MEMORANDUM AND ORDER

19-CV-2996

GROSSMAN & KARASZEWSKI PLLC,

Defendant.

MATSUMOTO, United States District Judge:

On May 21, 2019, Anna Solovyova ("plaintiff") commenced this action on behalf of herself and those similarly situated against Grossman & Karaszewski, PLLC ("defendant") pursuant to the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act ("FDCPA"), 15 U.S.C. § 1692 et seq., alleging that defendant violated various provisions of the FDCPA. (See generally ECF No. 1, Complaint dated 5/21/2019 ("Compl.")) Presently before this court are the defendant's motion for summary judgment pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56 ("Rule 56"), and plaintiff's cross motion for summary judgment pursuant to Rule 56. (ECF No. 24, Motion for Summary Judgment by Grossman & Karaszewski, PLLC ("Def. Mot."); ECF No. 27, Cross Motion for Summary Judgment by Anna Solovyova ("Pl. Mot.")) For the reasons stated herein, defendant's motion for summary judgment is granted as to the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, and sixth counts in plaintiff's complaint. Both parties' motions for summary judgment are denied as to the seventh count.

BACKGROUND

I. Factual Record

The following facts are set forth in parties' Rule 56.1 Statements of Undisputed Facts. (See ECF No. 24-1, Defendant's Rule 56.1 Statement ("Def. 56.1"); ECF No. 27-1, Plaintiff's Rule 56.1 Statement ("Pl. 56.1").) Plaintiff is a resident of Kings County, New York. (Def. 56.1, ¶ 1; Pl. 56.1. ¶ 1.) Defendant is a New York Professional Liability Company with a principal place of business in Erie County, New York. (Def. 56.1, ¶ 2; Pl. 56.1. ¶ 2. Plaintiff's allegations stem from a collection letter defendant sent to plaintiff that was dated June 29, 2018. (Pl. 56.1 at ¶ 12.) Plaintiff had a credit card account with Citibank, N.A. and the collection letter stated plaintiff owes $3,897.62. (Def. 56.1, ¶ 4; Pl. 56.1 at ¶ 19.)

The relevant collection letter was attached to plaintiff's complaint as an exhibit. (Compl., Ex. 1.) The letter is on defendant's letterhead. Id. At the top right corner of the letter, it lists the defendant's attorneys. Id. The second sentence of the letter states, "this office has been hired to collect the above referred balance that you owe our client," and states that plaintiff owes $3,897.62. Id. The original creditor is listed as Citibank N.A., but the letter lists the name of the creditor to whom the debt is owed as JHPDE FINANCE I, LLC. ("JHPDE"). Id. The second paragraph of the letter sets forth plaintiff's validation rights:

Unless within thirty days after your receipt of this notice you dispute the validity of the debt, or any portion thereof, the debt will be assumed to be valid by us. If you notify us in writing within the thirty-day period that the debt, or any portion thereof, is disputed, we will obtain verification of the debt or a copy of a judgment against you and a copy of such verification or judgment will be mailed to you by us. Upon your written request within the thirty-day period we will provide you with the name and address of the original creditor, if different from the current creditor.

Id. The reverse side of the letter, states "IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT CREDIT REPORTING (emphasis in original) Please note that a negative credit bureau report reflecting on your credit record may be submitted to a credit reporting agency by the current account owner if you fail to fulfill the terms of your credit obligations." Id.

Plaintiff challenges the debt collection letter on the following grounds in her complaint: The first and second counts state that the letter fails to state the amount of debt purportedly owed in violation of §§ 1692g(a)(1), 1692e, 1692e(2)(A), and 1692e(10); the third and fourth counts state the letter fails to identify the correct creditor to whom plaintiff's alleged debt is purportedly owed in violation of §§ 1692g(a)(2), 1692e, 1692e(2)(A), and 1692e(10); the fifth and sixth counts state the letter's format and letterhead overshadow the statutorily required validation notice in violation of § 1692g(b); and lastly the plaintiff states in count seven that the letter misleads the consumer into believing that an attorney was meaningfully involved in a review of her debt in violation of §§ 1692e, 1692e(2)(A), 1692e(3) and 1692e(10).

