ORDER

I. PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This is a prisoner civil rights complaint under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Plaintiff has sued multiple Defendants for various constitutional violations arising out of their having allegedly poisoned him with psychotropic drugs via his food. The Court previously denied Plaintiff’s application to proceed in forma pauperis because he had more than three “strikes” under the Prison Litigation Reform Act. See 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g).<sup>12</sup> Because the Court previously found at least three strikes, it did not screen the case on the merits. It does so now.

1 Plaintiff did not allege that he was “under imminent danger of serious physical injury.” See id. The alleged poisonings are alleged to have stopped on January 28, 2015, and Plaintiff alleged that he resided in New Hampshire, far from Defendants.

2 The strikes the Court found were: (1) Case No. 3:13-cv-412, in which Judge Du dismissed Plaintiff’s complaint for failure to state a claim; (2) Case No. 3:06-cv-511, in which Judge Sandoval dismissed the federal causes of action in Plaintiff’s complaint for failure to state a claim and remanded the state law claims to state court; and (3)–(4) Case No. 1:13-cv-94 in the

1 II. LEGAL STANDARDS

2 Federal courts must conduct a preliminary screening in any case in which a prisoner
3 seeks redress from a governmental entity or officer or employee of a governmental entity. See 28 4 U.S.C. § 1915A(a). In its review, the court must identify any cognizable claims and dismiss any 5 claims that are frivolous, malicious, fail to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, or 6 seek monetary relief from a defendant who is immune from such relief. See id. § 1915A(b)(1)– 7 (2). Dismissal of a complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted is 8 provided for in Federal Rule 12(b)(6), and the court applies the same standard under § 1915A.
9 Wilhelm v. Rotman, 680 F.3d 1113, 1121 (9th Cir. 2012). When a court dismisses a complaint 10 upon screening, the plaintiff should be given leave to amend the complaint with directions as to 11 curing its deficiencies, unless it is clear from the face of the complaint that the deficiencies could 12 not be cured by amendment. See Cato v. United States, 70 F.3d 1103, 1106 (9th Cir. 1995).

13 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6) mandates that a court dismiss a cause of action 14 that fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. A motion to dismiss under Rule 15 12(b)(6) tests the complaint’s sufficiency. See N. Star Int’l v. Ariz. Corp. Comm’n, 720 F.2d 578, 16 581 (9th Cir. 1983). When considering a motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6) for failure to 17 state a claim, dismissal is appropriate only when the complaint does not give the defendant fair 18 notice of a legally cognizable claim and the grounds on which it rests. See Bell Atl. Corp. v.

22 District of North Dakota, in which Judge Hovland dismissed Plaintiff’s complaint for failure to 23 state a claim, and the Court of Appeals summarily affirmed under Eighth Circuit Rule 47A(a), 24 indicating that the Court of Appeals found the appeal to be “frivolous and entirely without merit.” The Court of Appeals reversed, ruling: (1) the appellate affirmance in the North Dakota case did not count as a strike because although the panel cited a circuit rule applicable to appeals that are “frivolous and entirely without merit,” it did not separately recite those words in its order; and (2) the dismissal of the ‘511 Case did not count as a strike under the intervening precedent of Harris v. Mangum, 863 F.3d 1133 (9th Cir. 2017) because the case had been removed from state court.

1 Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007). In considering whether the complaint is sufficient to state a 2 claim, the court will take all material allegations as true and construe them in the light most 3 favorable to the plaintiff. See NL Indus., Inc. v. Kaplan, 792 F.2d 896, 898 (9th Cir. 1986). The 4 court, however, is not required to accept as true allegations that are merely conclusory, 5 unwarranted deductions of fact, or unreasonable inferences. See Sprewell v. Golden State 6 Warriors, 266 F.3d 979, 988 (9th Cir. 2001). A formulaic recitation of a cause of action with 7 conclusory allegations is not sufficient; a plaintiff must plead facts showing that a violation is 8 plausible, not just possible. Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 129 S. Ct. 1937, 1949 (2009) (citations omitted).

9 “Generally, a district court may not consider any material beyond the pleadings in ruling 10 on a Rule 12(b)(6) motion. However, material which is properly submitted as part of the 11 complaint may be considered.” Hal Roach Studios, Inc. v. Richard Feiner & Co., 896 F.2d 1542, 12 1555 n.19 (9th Cir. 1990) (citation omitted). Similarly, “documents whose contents are alleged 13 in a complaint and whose authenticity no party questions, but which are not physically attached 14 to the pleading, may be considered in ruling on a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss” without 15 converting the motion to dismiss into a motion for summary judgment. Branch v. Tunnell, 14 16 F.3d 449, 454 (9th Cir. 1994). Moreover, under Federal Rule of Evidence 201, a court may take 17 judicial notice of “matters of public record.” Mack v. S. Bay Beer Distribs., Inc., 798 F.2d 1279, 18 1282 (9th Cir. 1986).

