Case No. 07 Civ. 2103 (LLS)

VIACOM AND YOUTUBE JOINT PROPOSED RULE 16(d) SCHEDULING ORDER

I. THE DATE OF THE CONFERENCE AND APPEARANCES FOR THE PARTIES

- A. Conference Date: July 27, 2007, continued to August 6, 2007.
- B. Viacom International Inc., Comedy Partners, Country Music Television, Inc., Paramount Pictures Corporation, and Black Entertainment Television LLC (collectively, the "Viacom Plaintiffs") are represented by Jenner & Block LLP and Shearman and Sterling, LLP.
- C. YouTube, Inc., YouTube, LLC, and Google Inc. ("YouTube" or "Defendants") are represented by Bartlit Beck Herman Palenchar & Scott LLP and Wilson Sousini Goodrich & Rosati, P.C.

II. A CONCISE STATEMENT OF THE ISSUES AS THEY NOW APPEAR

- A. VIACOM:
  - 1. The Viacom Plaintiffs (which include Paramount Pictures and numerous leading cable networks including MTV, Comedy Central, and BET) allege that Defendants Google and YouTube have knowingly and intentionally created and operated their YouTube website to promote and profit from massive copyright infringement of television programs and feature films on an unprecedented scale involving hundreds of thousands of pirated video clips. Defendants are thereby willfully violating the intellectual property rights that were created and made valuable by the investment of creativity, time, talent, energy, and resources of content producers of Viacom and other content owners.

2. Defendants conduct constitutes direct copyright infringement, inducement of copyright infringement, contributory copyright infringement, and vicarious copyright infringement. Viacom seeks redress only against Defendants' infringing activity, not any innocent or noninfringing conduct.
3. Based on Defendants' public statements, the Viacom Plaintiffs expect Defendants to place heavy reliance on the so-called safe-harbor provided by the Digital Millennium Copyright Act, 17 U.S.C. § 512(c) ("DMCA"). The DMCA is not a defense to liability, but limits relief against infringers under certain circumstances. Defendants' infringement is not protected by the DMCA, for multiple reasons.
4. Defendants have profited enormously from this infringement. A substantial part of the $1.65 billion purchase price that Google paid for YouTube reflects an enterprise value built on infringement of Viacom's copyrights. Conversely, that infringement has caused substantial monetary harm to Viacom. As permitted by the Copyright Act, Viacom seeks, at its election before judgment, its actual damages plus Defendants' wrongful profits from the infringement, or statutory damages. Viacom also seeks injunctive relief requiring Defendants to take reasonable measures to end the infringement on YouTube.

B. YOUTUBE:

1. Plaintiffs' claims in this lawsuit threaten to silence communications by hundreds of millions of people across the globe who exchange information, news, and entertainment through YouTube's video hosting service.
2. Plaintiffs claim that YouTube has directly or indirectly infringed plaintiffs' copyrights. An important part of the case will be plaintiffs' identification of the universe of copyrighted works and alleged infringement at issue so that the parties can determine whether plaintiffs own and have registered each of the copyrighted material it claims to have been infringed.

3. Plaintiffs' claims are barred or defeated by the Digital Millennium Copyright Act's (DMCA) Safe Harbor provisions, including 17 U.S.C. § 512(c) and (d). YouTube will show that it respects the importance of intellectual property rights by not only complying with the DMCA's safe harbor obligations but by going well beyond its requirements to protect intellectual property rights, including those of Plaintiffs. By this lawsuit, plaintiffs seek to upset the careful balance that Congress constructed in the DMCA which balances the rights of copyright holders and the need to protect communications on the internet.
4. YouTube asserts the following additional defenses against plaintiffs' claims: the doctrine of fair use, the doctrine of substantial non-infringing use, estoppel, waiver, laches, copyright misuse, unclean hands, and express or implied licenses granted by Plaintiffs (e.g., plaintiffs putting their own works on YouTube or permitting others to do the same).
5. Plaintiffs claim actual or statutory damages, as well as injunctive relief. At issue will be plaintiffs' entitlement to any damages, including whether plaintiffs have financially benefited from exposure on YouTube, and whether plaintiffs have failed to mitigate any of their alleged damages.

