UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

SS&C TECHNOLOGIES, INC.,

Plaintiff,

versus

REUTERS AMERICA LLC, REUTERS LIMITED,
and REUTERS AMERICA, INC.,

Defendants.

No. 06cv00154 (NRB)

COMPLAINT

Plaintiff demands trial by jury.

1. Plaintiff SS&C Technologies, Inc. sues defendants Reuters America LLC, Reuters Limited, and Reuters America, Inc. for breach of contract, unjust enrichment, and violation of the Lanham Act (15 U.S.C. §§ 1114, 1125).

2. To the extent that SS&C's claims arise under the Lanham Act, subject matter jurisdiction is predicated on 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331, 1338. Subject matter jurisdiction on the other claims rests on 28 U.S.C. § 1367.

3. Plaintiff SS&C Technologies, Inc. is a Delaware corporation with its principal place business in Connecticut. On information and belief, defendant Reuters America LLC is a Delaware limited liability company with its principal place of business in New York; defendant Reuters Limited is a United Kingdom corporation the principal place of business of which is unknown but which is doing or, in the alternative, transacting business in this state; and defendant Reuters America, Inc. is a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in New York. This complaint refers to the defendants collectively as "Reuters."

COUNT I

4. On or about September 17, 1999, NeoVision Hypersystems, Inc. and Bridge Data Company entered into the contract that is annexed as exhibit A to this complaint. The contract provided that New York law would govern and that the parties consented to the jurisdiction of courts located in this state.

5. In February, 2004, NeoVision assigned the contract to SS&C in connection with SS&C's acquisition of NeoVision's business and all or substantially all of its assets.

6. On information and belief, Bridge Data assigned its rights and obligations under the contract to Reuters in October, 2001, in connection with Reuters' acquisition of certain assets from Bridge Data. It did so without NeoVision's or SS&C's prior written approval.

7. NeoVision and SS&C (hereafter unless the context otherwise requires, collectively "SS&C") fully performed their obligations under the contract.

8. Pursuant to the contract, SS&C is entitled to $62,500 quarterly for the licensing of its Heatmaps-Lite software, as well as interest on any late payments at one and one-half percent per month.

9. Reuters stopped paying SS&C licensing fees after the first quarter of 2004. It therefore owes SS&C $375,000 for the fees, as well as interest on that sum until payment is made.

10. In addition, Reuters is obligated to pay SS&C a license fee per month for each subscriber granted access to its Heatmaps-Pro software.

11. SS&C does not know the precise amount that Reuters owes on account of these subscription fees, but it believes the total to be in excess of $75,000. It is also entitled to interest on late payments of the subscription fees at one and one-half percent per month until they are paid.

12. Despite due demand, Reuters has refused and continues to refuse to pay all or any part of either sum unless SS&C waives its remaining rights. SS&C has been damaged in that amount.

13. The contract provides that SS&C is entitled to recover its reasonable attorneys' fees and expenses as the result of Reuters' breach.

COUNT II

14. SS&C realleges paragraphs 4-7 and 10-13 of the complaint.

15. Reuters has contended that the contract expired on September 16, 2003. SS&C disputes that contention. However, if the contract is held to have expired on that date, all licenses that SS&C granted to Reuters terminated, and Reuters was required to cease all distribution and sublicensing of Heatmaps-Lite and Heatmaps-Pro.

16. Reuters continued to offer Heatmaps-Lite and Heatmaps-Pro in interstate and international commerce to its customers after September 16, 2003.

17. As a consequence, Reuters has breached and continues to breach the contract.

COUNT III

18. SS&C realleges paragraphs 4-7 and 15-16 of the complaint.

19. In the alternative, SS&C is entitled to recover fair value for Reuters' use of its software.

COUNT IV

20. SS&C realleges paragraphs 4-7 and 15-16 of the complaint.

21. NeoVision registered the trademark "Heatmaps" with the United States Patent and Trademark Office on March 3, 1998. A copy of the trademark registration is annexed as exhibit B to this complaint.

22. In February, 2004, SS&C acquired that trademark in connection with SS&C's acquisition of NeoVision's business and all or substantially all of its assets.

23. As a result of SS&C's widespread advertising, promotion, and licensing of the Heatmaps products, Heatmaps has become distinctive and has acquired secondary meaning. The term indicates to the industry and to the public at large SS&C as the products' single source. Accordingly, Heatmaps has become a well-recognized trademark and has acquired a distinctive and protectible trade dress.

24. Reuters knew of the valuable good will and extensive recognition that SS&C have established for Heatmaps in the marketplace and has intentionally been trading upon that good will and recognition.

25. Reuters' conduct is likely to cause and, on information and belief, has caused confusion in the relevant trade and among members of the public.

26. Reuters' conduct violated the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 1114, 1125(a).

27. On information and belief, Reuters acted willfully.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff SS&C Technologies, Inc. demands judgment of defendants Reuters Limited, Reuters America, Inc and Reuters America LLC:

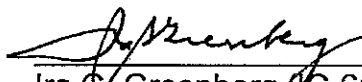

(a) in an amount to be demonstrated at trial, but in no event less than $418,000, and, if awarded on the fourth cause of action, enhanced damages as provided by statute, plus in any event interest as provided in the contract or by law;

(b) declaring that Reuters has breached the contract and that the contract has thereby been terminated;

(c) enjoining Reuters and their officers, directors, employees, agents, and all those acting together or in concert with them from employing, licensing, selling, or otherwise dealing in Heatmaps or the name Heatmaps; together with

(d) reasonable attorneys' fees and expenses and the costs and disbursements of this action.

