YouTube description:

YouTube is a new service that allows people to easily upload, tag, and share personal video clips. Digital cameras with video recording capability are quickly becoming a commodity consumer technology. As people continue to record more video clips, YouTube will fill the need of quickly distributing their content worldwide.

My Bio:

Chad Hurley is the president and CEO of YouTube. Chad has an experienced background in web development and graphic design. He was the first member of the PayPal design team, where he lead efforts to develop the interface for the original Palm-based program that enabled secure wireless money transfers between handhelds. As the product evolved, he effectively designed auction features which solidified PayPal's long term success and is a credited member of two =critical auction patents. Chad looks forward to building an empowering video service for the world.=

I don't believe it was posted with our consent. I will check, but can't imagine we'd have allowed it.

Thanks for reaching out.

Hi Marc,

I am the CEO and co-founder of YouTube, a website that allows users to watch and share videos. It was brought to my attention that the Saturday Night Live clip "Lazy Sunday" was posted on our site last week. Although we assume that users posting content to our site hold all necessary rights to do so, I wanted to proactively reach out and make sure this was the case.

This video has become extremely popular on our site with well over 1 million views in a week. But if this was posted without your consent, we can immediately remove the video at your request. Also, if you would wish to continue the clip's massive popularity, we would be happy to continue streaming this content with your approval.

I understand you deal with NBC's PR. I was hoping you could potentially provide us with some direction on how NBC would like to proceed. Either way, it would be very interesting to explore possible ways to replicate this exposure with future clips. I look forward to hearing from you.

Best, Chad Hurley
CEO & Co-founder

Re: NBCU Content on YouTube.com (the "Site")

Dear Mr. Hurley:

I write as counsel for NBC Universal, Inc. ("NBC Universal") in response to your email to Marc Liepis of December 28, 2005. As you are aware, NBC Universal is the owner of all rights in the show Saturday Night Live, including the copyright in the "Lazy Sunday" video clip notably featured on your Site. We thank you for opening a dialogue with us and for agreeing in advance to remove our content from the Site.

Specifically, you ask whether NBC Universal has consented to the posting of the "Lazy Sunday" clip by YouTube users on your Site. NBC Universal has not authorized these postings and we thank you for agreeing to remove them.

We must also address the additional NBC Universal materials posted, displayed and archived on your Site. The YouTube Site offers thousands of pages featuring NBC Universal materials. Searches for "SNL" and "Saturday Night Live" alone result in literally hundreds of Saturday Night Live video clips of varying length. A brief review of your Site also shows that you are offering our copyrighted materials from the following additional NBC Universal properties: Will & Grace, The Tonight Show with Jay Leno, Late Night with Conan O'Brien, Surface, Dateline, The Today Show, and Law & Order. None of these postings is authorized by us. This list is of course not exhaustive but merely representative. We would be happy to work with you to identify NBC Universal properties.

The television programs that appear on NBC Universal's broadcast, cable and broadband channels are produced and owned by NBC Universal or licensed for its exclusive distribution. Copying, distribution and displaying images or video from NBC

Universal's news and entertainment programs without permission constitutes an infringement of NBC Universal's copyrights and other rights in its programming.

We accordingly ask that you remove these NBC Universal copyrighted materials, including still images, video and audio, from the YouTube service and take steps to prevent further display and distribution by YouTube of content that is owned or licensed by NBC Universal and that is posted without our consent, consistent with your Copyright Policy, your December 28 email and, of course, the law.

Finally, please be advised that this letter is not intended to be a complete statement of the facts or legal issues regarding this matter, nor as a waiver of any of NBC Universal's rights or remedies, whether at law or at equity, all of which are expressly reserved.

I would be pleased to further discuss any aspect of this subject.

Very truly yours,

Steve Kang