II. Procedural History

Plaintiff commenced this action on May 21, 2019. (See Compl.) On June 25, 2019, defendant filed an answer to the complaint. (ECF No. 9, Answer to Complaint.) Magistrate Judge Scanlon held several conferences with the parties and held a final conference on November 21, 2019, at which time discovery was closed on consent. (ECF No. 18, Scheduling Order and Order Certifying Discovery as Complete.) On January 3, 2020, this court held a pre-motion conference and set a briefing schedule. (Dkt. Minute Entry and Order, 1/3/2020.) The court informed to the parties that in light of their decision not to seek discovery in this action, they waived their right pursuant to Rule 56(d) to ask the court to defer consideration of the motions or allow the parties time to obtain affidavits or declarations or to seek discovery. Id. On March 2, 2020, the parties submitted their motions for summary judgment and accompanying memoranda in support of said motions. (See Def. Mot.; Pl. Mot.)

LEGAL STANDARD

Summary judgment shall be granted to a movant who demonstrates "that there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law." Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a). "A fact is 'material' for these purposes when it 'might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law.'" Rojas v. Roman Catholic Diocese of Rochester, 660 F.3d 98, 104 (2d Cir. 2011) (quoting Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248 (1986)). No genuine issue of material fact exists "unless there is sufficient evidence favoring the nonmoving party for a jury to return a verdict for that party." Anderson, 477 U.S. at 249. "If the evidence is merely colorable, or is not significantly probative, summary judgment may be granted." Id. at 249-50 (internal citations omitted).

When bringing a motion for summary judgment, the movant carries the burden of demonstrating the absence of any disputed issues of material fact and entitlement to judgment as a matter of law. Rojas, 660 F.3d at 104. In deciding a summary judgment motion, the court must resolve all ambiguities and draw all reasonable inferences against the moving party. Flanigan v. Gen. Elec. Co., 242 F.3d 78, 83 (2d Cir. 2001) (citing Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 587 (1986)). A moving party may indicate the absence of a factual dispute by "showing . . . that an adverse party cannot produce admissible evidence to support the fact." Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c)(1)(B).

Once the moving party has met its burden, the nonmoving party normally "must come forward with admissible evidence sufficient to raise a genuine issue of fact for trial in order to avoid summary judgment." Jaramillo v. Weyerhaeuser Co., 536 F.3d 140, 145 (2d Cir. 2008) (citing Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 322-23 (1986)). Therefore, it is "[o]nly in the rarest of cases" that "summary judgment [may] be granted against a plaintiff who has not been afforded the opportunity to conduct discovery." Hellstrom v. U.S. Dep't of Veterans Affairs, 201 F.3d 94, 97 (2d Cir. 2000).

DISCUSSION

Plaintiff brought this action pursuant to the FDCPA. "A violation under the FDCPA requires that (1) the plaintiff be a 'consumer' who allegedly owes the debt or a person who has been the object of efforts to collect a consumer debt, (2) the defendant collecting the debt must be considered a 'debt collector,' and (3) the defendant must have engaged in an act or omission in violation of the FDCPA's requirements." Derosa v. CAC Fin. Corp., 278 F. Supp. 3d 555, 559-60 (E.D.N.Y. 2017), aff'd, 740 F. App'x 742 (2d Cir. 2018). The court assumes the first two elements are true, that plaintiff is a consumer who owes a debt or was subject to collection efforts and defendant is a debt collector within the meaning of the statute.

Plaintiff brings this action alleging defendant violated various subsections of Sections 1692(e) and (g) of the FDCPA. Section 1692(e) states, in relevant part, that a "debt collector may not use any false, deceptive, or misleading representation or means in connection with the collection of any debt." The subsections plaintiff alleges that defendant violated are:

- 1692e(2)(A): The false representation of the character, amount, or legal status of any debt. (Compl. at ¶¶ 47-62, 75-97, 178-217.)
- 1692e(3): The false representation or implication that any individual is an attorney or that any communication is from an attorney. (Compl. at ¶¶ 178-217.)
- 1692e(10): The use of any false representation or deceptive means to collect or attempt to collect any debt or to obtain information concerning a consumer. (Compl. at ¶¶ 47-62, 75-97, 178-217.)