- 7.2 Termination for Cause. In the event of any material breach of this Agreement, the non-breaching party may terminate this Agreement by giving thirty (30) days' prior written notice to the other Party; provided, however, that this Agreement shall not terminate if the other Party has cured the breach prior to the expiration of such thirty (30) day period, or if such breach cannot be cured within such thirty (30) day period, the other Party has taken steps within such thirty (30) day period to cure the breach and thereafter cured such breach as soon as practicable.

Upon termination or expiration of this Agreement for any reason, the licenses granted pursuant to Article 2 hereof shall immediately terminate and BRIDGE and its Affiliates shall immediately cease all distribution and sublicensing of HEATMAPS-LITE and HEATMAPS-PRO. BRIDGE shall pay to NEOVISION all unpaid fees that have accrued hereunder prior to the date of termination, within thirty (30) days of the effect date of termination.
- 7.5 Survival. The provisions of Paragraph 7.4 and 7.5 and Articles 5.3, 6, 8, 9, 10, and 12 shall survive the expiration or termination of this Agreement for any reason.
- 7.6 NEOVISION agrees that, in the event that 10% or more of the controlling rights to NEOVISION is transferred to either Reuters, Bloomberg, CBS MarketWatch or any of their successors, BRIDGE will have right to terminate this Agreement based on any such change of control by providing notice to NEOVISION (i) within ninety (90) days of NEOVISION's change of control or (ii) within 90 days of receipt of notice of such change of control, whichever is later.

Dear Phil:

NEW YORK

INTERNATIONAL:

SS&C wants to work with Reuters to improve and expand our business relationship. But we first have to address the obligations arising from our existing agreement. Steve Whitman, SS&C's General Counsel, and Harry Temkin, Executive Vice President of Reuters, exchanged letters last summer about this situation but this exchange did not resolve the differences between us. I am writing to you now to see if we as CEOs can get this cleared up.

AMSTERDAM

KUALA LUMPUR

SS&C believes that Reuters has been using SS&C's software but has not been paying SS&C for it as it agreed to do under the agreement.

LONDON

The amount owed by Reuters to SS&C under the agreement is $288,437.50. I will accept a payment of $200,000 to resolve this and, hopefully, make a new agreement which is profitable for both of us.

TOKYO

Sincerely yours,

William C. Stone
Chairman of the Board and

Stephen V. R. Whitman
Senior Vice President and General Counsel
SS&C Technologies, Inc.
80 Lambertson Road
Windsor, CT 06095-0760

Dear Mr. Whitman:

I am writing in response to your letter dated July 28, 2004. I believe that you are factually incorrect regarding the material issues mentioned in your letter.

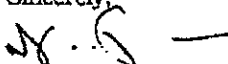

A letter from Andrew McLean dated May 5, 2003 was sent to Cormac Kinney, then the CEO of NeoVision, terminating the Agreement effective September 16, 2003. In the letter, it was made clear that the reason for termination was that the subscription level could no longer justify the $250,000 annual fee. We also made it clear that we would be willing to discuss having Heatmaps provided on Bridge terminals purely as an add on.

Upon receipt of the letter, I had a conversation with Mr. Kinney where Mr. Kinney acknowledged receipt of the letter and the termination of the Agreement. He stated that he did not think it would make sense to cancel the subscriptions of the HEATMAPS-PRO clients but that they should remain on our system and we would pay for those users. I told him that I thought that this new arrangement made sense. This new arrangement was confirmed many times after this conversation as a result of conversations I had with Mr. Kinney and conversations other Reuters employees had with members of your staff, including Ed McGuinn. There were two items that came up after the initial conversation. The first was making it clear that since we were no longer paying the $250,000, Reuters would no longer be entitled to the first 63 users for free. We were and still are in complete agreement with this request. The second item was that we agreed to negotiate a new price with the understanding that until we came to an agreement, the price would remain at $75 per user. We have not yet agreed upon a new price.

As you can see quite clearly, there was no partial termination of the Agreement. There was full and complete termination both in writing and in the intent of the parties. The agreement to distribute HEATMAPS-PRO was a new arrangement worked out between the parties, with further details to be finalized. Obviously, SS&C is entitled to payment for the individual HEATMAPS-PRO users. However, you were inadvertently paid under the terms of the expired agreement through March of 2004. Not only is this not proof of any existence of the old agreement, but Reuters is entitled to reimbursement of overpaid fees. Based upon actual usage and payment made by Reuters, for the period ending July 31, 2004, Reuters would be entitled to reimbursement of $94,016.71.

Reuters would be pleased to discuss with SS&C ways in which we can continue to do business with each other in a mutually beneficial manner.

Sincerely,

Harry B. Temkin
Executive Vice President - Head of Desktop Products
