ORDER

This is a section 1983 action. Before the court is defendants Ken Furlong and Carson City’s (“Furlong’s”) Motion for Summary Judgment (#18¹). Plaintiffs Robert Frank Schmitt and Com Productions, LLC (“Schmitt”) have responded (#33), and Furlong has replied (#39).

I. Facts and Procedural History

Schmitt owns a bar in Carson City, Nevada. He also owns a production company, Com Productions, whose business involves putting on concerts. (Furlong’s Motion for Summary Judgment (“MSJ”) #18, Ex. 2, ¶ 4.) On June 17, 2010, Schmitt received a liquor license for his bar. (Id. at Ex. 2, ¶ 5.) This license included a “catering license,” which allowed Schmitt to serve liquor

1 at special events. (Id.)

2 On August 20, 2010, Schmitt obtained a permit to host a concert at a warehouse in Carson 3 City. (Id. at Ex. 3.) The permit authorized Schmitt to hold an event that same day from 4 p.m. to 4 11:59 p.m. (Id.) Schmitt had submitted an application in which he noted that the concert was open 5 to the general public and that Schmitt had secured sufficient parking and security. (See, e.g., id. at 6 Exs. 2, 6.)

7 During the concert, members of the Carson City Sheriff's Office conducted a "business 8 check" at the warehouse. (Id. at Ex. 2, ¶ 8.) The purpose of the check was to verify compliance with 9 the permit restrictions. (Id.) Following the check, Carson City Sheriff Furlong was contacted. He 10 arrived at the venue to find inadequate provision for parking, inadequate security, and signs of gang 11 activity (including one gang-affiliated "bouncer" with the notable nickname "Psycho"). (Id. at Ex.
12 2, ¶¶ 10, 13, 14.)

13 Schmitt denied knowledge of any gang-related activity. (Id. at p. 2:10-13.) Furlong 14 conducted a "walkthrough" of the warehouse confined to areas open and accessible to the public.
15 (Id. at ¶ 12.) Neither Furlong nor the deputies conducting the "business check" had a search warrant 16 for the warehouse premises. (Schmitt's Declaration #33-2 at p. 2:2-3.) Furlong and his deputies 17 remained at the concert until it quietly wrapped up, shortly after midnight. (Furlong's MSJ at Ex. 2, 18 ¶ 21; Schmitt's Response #33-1 at Ex. 2.)

19 Based on the violations Furlong observed that evening, however, Furlong ordered an 20 emergency suspension of the catering portion of Schmitt's liquor license on September 2, 2010.
21 (Furlong's MSJ at Ex. 2, ¶ 25.) A copy of the emergency suspension order, along with a Notice to 22 Show Cause Hearing, was sent to Schmitt on that same day. (Id. at Exs. 9-10.) Schmitt did not 23 appear at the September 16 hearing. (Id. at Ex. 2, ¶ 26.) Following this hearing (at which Furlong 24 provided testimony), the Liquor Board revoked the catering portion of Schmitt's liquor license.
25 (See id. at Ex. 2, ¶ 27.)

1 Schmitt claims that Furlong’s presence at the concert hampered his revenue for the event by 2 discouraging potential attendees. (Schmitt’s Declaration #33-2 at p. 2:14-16.) He also argues that 3 he had to pay performers who did not have time to perform before Furlong shut down the concert.
4 (Id. at p. 2:17-19.) Finally, Schmitt alleges that Furlong conducted unwarranted surveillance of his 5 bar by placing “transmitters” inside gaming machines and that Furlong reprogrammed his security
6 system. (Id. at pp. 2-3.)

7 Schmitt has lodged claims against Furlong and Carson City under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 for 8 retaliation in violation of the First Amendment, unreasonable search in violation of the Fourth 9 Amendment, and violation of substantive due process rights under the Fourteenth Amendment. He 10 has also lodged claims for declaratory relief and state law claims of trespass, interference with 11 contractual relations, and negligent training.

12 II. Legal Standard

13 Summary judgment is appropriate only when “the pleadings, depositions, answers to 14 interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no 15 genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of 16 law.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c). In assessing a motion for summary judgment, the evidence, together 17 with all inferences that can reasonably be drawn therefrom, must be read in the light most favorable
18 to the party opposing the motion. Matsushita Electric Industries Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475
19 U.S. 574, 587 (1986); County of Tuolumne v. Sonora Community Hospital, 236 F.3d 1148, 1154
20 (9th Cir. 2001).