19 Finally, all or part of a complaint filed by a prisoner may be dismissed sua sponte if the 20 prisoner’s claims lack an arguable basis in law or in fact. This includes claims based on legal 21 conclusions that are untenable, e.g., claims against defendants who are immune from suit or 22 claims of infringement of a legal interest which clearly does not exist, as well as claims based on 23 fanciful factual allegations, e.g., fantastic or delusional scenarios. See Neitzke v. Williams, 490 24 U.S. 319, 327–28 (1989); see also McKeever v. Block, 932 F.2d 795, 798 (9th Cir. 1991).

1 III. ANALYSIS

2 A. Factual Allegations

3 Plaintiff alleges that between July 23, 2014 and April 21, 2015, eight Defendants at 4 Northern Nevada Correctional Center (“NNCC”) served him food “that was mixed with 5 psychotropic drugs/toxins for the sole purpose to cause Plaintiff injury . . . .” (Compl. 13, ECF 6 No. 1-1). He claims that he suffered symptoms such as dizziness, kidney pain, swollen glands, 7 chest pain, hissing sounds in his ear, dry and bloodshot eyes, increased libido, loss of cognitive 8 function, hot flashes, muscle aches, headaches, backaches, loss of hearing, rapid weight loss, and 9 on one occasion fainting (resulting in injury), after eating the meals served by Defendants. (Id.
10 14–15). Plaintiff suspects Defendants were drugging him with “a powerful pulmonary drug 11 Adcirca.” (Id. 15). He only experienced the symptoms when certain officers served him 12 (Defendants Mooney, Sawin, Puertos, Spears, Bauman, Fehr, Hogan, Gilbert, Holeman, Collins), 13 not when other officers served him. (Id. 14–16, 19–20). He also alleges that Defendants 14 Ashworth, Baxley, Collins, Columbus, Drew Dillar, Huff, Spenilli, R. Vasquez, Walker, and 15 Zuefelt served him food mixed with psychotropic drugs and/or toxins while he was assigned to 16 administrative segregation at NNCC, as he experienced similar symptom when they served him.
17 (Id. 16–19).

18 B. Federal Claims

19 1. Cruel & Unusual Punishment and Due Process

20 Plaintiff brings claims of violations of substantive due process (Count I), violations of 21 procedural due process (Count II), and cruel and unusual punishment (Count III) based on the 22 alleged surreptitious poisonings. The allegations of poisoning make out a claim of cruel and 23 unusual punishment under the Eighth Amendment, because surreptitiously poisoning an inmate 24 (as contradistinguished from involuntarily administering a medication under a doctor’s orders) is

1 reasonably characterized as force applied maliciously or sadistically to cause harm with no good-2 faith purpose of restoring or maintaining order and discipline. See Hudson v. McMillian, 503 3 U.S. 1, 6–7 (1992). Count III may therefore proceed, but Counts I and II are dismissed, without 4 leave to amend. Because the allegations implicate the Eighth Amendment, a due process claim 5 is obviated. See United States v. Lanier, 520 U.S. 259, 272, n.7 (1997) (citing Graham v.
6 Connor, 490 U.S. 386, 394 (1989)).

7 2. Right to Petition

8 Under Count IV, Plaintiff brings a claim of First Amendment retaliation. He alleges the 9 surreptitious poisonings were in retaliation for his having filed and settled Fernandez v. Centric, 10 3:12-cv-401-LRH-WGC in this District and for being a “prolific litigator” generally, i.e., in 11 violation of his First Amendment right to petition the government for redress of grievances. (Id.
12 26–27). Plaintiff alleges that Defendants were aware of that case and that they poisoned him 13 because he filed it. To state a First Amendment retaliation claim, a prisoner plaintiff must allege: 14 “(1) [a]n assertion that a state actor took some adverse action against an inmate (2) because of 15 (3) that prisoner’s protected conduct, and that such action (4) chilled the inmate’s exercise of his 16 First Amendment rights, and (5) the action did not reasonably advance a legitimate correctional 17 goal.” Rhodes v. Robinson, 408 F.3d 559, 567–68 (9th Cir. 2004). To establish a prima facie 18 case, a plaintiff must show not only that a defendant retaliated against him for his protected 19 activity but also that the defendant’s actions did not serve any legitimate penological goal, such 20 as preserving institutional order and discipline. Barnett v. Centoni, 31 F.3d 813, 816 (9th Cir.
21 1994). A plaintiff asserting a retaliation claim must demonstrate a “but-for” causal nexus 22 between the alleged retaliation and the protected activity. See Hartman v. Moore, 547 U.S. 250, 23 256 (2006) (citing Mt. Healthy City Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ. v. Doyle, 429 U.S. 274, 283–84 24 (1977)).