Plaintiff also alleges that defendant violated Section 1692g(a), which provides that the defendant's collection letter must contain the following information:

- (1) the amount of the debt;
- (2) the name of the creditor to whom the debt is owed;
- (3) a statement that unless the consumer, within thirty days after receipt of the notice, disputes the validity of the debt, or any portion thereof, the debt will be assumed to be valid by the debt collector; (4) a statement that if the consumer notifies the debt collector in writing within the thirty-day period that the debt, or any portion thereof, is disputed, the debt collector will obtain verification of the debt or a copy of a judgment against the consumer and a copy of such verification or judgment will be mailed to the consumer by the debt collector; and (5) a statement that, upon the consumer's written request within the thirty-day period, the debt collector will provide the consumer with the name and address of the original creditor, if different from the current creditor.

"Debt collectors violate the FDCPA if they fail to provide this information or if they provide this information but then make other "communications" that "overshadow" parts of the disclosure - namely, the so-called "validation notice" required by subsections (3) through (5), which informs consumers that they have a right to verify and dispute the debt and to receive information about the original creditor." Taylor v. Am.

Coradius Int'l, LLC, No. 19-CV-4890, 2020 WL 4504657, at *1 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 5, 2020).

Plaintiff also alleges that defendant violated Section 1692g(b), which provides as follows:

If the consumer notifies the debt collector in writing within the thirty-day period described in subsection (a) that the debt, or any portion thereof, is disputed, or that the consumer requests the name and address of the original creditor, the debt collector shall cease collection of the debt, or any disputed portion thereof, until the debt collector obtains verification of the debt or a copy of a judgment, or the name and address of the original creditor, and a copy of such verification or judgment, or name and address of the original creditor, is mailed to the consumer by the debt collector. Collection activities and communications that do not otherwise violate this subchapter may continue during the 30-day period referred to in subsection (a) unless the consumer has notified the debt collector in writing that the debt, or any portion of the debt, is disputed or that the consumer requests the name and address of the original creditor. Any collection activities and communication during the 30-day period may not overshadow or be inconsistent with the disclosure of the consumer's right to dispute the debt or request the name and address of the original creditor.

"In th[e Second] Circuit, the question of whether a communication complies with the FDCPA is determined from the perspective of the 'least sophisticated consumer.'" Jacobson v. Healthcare Fin. Servs., Inc., 516 F.3d 85, 90 (2d Cir. 2008) (quoting Clomon v. Jackson, 988 F.2d 1314, 1318 (2d Cir.1993)). "The purpose of the least-sophisticated-consumer standard, here as in other areas of consumer law, is to ensure that the statute protects the gullible as well as the shrewd." Id. But, "[e]ven in 'crafting a norm that protects the naive and the credulous,'" courts "have 'carefully preserved the concept of reasonableness.'" Id.

I. The Amount of Alleged Debt and Identification of the Creditor (Counts 1, 2, 3, and 4)

Plaintiff asserts that defendant violated Sections 1692e, 1692e(2)(A), 1692e(10), 1692g(a)(1), and 1692g(a)(2) because "plaintiff does not owe any monies to JHPDE Finance I, LLC and [JHPDE] is not the creditor to whom any alleged debt is owed," and "plaintiff was never notified by Citibank that the account was going to be sold." (ECF No. 27-3, Motion for Summary Judgment.) Defendant rebuts this assertion by contending that "it is unequivocal that the Letter states the amount of debt and the name of the current creditor to whom it is owed." (Def. Mot. at 11.) Plaintiff further states that she "does not owe the sum of $3,897.62 on account of her Citibank card," but does not offer admissible evidence in her summary judgment submissions. (Pl. 56.1, ¶ 26.) Defendant rebuts this assertion by stating that the letter lays out plaintiff's validation rights and "if plaintiff truly disputed owing the balance and owing it to JHPDE, she could have exercised her right to validate the debt." (Def. 56.1 at ¶¶ 5-6; Def. Mot. at 11-12.) There is no evidence that plaintiff exercised her validation rights.

The letter conforms with the requirements set forth in § 1692g(a)(2) and clearly states "the name of the creditor to whom the debt is owed." Directly under the date of the letter, it states in bold letters that the "current creditor" is JDPDE Finance I, LLC. (Compl., Ex. 1.) The original creditor is listed as Citibank N.A. Id. The first sentence of the letter states that plaintiff's "account has been sold and assigned to our client, JDHPE Finance I, I, LLC." Id.