21 The moving party bears the burden of informing the court of the basis for its motion, along 22 with evidence showing the absence of any genuine issue of material fact. Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 23 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986). On those issues for which it bears the burden of proof, the moving party 24 must make a showing that is “sufficient for the court to hold that no reasonable trier of fact could 25 find other than for the moving party.” Calderone v. United States, 799 F.2d 254, 259 (6th Cir.
26 1986); see also Idema v. Dreamworks, Inc., 162 F. Supp. 2d 1129, 1141 (C.D. Cal. 2001).

1 To successfully rebut a motion for summary judgment, the non-moving party must point to 2 facts supported by the record which demonstrate a genuine issue of material fact. Reese v.
3 Jefferson School District No. 14J, 208 F.3d 736 (9th Cir. 2000). A “material fact” is a fact “that 4 might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law.” Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 5 477 U.S. 242, 248 (1986). Where reasonable minds could differ on the material facts at issue,
6 summary judgment is not appropriate. See v. Durang, 711 F.2d 141, 143 (9th Cir. 1983). A 7 dispute regarding a material fact is considered genuine “if the evidence is such that a reasonable 8 jury could return a verdict for the nonmoving party.” Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. at 248. The mere 9 existence of a scintilla of evidence in support of the plaintiff’s position will be insufficient to 10 establish a genuine dispute; there must be evidence on which the jury could reasonably find for the 11 plaintiff. See id. at 252.

12 III. Discussion

13 At its heart, a section 1983 claim is composed of two pieces: that a right secured by the 14 Constitution or federal law is violated and that it is violated by a person acting under color of state
15 law. See Ketchum v. Alameda County, 811 F.2d 1243, 1245 (9th Cir. 1987). Here, it is undisputed 16 that Furlong was acting under color of state law. Therefore, the question is whether Furlong 17 violated Schmitt’s constitutional rights. The court finds he did not.

18 A. First Amendment Retaliation

19 Schmitt bases his First Amendment retaliation claim on his complaints “that the entry and 20 presence [of Sheriff Furlong or his deputies] was unwarranted.” (Schmitt’s Response #33 at p. 6:6-21 8.) Schmitt argues that he was retaliated against for making these complaints. However, Schmitt 22 does not indicate the content of these complaints, when they were made, or to whom.

23 At the very least, Schmitt must prove that his speech was constitutionally protected and that 24 Furlong took some adverse action against him because of his speech. Soranno’s Gasco, Inc. v.
25 Morgan, 874 F.2d 1310, 1314 (9th Cir. 1989). Schmitt has not raised a genuine issue of material 26 fact with respect to either of these requirements. First, without any evidence of the content of

1 Schmitt’s speech, it is impossible to tell whether Schmitt’s speech is constitutionally protected. See,
2 e.g., Swiecicki v. Delgado, 463 F.3d 489, 502 (6th Cir. 2006) (“[S]peech does not lose its First 3 Amendment protection unless it constitutes fighting words.”). Even if Schmitt’s speech were 4 constitutionally protected, the dearth of evidence as to its timing and audience means that no
5 reasonable jury could find for Schmitt on the causation requirement. For instance, it is not clear 6 whether Furlong ever had knowledge of Schmitt’s complaints during the relevant time. Schmitt has 7 therefore failed to support his assertions by “citing to particular parts of materials in the record.”
8 Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c)(1)(A). Summary judgment on the First Amendment claim is appropriate.

9 B. Fourth Amendment Search

10 Governmental conduct amounts to a search when “the government violates a subjective 11 expectation of privacy that society recognizes as reasonable.” United States v. Gonzalez, 328 F.3d 12 543, 546 (9th Cir. 2003). But there is no reasonable expectation of privacy in areas open to public 13 observation. United States v. Bulacan, 156 F.3d 963, 968 (9th Cir. 1998) (“Once an officer has 14 observed an object in “plain view,” the owner’s privacy interest in that object is lost.”). This applies 15 to business premises open to the public: “a business operator has a reasonable expectation of 16 privacy only in those areas from which the public has been excluded.” United States v. Dunn, 480 17 U.S. 294, 316 (1987).

