Dear Mr J Michael McMahon

I write to object to the Google Book Settlement.

I cannot believe that Google were not aware of the copyright law and that by digitising these books that they were breaking that law.

The extremely low amount being offered to authors whose rights have been infringed is unfair and unjust. An on-going payment should be received by the author (or their heirs) until the copyright has lapsed as set down in US law. If this ongoing payment is not forthcoming they should not be able to use the work until such time as the law allows them to.

Yours faithfully