III IDENTIFICATION OF WORKS IN SUIT:

A. Viacom contends that it needs discovery to identify additional copyrighted works and alleged infringements in suit. The parties will work in good faith to ensure that the Viacom Plaintiffs are able to obtain timely appropriate discovery. After a period of ESI discovery the parties will address in the ESI plan the way in which this discovery will be taken. The parties will prioritize this discovery so that it occurs early enough in the discovery period to permit Viacom to timely supplement its identification of asserted copyrights and alleged infringing works, and to permit YouTube to take appropriate discovery concerning those works and alleged infringements.

VI. STATEMENT OF ANY LIMITATIONS TO BE PLACED ON DISCOVERY, INCLUDING ANY PROTECTIVE OR CONFIDENTIALITY ORDERS:

A. Protective Order Issues:

1. The parties have reached agreement on all items in the Protective Order.
2. Plaintiffs reserve the right to seek to modify the protective order in order to be permitted to share Confidential information with persons authorized to receive or review such documents or other materials under a protective order entered in any other action. Defendants contend that it is not appropriate for anyone other than parties to this case and the Premier League case to have access to the confidential materials disclosed under the joint protective order entered in these cases.

- B. The parties have agreed to a stipulation regarding the exchange of expert drafts and communications and a non-waiver stipulation.
- C. Discovery Issues:
1. Viacom and YouTube have agreed that, to the extent practicable, discovery will be coordinated with Premier League v. YouTube, Case No. 07 Civ 3582 ("Premier League class action"). Viacom, Premier League Limited and Bourne Co. are jointly referred to as "the Collective Plaintiffs" for purposes of this section.
  2. All parties to both actions agree that (i) documents produced in one action shall be deemed produced in both actions, (ii) depositions taken in one action shall be deemed taken in both actions, and (iii) interrogatories asked and answered in one action shall be deemed asked and answered in both actions.
  3. Format of discovery. The parties will negotiate an ESI Plan and agree to address hard copy production format as part of that proposal.
  4. Expert Depositions: No subpoenas need be served on any testifying expert for whom a report is provided. Instead, the party or parties retaining such expert will make such expert available for deposition, at a time mutually agreed to by the parties, consistent with the Court's scheduling order. Unless otherwise agreed between the parties, depositions of experts will be held at a location specified by counsel for the party producing the witness.
- D. The below limitations assume that Viacom Inc. affiliates who are not named plaintiffs, including for example, Ifilm, Atom Entertainment, Spike TV, and MTV Networks are considered part of Viacom International, and are not considered to be third parties for purposes of the below agreement.
- E. The parties jointly propose the following additional limitations on discovery:

In an effort to coordinate their efforts and streamline discovery, the parties have agreed to the following limits on the time of depositions:

1. Fact depositions: The Collective Plaintiffs may together take up to 225 hours of deposition testimony of YouTube witnesses. The Collective Plaintiffs may together take up to 150 hours of deposition testimony of third parties. YouTube may take up to 225 hours of deposition testimony of the Collective Plaintiffs, and 150 hours of deposition testimony of third parties. This proposal:

- (a) Includes a maximum of 25 hours for each side for ESI depositions under Rule 30(b)(6). For example, YouTube may take up to 25 hours of ESI related depositions of the Collective Plaintiffs, and the Collective Plaintiffs in aggregate may take up to 25 hours of ESI related depositions of YouTube.
- (b) Limits each fact witness deposition to 7 hours, except 30(b)(6) depositions; provided, that the parties may extend this limitation by agreement for specific depositions and will cooperate in good faith to reach such agreement, and provided that if the parties cannot reach agreement in a particular case the noticing party may seek such extension from the Court for good cause;
- (c) Assumes that cross-examination of a party counts against that party's time limits (not the party that noticed the deposition);
- (d) Assumes that each party shall give good faith estimate of how long they will take with each witness 48 hours prior to the deposition;
- (e) Assumes that there shall be no speaking objections and no excessive colloquy of opposing counsel counted in the time allotments.

2. Interrogatories

- (a) Defendants may serve 25 interrogatories on the Viacom Plaintiffs, and the Viacom Plaintiffs together may serve a total of 25 interrogatories on Defendants.
  - (i) An interrogatory that asks for a certain piece of information for each plaintiff counts as one interrogatory.