First, there is no requirement under the FDCPA that the defendant notify the plaintiff of a sale of plaintiff's debt. See Taylor v. Am. Coradius Int'l, LLC, No. 19-CV-4890(EK) (VMS), 2020 WL 4504657, at *2 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 5, 2020) ("there is simply no requirement in the statute that a debt-collection notice clearly describe every step in the chain of ownership that the debt travels to arrive in the current creditor's possession. Rather, the statute requires identification only of 'the name of the creditor to whom the debt is owed.'"); see also Dennis v. Niagara Credit Sols., Inc., 946 F.3d 368, 371 (7th Cir. 2019) ("§ 1692g(a)(2) does not require such a detailed explanation of the transactions leading to the debt collector's notice. Rather, it requires clear identification of the current creditor.") This case is unlike those in the Second Circuit finding violations of 1692g(a)(2) because the letters in those cases did not clearly identify the creditor. See, e.g., Datiz v. Int'l Recovery Assocs., Inc., No. 15-cv-3549, 2016 WL 4148330, at *11-12 (E.D.N.Y. Aug. 4, 2016) (naming an entity in the letter's "caption" without further explanation of the entity's role); McGinty v. Prof'l Claims Bureau, Inc., No. 15-cv-4356, 2016 WL 6069180, at *4 (E.D.N.Y.

Oct. 17, 2016) (same); Eun Joo Lee v. Forster & Garbus LLP, 926 F. Supp. 2d 482, 487 (E.D.N.Y. 2013) (same).

As to the plaintiff's first count, pursuant to Section 1692g(a)(1), that "she does not owe the sum of $3,897.62 on account of her Citibank card," this court finds plaintiff's declaration that "she does not believe that amount is correct" fails to create a genuine dispute as to this material fact. (Pl. 56.1, at ¶ 26; ECF No. 27-2, Plaintiff's Declaration at ¶¶ 13-14.) Defendant correctly argues that "plaintiff's unsubstantiated dispute of information contained in the letter does not render the Letter noncompliant with 1692g," because plaintiff could have exercised her rights under the validation notice and disputed the debt. (Def. Mot. at 11-12.) Plaintiff, however, contends that the alleged debt in the letter is incorrect because she does not owe money to JHPDE and "the amount of the alleged debt exceeds any amount(s) owed on Plaintiff's Citibank credit card." (Pl. Mot. at 10-11.) As to the first point, this court has already determined that the debt was sold to JHPDE and collection by the defendant is not a violation of the FDCPA. As to plaintiff's second point, the plaintiff bears the burden of proving that the FDCPA was violated by the defendant's letter that allegedly misstates the amount of the debt. She offers only her belief that the amount of the debt stated in the letter is incorrect, but failed to exercise her validation rights to dispute any portion of the debt. The defendant's letter contends "in making this demand we are relying entirely on information provided by our client," including the $3,897.62 amount of the debt. (Compl., Ex.1.) The letter itself implies that Citibank informed the current creditor, JHDPE, as to the amount of debt owed by the plaintiff. Plaintiff has only provided in her Rule 56.1 statement that she "does not owe the sum of $3,897.62 on account of her Citibank card," (ECF No. 27-1, Plaintiff's Rule 56.1 Statement at ¶ 26,) and cites to her declaration that she "do[es] not believe that amount is correct." (ECF No. 27-2, Plaintiff's Declaration in Support of Summary Judgment at ¶ 14.) Plaintiff's stated belief does not create sufficient evidence from which she could prove that the amount of debt stated in the letter is incorrect. Defendant's letter stating the amount of debt, based on information provided by Citibank to JHPDE, and notifying plaintiff as to how she could seek validation of any portion of the debt, constitutes undisputed evidence that to the extent plaintiff disputed the amount of the debt, she has failed to submit evidence establishing the correct amount of the debt.

For the reasons stated, defendant's motion for summary judgment as to the third and fourth counts regarding the identity of the creditor is granted. However, plaintiff's motions for summary judgment as to first and second counts regarding the amount of debt owed is denied and defendant's motion is granted.

