These are defendants Plaintiff lists in the body of the TAC. To the extent any other defendants are listed in the case caption but not listed herein, the Court deems Plaintiff’s claims against such defendants abandoned on the account of the newly filed amended complaint. See Fla. Dep’t of State v. Treasure Salvors, Inc., 458 U.S. 670, 705 n.2 (1982) (Brennan, J., concurring in judgment) (“[O]nce accepted, an amended complaint replaces the original.”); Snyder v. Pasack Valley Hosp., 303 F.3d 271, 276 (3d Cir. 2002) (“An amended complaint supercedes the original version in providing the blueprint for the future course of a lawsuit.”).

2. According to the TAC, Plaintiff has been in and out of the New Jersey prison system since at least 1990, with his latest stint in the NJSP since 2009. During this latest stint, Plaintiff was diagnosed with prostate cancer. The TAC alleges that not only has Plaintiff received inadequate medical care during his current stint of incarceration for a variety of ailments including his cancer, he also received inadequate medical care during his previous incarcerations because his cancer should have been detected earlier. Plaintiff also alleges that he is seeking a medical clemency from the governor.

3. The Court dismisses all § 1983 claims regarding the failure to detect his cancer during his previous incarcerations. To state a denial of medical services claim under the Eighth Amendment, it is not enough a plaintiff alleges that he received inadequate care—he must also establish that the defendants acted with deliberate indifference with regard to the provision of inadequate care. See Estelle v. Gamble, 429 U.S. 97, 106 (1976); Natale v. Camden Cnty. Corr. Facility, 318 F.3d 575, 582 (3d Cir. 2003). As such, mere allegations of medical malpractice are not sufficient to establish a constitutional violation. Allah v. Hayman, 442 F. App'x 632, 635-36 (3d Cir. 2011).

4. Here, Plaintiff's allegations regarding the failure to detect his cancer falls far short of establishing a constitutional violation. There is no allegation that any defendant deliberately ignored clear warning signs of cancer before 2009, or that they had actual knowledge of the cancer and simply hid that fact from Plaintiff. Plaintiff asserts the various doctors that treated him during his previous incarcerations should have detected his cancer, but that amounts to at best a medical malpractice claim, not a constitutional claim. As such, all denial of medical services claims regarding the failure to detect his cancer are dismissed without prejudice.

5. The TAC further alleges that various defendants violated his constitutional rights when they interfered and impeded his attempts to obtain a medical clemency from the governor. The Court dismisses these claims because a convict has no constitutional right to clemency for any reason. "There is no right under the Federal Constitution to be . . . released before the expiration of a valid sentence[.]" Swarthout v. Cooke, 131 S. Ct. 859, 862 (2011). The allegations do not state a constitutional violation, because the right asserted does not exist.

6. The Court also dismisses any denial of medical services claims that may have accrued before December 5, 2012, two years prior to the filing of the original Complaint, as time-barred. Under New Jersey law, an action for an injury caused by a wrongful act, neglect, or default must be commenced within two years of accrual of the cause of action. N.J.S.A. § 2A:14-2; Estate of Lagano v. Bergen Cty. Prosecutor's Office, 769 F.3d 850, 859 (3d Cir. 2014). Federal courts look to state law to determine the limitations period for § 1983 actions. Wallace v. Kato, 549 U.S. 384, 387-88 (2007); Lagano, 769 F.3d at 859. Civil rights or constitutional tort claims are best characterized as personal injury actions and are governed by the applicable state’s statute of limitations for personal injury actions. Lagano, 769 F.3d at 859. Accordingly, New Jersey’s two-year limitations period on personal injury actions governs Plaintiff’s claims. Id. Here, any claims regarding incidents of inadequate medical care that accrued before December 5, 2012 should have been raised earlier, and because they were not, Plaintiff’s claims of inadequate medical care must be limited to claims that accrued within the two years prior to the filing of the original Complaint. Any earlier-accrued claims are dismissed with prejudice as time-barred.

7. The Court additionally dismisses state-law tort claims against all defendants except CMS, St. Francis, and Freid. Under the New Jersey Tort Claims Act (“NJTCA”), when asserting a state tort claim against a public entity or a public employee, a plaintiff must give notice of the claim within ninety days after the cause of action has accrued. See N.J.S.A. § 59:8-8; Konah v. City of Newark, No. L-962-10, 2011 WL 1598957, at *2 (N.J. Sup. Ct. App. Div. Apr. 29, 2011); Brown v. Twp. of Neptune, No. 11-7162, 2014 WL 3517776, at *7 (D.N.J. July 15, 2014).<sup>1</sup> This notice requirement applies to common law intentional tort claims, Ptaszynski v. Uwaneme, 371 N.J. Super. 333, 343 (App. Div. 2004), as well as negligent conduct, Velez v. City of Jersey City, 180 N.J. 284, 292-93 (2004). This ninety-day notice period may be extended by a court upon a finding of “sufficient reasons constituting extraordinary circumstances for [the plaintiff’s] failure to file notice of claim within the period of time prescribed,” but only if the plaintiff files a late notice “within one year after the accrual of his claim[.]” N.J.S.A. § 59:8-9; see Slater v. Hardin, No. L-8574-09, 2014 WL 923337, at *5 (N.J. Sup. Ct. App. Div. Mar. 11, 2014). Plaintiffs who do not comply with this requirement are “forever barred” from recovering on their claim. See N.J.S.A. § 59:8-8. Notice is important because it provides state agencies the “opportunity to investigate the claims, and take disciplinary or other appropriate action to rectify inappropriate behavior or flawed practices[.]” Mawhinney v. Francesco, No. 08-3317, 2010 WL 2557713, at *9 (D.N.J. June 22, 2010) (quoting Velez, 180 N.J. at 293). Failure to file a notice of claim is a ground for dismissal at the motion to dismiss stage. See William v. Westampton Police Dep’t, No. L-1144-13, 2014 WL 5393184, at *3 (N.J. Sup. Ct. App. Div. Oct. 24, 2014).<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Because CMS, St. Francis, and Freid are not public entities or public employees, NJTCA does not apply to claims against them. Gomes v. Cty. of Monmouth, No. L-2096-14, 2016 WL 1452892, at *1 (N.J. Sup. Ct. App. Div. Apr. 14, 2016) (“We hold that the Tort Claims Act . . . does not require service of such a notice upon a private government contractor.”).