1           The Court dismisses this claim, with leave to amend. Plaintiff alleges Defendants knew 2 of his past litigation against NNDC personnel and poisoned his food in retaliation, but he does 3 not allege his rights were chilled as a result or that an inmate of ordinary firmness would have 4 had his rights chilled. Mendocino Env'tl. Ctr. v. Mendocino Cnty., 192 F.3d 1283, 1300 (9th Cir.
5 1999). Plaintiff only suspects he was poisoned and only suspects the motive. He does not allege 6 his complaints were chilled, and he in fact admits continuing to file complaints and lawsuits, 7 which is borne out by the Court's docket. Nor does he sufficiently allege that an inmate of 8 ordinary firmness would have had his speech chilled under the circumstances, because he does 9 not allege that any Defendant who allegedly poisoned him had threatened to harm him over his 10 past litigation before he was poisoned. He only alleges that he was in fact poisoned and that he 11 suspects it was because of his past litigation. The only alleged comments indicating any intent to 12 harm Plaintiff were made by Defendant Mooney. Mooney allegedly said he would "get" 13 Plaintiff in response to Plaintiff's suggestion that Mooney might be fired, as a previous officer 14 (Shaney) apparently had been. But that comment was made over a month after the poisonings 15 allegedly began. A week later, when Plaintiff told Mooney and Bauman to stop drugging his 16 food, Mooney allegedly said, "You know, I just know that we're going to have to take that guy 17 down. You're through." But that threat was non-specific, was made after the alleged poisonings 18 had begun, indicated future action, and was dismissive of the notion that Plaintiff was being 19 poisoned. It does not support the allegation that Plaintiff was poisoned for having filed 20 grievances or lawsuits. Any allegations that the alleged poisonings were in retaliation for 21 Plaintiff having filed lawsuits or grievances are conclusory.

22           3.       Remaining Federal Claims

23           Under Count V, Plaintiff brings another claim of deliberate indifference. He alleges that 24 after he complained of the alleged poisoning on July 30, 2014, his blood and urine were tested

1 for drugs on August 6, 2014, but that a proper chain of custody was not followed, such that 2 tampering was possible, and that only street drugs were tested for, anyway. (Id. 31–32). Similar 3 testing in November 2014 was also insufficient. (Id. 33). The Court dismisses this claim, with 4 leave to amend. Medical staff had no constitutional duty to investigate alleged constitutional 5 violations by others. See, e.g., Spohn v. Mucklow, No. 2:12-cv-101, 2012 WL 4667600, at *3 6 (E.D. Cal. 2012) (collecting cases). Plaintiff may amend if he can allege medical staff failed to 7 treat him for a serious medical condition, but he may not simply allege that medical staff failed 8 to investigate his allegations of poisonings.

9 Under Count VI, Plaintiff claims violations of unspecified constitutional rights under the 10 theory of respondeat superior. Count VI is dismissed as a separate claim, without leave to 11 amend. That is not to say certain supervisory Defendants cannot be liable for the alleged 12 poisonings if Plaintiff can show they directed the violations or knew about them and failed to 13 stop them when they had the power to do so. See Starr v. Baca, 652 F.3d 1202, 1205–07 (9th 14 Cir. 2011). But there is no respondeat superior liability under § 1983. E.g., Chudacoff v. Univ.
15 Med. Ctr. of S. Nev., 649 F.3d 1143, 1151 (9th Cir. 2011) (citing Monell v. Dep’t of Soc. Servs., 16 436 U.S. 658, 692 (1978)). Nor does the act of denying a grievance implicate supervisory 17 liability for the underlying claim. See, e.g., Kilaulani v. Sequeira, No. 1:09-cv-1407, 2012 WL 18 3444279, at *5 (D. Haw. 2012) (collecting cases).

19 C. State Law Claims

20 Under Count VII, Plaintiff alleges negligent spoliation of evidence under state law.
21 Under Count VIII, Plaintiff alleges negligent inhumane treatment under Article I, Section 6 of 22 the Nevada Constitution and Nevada Revised Statutes sections (“NRS”) 209.371 and 209.381.
23 Under Count IX, Plaintiff alleges a violation of NRS 41.700 via the alleged poisonings. Under 24 Count X, Plaintiff alleges respondent superior liability as to the state law claims. Because these 1 claims raise novel issues of state law, the Court declines jurisdiction over them under 28 U.S.C.

2 § 1367(c)(1). The claims are dismissed without prejudice, but without leave to amend. That 3 means Plaintiff may not refile the claims in the present action but may refile the claims in a 4 separate action in state court if he wishes.

5 D. Amendment

6 Plaintiff may file an amended complaint to cure the deficiencies of Counts IV and V.
7 Plaintiff is advised that an amended complaint will supersede the original Complaint and 8 therefore must be complete in itself. See Hal Roach Studios, Inc. v. Richard Feiner & Co., Inc., 9 896 F.2d 1542, 1546 (9th Cir. 1989). The amended complaint must contain all claims, 10 defendants, and factual allegations. It may not contain claims dismissed without leave to amend.
11 Plaintiff must file the amended complaint on the Court’s approved prisoner civil rights form and 12 it must be entitled “First Amended Complaint.” If Plaintiff does not timely file an amended 13 complaint, the Court may dismiss Counts IV and V with prejudice for failure to prosecute 14 without further notice, and the case will then proceed on Count III only.