II. The Validation Notice

(Counts 5 and 6 in the Complaint)

A. Format Overshadows the Validation Notice (Count 6)

Plaintiff alleges that defendant has violated §1692g(b) because "the format of the letter overshadows the consumer's right to dispute the debt." (Compl. at ¶ 127.) Defendant contends that the "validation notice is conspicuously and prominently placed in a separate, standalone paragraph . . . and is not overshadowed or contradicted by other aspects of the Letter." (Def. Mot. at 12.)

This court agrees with defendant. In assessing whether the validation notice is overshadowed by the format of the letter, this court must evaluate the letter in its entirety. See McStay v. I.C. System, Inc., 308 F.3d 188, 191 (2d Cir. 2002) (when read in its entirety, the least sophisticated consumer would not be confused about his validation rights, which were included on the reverse side of the letter.); see also Saraci v. Convergent Outsourcing, Inc., 2019 WL 1062098, at *4 ("when the letter is read in its entirety, there is no ambiguity.").

The second paragraph of the letter clearly advises the plaintiff of her validation rights:

Unless within thirty days after your receipt of this notice you dispute the validity of the debt, or any portion thereof, the debt will be assumed to be valid by us. If you notify us in writing within the thirty-day period that the debt, or any portion thereof, is disputed, we will obtain verification of the debt or a copy of a judgment against you and a copy of such verification or judgment will be mailed to you by us. Upon your written request within the thirty-day period we will provide you with the name and address of the original creditor, if different from the current creditor.

Nothing on the reverse side of the letter contradicts plaintiff's validation rights enumerated on the front side of the letter. The collection letter does not misdirect the least sophisticated consumer away from the prominently placed validation notice. Therefore, defendant's motion for summary judgment on plaintiff's Section 1692 g(b) claim regarding the validation notice is granted.

B. Law firm's Letter Overshadows Validation Rights

(Count 6)

Plaintiff alleges that the collection letter is in violation of § 1692g(b) because "the least sophisticated consumer could reasonably interpret the Letter to mean that even if she exercises her validation rights, she could nevertheless be subject to legal action" because the letter is coming from a law firm. (Compl. at ¶ 164.) Defendant correctly asserts that "there is absolutely no reference to any legal action whatsoever in the Letter." (Def. Mot. at 14.)

Unlike the present case, in Park v. Forster & Garbus, LLP the creditor, a law firm, referenced a possible lawsuit. Park v. Forster & Garbus, LLP, No. 19CV3621ARRST, 2019 WL 5895703, at *8 (E.D.N.Y. Nov. 12, 2019). The court in the Park action, however, determined that the notion of a possible lawsuit did not create a false sense of urgency, nor did it distract the least sophisticated consumer from exercising her validation rights, and thus did not violate the FDCPA. Id. In the present case, the letter does not even reference potential legal action. The validation notice clearly describes the plaintiff's rights, and the fact that the letter is from a law firm does not overshadow the validation notice. See Delfonce v. Eltman Law, P.C., No. 16CIV6627AMDLB, 2017 WL 639249, at *3 (E.D.N.Y. Feb. 16, 2017), aff'd, 712 F. App'x 17 (2d Cir. 2017) (the fact that the collection letter on a law firm's letterhead referenced the possibility of a lawsuit did not overshadow the validation notice.) For the reasons stated, defendant's motion for summary judgment as to this Section 1692 g (b) claim is granted.

III. Meaningful Attorney Involvement (Count 7)

Plaintiff alleges in her complaint that Defendant has violated §§ 1692e, 1692e(2) (A), 1692e(10), 1692e(3), and 1692g(b) because "The least sophisticated consumer would likely assume that the attorney has been genuinely involved in the review of Plaintiff's alleged Debt prior to the letter being sent." (Compl. at ¶ 191.) The letter states, "In making this demand we are relying entirely on information provided by our client." (Compl. Ex.1.) Plaintiff argues that the least sophisticated consumer "could read the letter and be reasonably led to believe that the communication was from an attorney At the same time, once could read the statement that Defendant was relying entirely on information provided by his client and be under the impression that no attorney was meaningfully involve in the case." (Pl. Mot. at 14-15.) Defendant argues that the FDCPA was not violated because "attorneys who were employed by Defendant were meaningfully involved in the review of Plaintiff's account" (ECF No. 28, Defendant's Response to Plaintiff's Cross Motion at 14.)

