 137). The Nevada
12 Supreme Court denied the petition for rehearing, ruling as follows:

13 In his final assignment, Higgs argues that an accumulation of plain 14 error deprived him of his constitutional right to a fair trial. He 15 contends that this court used an “individual error analysis” when it 16 held that none of his multiple claims of error justified a reversal of his 17 conviction. Higgs misstates the order of affirmance.

16 The actual heading in the order states “Accumulation of plain error,” 17 and accordingly, this court looked at the 11 instances of alleged plain 18 error, none of which Higgs’ counsel objected to, and concluded that 19 the errors did not constitute an actual prejudice or miscarriage of 20 justice. This court applied the correct law in applying a plain error 21 review, since Higgs had not preserved the issues for appeal by not 22 objecting at trial. We take this opportunity to note that the 11
23 instances of alleged error included a misstatement of testimony.
24 Higgs’ final argument therefore lacks merit in that this court did not 25 misapprehend the law in concluding that there was no accumulation of 26 plain error warranting reversal of Higgs’ conviction.

22 (Exhibit 141 at p. 9).

23 Petitioner argues that the Nevada Supreme Court’s decision constituted an unreasonable 24 application of Estelle v. McGuire, 502 U.S. 62, 67-68, 70-73 (1991) (holding that while federal 25 habeas relief is not available for errors of state law, state law errors can violate the constitution if 26

1 they infect the entire trial in such a way that the resulting conviction violates due process), and
2 Darden v. Wainwright, 477 U.S. 168, 181 (1986) (“[I]t is not enough that the prosecutor’s comments
3 were undesirable or even universally condemned. The relevant question is whether the prosecutors’
4 comments so infected the trial with unfairness as to make the resulting conviction a denial of due
5 process.”). Petitioner further asserts that Chambers v. Mississippi, 410 U.S. 284 (1973) establishes a 6 cumulative error rule as a matter of federal law. (ECF No. 1, at pp. 7-8, 60-66).

7 To the extent that cumulative error may be grounds for federal habeas relief, the Ninth Circuit
8 has announced that: “[T]he combined effect of multiple trial court errors violates due process where 9 it renders the resulting criminal trial fundamentally unfair.” Parle v. Runnels, 505 F.3d 922, 927 (9th
10 Cir. 2007). This Court has reviewed the state court record and the pleadings filed by the parties, 11 including all instances in which petitioner claims that error occurred. Petitioner has not 12 demonstrated that cumulative errors occurred, and even assuming that errors did occur, Petitioner has 13 not shown that such errors resulted in a trial that was fundamentally unfair or that violated due 14 process.

15 Finally, the factual findings of the state court are presumed correct. 28 U.S.C. § 2254(e)(1).
16 Petitioner has failed to meet his burden of proving that the Nevada Supreme Court’s ruling was 17 contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established federal law, as
18 determined by the United States Supreme Court, or that the ruling was based on an unreasonable
19 determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the state court proceeding. Federal 20 habeas relief is denied as to Ground 5 of the petition.

21 IV. Certificate of Appealability

22 In order to proceed with his appeal, Petitioner must receive a certificate of appealability.
23 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(1); Fed. R. App. P. 22; 9th Cir. R. 22-1; Allen v. Ornoski, 435 F.3d 946, 950-
24 951 (9th Cir. 2006); see also United States v. Mikels, 236 F.3d 550, 551-52 (9th Cir. 2001). District
25 courts are required to rule on the certificate of appealability in the order disposing of a proceeding 26

1 adversely to the petitioner or movant, rather than waiting for a notice of appeal and request for
2 certificate of appealability to be filed. Rule 11(a) of the Rules Governing Section 2254 and 2255
3 Cases. Generally, a Petitioner must make “a substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional 4 right” to warrant a certificate of appealability. 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2); Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S.
5 473, 483-84 (2000). “The petitioner must demonstrate that reasonable jurists would find the district
6 court's assessment of the constitutional claims debatable or wrong.” Id. (quoting Slack, 529 U.S. at 7 484). In order to meet this threshold inquiry, the petitioner has the burden of demonstrating that the 8 issues are debatable among jurists of reason; that a court could resolve the issues differently; or that 9 the questions are adequate to deserve encouragement to proceed further. Id. In this case, no
10 reasonable jurist would find this Court’s denial of habeas relief debatable or wrong. The Court 11 therefore denies Petitioner a certificate of appealability.

12 V. Conclusion

13 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the petition for a writ of habeas corpus is DENIED 14 IN ITS ENTIRETY.

15 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Petitioner is DENIED A CERTIFICATE OF 16 APPEALABILITY.

17 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Clerk SHALL ENTER JUDGMENT
18 ACCORDINGLY.

19 Dated this 15th day of October, 2013.

20 21
22 _____
23 UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE
24 25 26