8. Here, because Plaintiff claims relief under state law, he must follow established state procedures. See Murphy v. Bloom, 443 F. App’x 668, 670 (3d Cir. 2011) (“The District Court [] properly recognized that Murphy did not follow the proper procedure for bringing a [state law] claim . . . as required by state law.”). There is no allegation in the TAC that Plaintiff filed the required notice of claims. Under New Jersey law, Plaintiff is required to file the notice of claims before he initiates any state law tort action against the public defendants. See N.J.S.A. § 59:8-3. As such, Plaintiff must demonstrate, at the time he filed the original Complaint, that such notice of claims had already been served. See Ptaszynski v. Uwaneme, 371 N.J. Super. 333, 343 (App. Div. 2004) (holding that the notice requirement under the Tort Claims Act is a jurisdictional precondition to filing suit). No such demonstration has been made in the TAC. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a) (“A pleading that states a claim for relief must contain . . . the grounds for the court’s jurisdiction[.]”). Because there is no allegation that a notice of claims has been filed with the public defendants, Plaintiff has failed to establish, under Rule 8, that this Court has jurisdiction over Plaintiff’s state law claims against them. Accordingly, Plaintiff’s state law claims against the public defendants are dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. See Bethea v. Roizman, No. 11-254, 2012 WL 2500592, at *7 (D.N.J. June 27, 2012) (dismissing plaintiff's state law tort claims for his failure to plead compliance with the notice requirement under the Tort Claims Act).

9. Finally, the Court dismisses all § 1983 claims against NJDOC, UMDNJ, Rutgers, CMS, St. Francis, Lanigan, and Johnson. First, NJDOC claims are dismissed because of Eleventh Amendment immunity. See Chavarriaga v. N.J. Dep't of Corr., 806 F.3d 210, 224 n.9 (3d Cir. 2015) (“[T]he Court correctly dismissed the NJDOC from this case on Eleventh Amendment grounds.”). With regard to UMDNJ, Rutgers, CMS, St. Francis, Lanigan, and Johnson, there is no respondeat superior liability against supervisors or employers in § 1983 suits. See Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 676 (2009) (“Government officials may not be held liable for the unconstitutional conduct of their subordinates[.]”); Weigher v. Prison Health Servs., 402 F. App'x 668, 670 (3d Cir. 2010) (holding that a private corporation providing medical services at a state correctional facility cannot be held liable under a theory of respondeat superior in a § 1983 suit).<sup>3</sup> To state a claim against these defendants, Plaintiff must allege that they violated his constitutional

<sup>3</sup> Although the Court is constrained to follow the Third Circuit's non-precedential decision in Weigher, some courts have decided differently. See, e.g., Hutchison v. Brookshire Bros., Ltd., 284 F. Supp. 2d 459, 472-73 (E.D. Tex. 2003); Groom v. Safeway, Inc., 973 F. Supp. 987, 991 n.4 (W.D. Wash. 1997). As another court in this district opined:

The policy considerations which prompted the Supreme Court to reject qualified immunity for private prison guards are the same considerations which suggest that private corporations providing public services, such as prison medical care, should not be immune from respondeat superior liability under § 1983. In the context of a claim that the deprivation of medical care amounted to a constitutional violation, proof of such claim would almost certainly prove a case of ordinary state law malpractice where respondeat superior would apply. It seems odd that the more serious conduct necessary to prove a constitutional violation would not impose corporate liability when a lesser misconduct under state law would impose corporate liability.

rights through they own actions, or promulgated specific policies that led to the constitutional violations. See Ashcroft, 556 U.S. at 676 (“[A] plaintiff must plead that each Government-official defendant, through the official's own individual actions, has violated the Constitution.”); Caldwell v. Egg Harbor Police Dep’t, 362 F. App’x 250, 251 (3d Cir. 2010) (holding that to raise a policy claim, a plaintiff must identify the specific policy in question, not simply state generally that an unspecified policy exists). Plaintiff has not done so here against any of these defendants. Accordingly, all § 1983 claims against the aforementioned defendants are dismissed without prejudice.

10. The balance of the TAC, which consists of (1) denial of medical services claims against individual medical defendants with regard to Plaintiff’s current incarceration, and (2) state law tort claims against non-public defendants, that accrued within the two years prior to the filing of the original Complaint, are permitted to proceed past screening.