The collection letter is on Grossman & Karaszewski, PLLC letterhead. (Compl., Ex. 1.) Under the firm's name at the top left corner, the firm's address and telephone number appear. Id. On the top right side of the letter, the attorneys and of-counsel are listed. Id. Under this list of names, the letter provides the law firm's contact information, and the email provided is "compliance@wcgrossmanlaw.com." Id. The second sentence of the letter states that "in making this demand, we [Grossman & Karaszewski, PLLC] are relying entirely on information provided by our client.” (Compl., Ex. 1.) The letter contains a signature block with Grossman & Karaszewski, PLLC. Id.

There is no dispute that Grossman & Karaszewski, PLLC is a law firm, or that the collection letter was “from” the law firm in the literal sense. However, some degree of attorney involvement is required before a letter is to be considered from an attorney within the meaning of the FDCPA. Miller v. Wolpoff & Abramson, LLP, 321 F.3d 292, 301 (2d Cir.2003); Clomon v. Jackson, 988 F.2d 1314, 1321 (2d Cir.1993); Bitzko v. Weltman, Weinberg & Reis Co., LPA, No. 117CV00458BKSDJS, 2019 WL 4602329, at *4 (N.D.N.Y. Sept. 23, 2019); Greco v. Trauner, Cohen & Thomas, L.L.P., 412 F.3d 360, 364 (2d Cir. 2005) (“a letter sent on law firm letterhead, standing alone, does represent a level of attorney involvement to the debtor receiving the letter. And if the attorney or firm had not, in fact, engaged in that implied level of involvement, the letter is, therefore, misleading within the meaning of the FDCPA.”)

Defendant argues that attorneys were meaningfully involved and that “there is nothing in the record that would suggest otherwise.” (Def. Mot. at 15.) Defendant also argues that plaintiff has not met her burden to prove the elements of an FDCPA violation and plaintiff “does not even have a scintilla of evidence to show a lack of meaningful attorney involvement prior to G&K sending the Letter.” (Def. Mot. at 15.)

Plaintiff, however, argues that she has met her burden of showing that no attorney was meaningfully involved because the letter states “in making this demand, we [Grossman & Karaszewski, PLLC] are relying entirely on information provided by our client.” (Compl., Ex. 1.)

The language in the letter “suggests that the defendant sent the plaintiff this letter based solely on information provided by the creditor, without any attorney review. It implies that no attorney had ‘formed an opinion about how to manage the case of the debtor to whom the letter was sent.’” Hochhauser v. Grossman & Karaszewski, PLLC, No. 19CV2468ARRRML, 2020 WL 2042390, at *6 (E.D.N.Y. Apr. 28, 2020); Miller v. Wolpoff & Abramson, L.L.P., 321 F.3d 292, 304 (2d Cir. 2003) (“On this undeveloped record, however, it suffices for us to hold that merely being told by a client that a debt is overdue is not enough.”) Though plaintiff does provide evidence that casts doubt on the law firm’s meaningful involvement, plaintiff does not offer admissible evidence that an attorney was not meaningfully involved. Neither has defendant provided evidence that there was meaningful involvement by an attorney, such as a declaration by an attorney, or by providing documentation that lawyers used their professional judgment in forming an opinion about how to manage the case or making the decision to send said letter. See Goins v. Brandon, 367 F. Supp. 2d 240, 245 (D. Conn. 2005); Avila v. Rubin, 84 F.3d 222, 229 (7th Cir.1996) ("The attorney letter implies that the attorney has reached a considered, professional judgment that the debtor is delinquent and is a candidate for legal action. And the letter also implies that the attorney has some personal involvement in the decision to send the letter.") For the reasons stated, both the plaintiff's and defendant's motions for summary judgment are denied as to this claim.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated herein, defendant's motion for summary judgment is granted as to the first, second, third, fourth, fifth, and sixth counts in plaintiff's complaint. Both parties' motions for summary judgment are denied as to the seventh count. Specifically:

- 1) As to the first and second counts, the plaintiff's motion for summary judgment as to the amount of debt owed is DENIED. Defendant's motion for summary judgment as to the amount of debt owed is GRANTED.
- 2) As to the third and fourth counts, defendant's motion for summary judgment as to the identification of the creditor to whom the debt is owed is GRANTED.