18 Here, Schmitt had no reasonable expectation of privacy in the publicly observable areas of 19 the warehouse. Schmitt argues (1) that the officers did not pay for entry and were therefore 20 excluded from the warehouse and (2) that the “business check” was an administrative search that 21 exceeded its lawful bounds. Schmitt’s first argument fails: even if the officers had trespassed, their 22 observations in areas otherwise open to the public would not constitute a Fourth Amendment
23 search. Oliver v. United States, 466 U.S. 170, 183 (1984) (“The law of trespass . . . forbids 24 intrusions . . . that the Fourth Amendment would not proscribe.”). See also Andree v. Ashland 25 County, 818 F.2d 1306, 1314-15 (7th Cir. 1987) (holding that non-payment of admission did not 26 turn officers’ observations into a Fourth Amendment search). Schmitt’s second argument is

1 irrelevant. An administrative “search” occurs only where the search intrudes upon areas not 2 observable to the public. See, e.g., Marshall v. Barlow’s, Inc., 436 U.S. 307, 315 (1978) (“What is 3 observable by the public is observable, without a warrant, by the Government inspector as well.”).
4 It is undisputed that Furlong and his deputies confined their observations to areas observable by the 5 concert-goers. Therefore, with respect to the concert venue, Furlong is entitled to summary
6 judgment on Schmitt’s Fourth Amendment claim.

7 Schmitt has also alleged that Furlong surreptitiously placed “transmitters” in his bar and 8 reprogrammed his security system.² (Schmitt’s Declaration #33-2 at p. 3:1-4.) Furlong denies these 9 accusations. (Furlong’s MSJ #18 at Ex. 2, ¶¶ 32, 34.) Schmitt’s self-serving (and frankly 10 implausible) declarations are not enough to create a genuine issue of material fact. F.T.C. v.
11 Publishing Clearing House, Inc., 104 F.3d 1168, 1171 (9th Cir. 1997) (“A conclusory, self-serving 12 affidavit, lacking detailed facts and any supporting evidence, is insufficient to create a genuine 13 issue of material fact.”). Therefore, with respect to Schmitt’s bar, Furlong is also entitled to 14 summary judgment on Schmitt’s Fourth Amendment claim.

15 C. Fourteenth Amendment Substantive Due Process Violation

16 Schmitt has not responded to Furlong’s arguments against the alleged substantive due 17 process violation. Therefore, under Local Rule 7-2(d), Schmitt has abandoned these arguments.
18 Summary judgment is appropriate.

19 D. Municipal Liability

20 Since Schmitt has not raised a genuine issue of material fact as to any constitutional 21 violation, there is no municipal liability for such a violation. Scott v. Henrich, 39 F.3d 912, 916
22 (9th Cir. 1994). Therefore, summary judgment is appropriate on this claim as well. Id. (citing City 23 of Los Angeles v. Heller, 475 U.S. 796, 799 (1986) (“[N]either Monell v. New York City Dept. of

25 ² Schmitt’s actual testimony is the following: “I had noticed personally transmitters inside 26 gaming machines that were later removed, but not by me. I personally noticed that the alarm codes for the alarm to the bar has [sic] been adjusted or altered, but not by me.”

1 Social Services, 436 U.S. 658 (1978), nor any other of our cases authorizes the award of damages
2 against a municipal corporation based on the actions of one of its officers when . . . the officer 3 inflicted no constitutional harm.”)).

4 E. State Law Claims

5 Since Schmitt has failed to carry his burden with respect to his federal claims,³ the court
6 declines to exercise supplemental jurisdiction over his state claims. See 28 U.S.C. § 1367(c)(3). See 7 also United Mine Workers of America v. Gibbs, 383 U.S. 715, 726 (1966) (“Needless decisions of 8 state law should be avoided both as a matter of comity and to promote justice between the parties, 9 by procuring for them a surer-footed reading of applicable law.”).

10 IV. Conclusion

11 For the foregoing reasons, Schmitt has failed to raise a genuine issue of fact with respect to 12 his federal claims. Summary judgment in favor of Furlong on these claims is therefore appropriate.

13 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that Furlong’s Motion for Summary Judgment (#18) is 14 GRANTED in part and DENIED in part.

15 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Schmitt’s state law claims are DISMISSED without 16 prejudice.

17 IT IS SO ORDERED.

18 DATED this 1st day of February, 2013.
