4. Plaintiffs, Linda Bergey and James R. Bergey, Sr., are residents of Bishopville, Maryland
5. Defendant, Boy Scouts of America, is a Texas corporation authorized to do business in the State of New Mexico and owns and operates the Philmont Scout Ranch BSA in Colfax

County, New Mexico. Its agent for service of process is Keith Gallaway, Philmont Scout Ranch, Route 1, Box 35, Cimarron, New Mexico, 87714.

6 Upon information and belief, and at all times material hereto, Sarah Doe, Eric Doe and John Doe, were employees, agents or servants of Defendant, Boy Scouts of America, and were acting within the scope of their duties and employment at Philmont Scout Ranch BSA for Defendant, Boy Scouts of America. The full names or residency of these three individuals are not known and they are therefore named herein in pseudonym.

GENERAL ALLEGATIONS

7. In early July, 2002, Plaintiff, Linda Bergey, came to Philmont Scout Ranch BSA, (hereafter "Philmont"), to participate, as a paying guest, in an eight-day Cavalcade back-country horseback trail ride with Philmont Scout Ranch Cavalcade 706 CX 02.

8. On Sunday, July 7, 2002, at approximately 8:00 a.m., Plaintiff, Linda Bergey, along with other guests gathered at the stables to prepare for their initial shakedown Cavalcade horseback trail ride training. All were inexperienced horseback riders, including Linda Bergey.

9. The group entered one of the corrals, referred to herein as Corral A, where they were given initial horsemanship lessons by the Defendant's employees, agents or servants, Sarah Doe, the Head Horseman, and Eric Doe and John Doe, the Wranglers. The lessons included caring for, saddling and bridling the horses, which were then assigned to each member of the group. The riders then began the procedure of brushing, saddling, feeding and bridling their assigned horse.

10. During this time, Sarah Doe directed one of the Wranglers to bring a "new green packhorse" into the Corral A where it was tied by a Wrangler to the fence next to where Steven Bergey and the horse he was assigned were posted. The "new green packhorse" promptly spooked Steven Bergey's horse causing it to set back up into yet another participant's horse, thereby creating an unsafe situation for all the riders.

11. Sarah Doe then directed the Wrangler John Doe to take the "new green packhorse" to the other end of Corral A from where the group was located. He then lead the "new green packhorse" from where it had been tied and walked it outside of the corral fence and between Corral A and another arena, Corral B, then re-entering Corral A through another gate on the far end of that arena.

12 Sarah Doe at this time informed the group that they were short of horses and that this "new green packhorse" was a new horse which had never been used before on the trail ride.

13 Upon re-entering Corral A, either Eric Doe or John Doe, attempted to tie the "new green packhorse" to a post when it broke away, charging at other horses that were tied up along the corral fence causing them to move toward the fence and away from the "new green packhorse." The "new green packhorse" stopped long enough for the Wranglers to catch it and put a yellow slicker over its head then they tied the "new green packhorse" to a post in Corral B adjacent to where the group was going to work with their assigned horses.

14 The group was then instructed to ride their horses into that other arena, Corral B, and they proceeded into Corral B; the "new green packhorse" was seen tied to the post to the left of the gate through which they entered. The group's horses were nervous and were whinnying loudly as they passed the "green pack horse."

15 While the group was giving their equipment a final check, one of the Wranglers took the "new green packhorse" from where it was tied to the post and began walking it around with a yellow rain slicker over its head even though they knew, or should have known, that this horse was not suitable to use as a packhorse in training with the horses and riders of this Cavalcade as it had already been apparent it was not suitable to use as a packhorse in training.

16. At about 12:00 noon, after a Wrangler had checked the group's saddles, they were lined up behind Sarah Doe and were to walk their horses in a circle in Corral B. Sarah Doe told Eric Doe, Wrangler, that the group was ready and gave him orders to return the "new green packhorse" in to the group of horses and riders.

17. Eric Doe, Wrangler, got the "new green packhorse" and within moments it broke loose from Eric Doe and was bucking and running full speed toward the group of riders with its head low and extended, its ears back and its mouth open showing his teeth. As the "new green packhorse" was running full speed across Corral B toward the group the long yellow pack cover on the horse was flapping in the wind and extending over the height of the horse as it ran directly in back of the circle towards two of the younger riders.

18. Linda Bergey was riding her horse in the group circle near the center of Corral B and after the "new green packhorse" reached the back of the circle where the two younger riders were, it then turned a circle and went at other riders.

19. Linda Bergey's horse headed away from the "new green packhorse" in an attempt to get away but was unsuccessful and the "new green packhorse" collided into her horse hitting it on the left flank with such force and violence causing her horse to lose its balance and fall to the ground with her still in the saddle.

20. Linda Bergey's horse fell over onto its right side, falling on her and driving her body and head into the corral ground resulting in injuries and damages hereinafter set forth.
