Doc. 47

prosecution under state law, because the doctrines as to prosecutorial immunity from such a claim differed as between federal and state law.

Defendant Robert Beckett has now asked the Court to dismiss pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1367(c)(3), which gives the Court discretion to decline supplemental; jurisdiction and dismiss now that the claims over which the Court had original jurisdiction have been dismissed. Plaintiff opposes the motion. The Court denies them motion. The gravamen of the complaint remains, and the Court has already adjudicated a summary judgment motion as to the state law claims. It would be judicially inefficient to require a state court to address the case from the beginning in a new action.

The Court also declines to reconsider its finding that Nevada law does not permit a prosecutorial immunity defense to a malicious prosecution action for the reasons given in Footnote 1 of the previous order. Defendant's citation to a case concerning judicial immunity is inapposite. Defendant fails to recognize the distinction between judicial and prosecutorial immunity. Judges are immunized even when acting with malice, but prosecutors are not—that's why the tort is called "malicious prosecution."

CONCLUSION

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the Motion to Reconsider or Dismiss for Lack of Jurisdiction (ECF No. 43) is DENIED.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Dated this 16th day of June, 2014.

ROBER C. JONES United States District Judge