Subject: Artist list

Bay Team -

Below is the artist list we would like Bay to cover. We have added potential high volume songs as well. It's critical when covering the artists that we identify a minimum of 10 secs of the MTVN bug.

Based on our discussion today it sounds like the right approach is - have some of the team spot checking and categorizing the MTVN assets as they come in from us, another part covering the existing assets to find new uploads, and the bulk of the team looking at these artists for infringements.

Please let me know if you need additional information. But I want us to keep a close look at the yield and be sure we are not falling below 3000+ per day

"SOUTH PARK" CREATORS TREY PARKER AND MATT STONE AND COMEDY CENTRAL® LAUNCH THE ALL-NEW SOUTHPARKSTUDIOS.COM

NEW SITE TO FEATURE FULL EPISODES AND CLIPS FROM THE ENTIRE 12 SEASONS OF THE EMMY® AND PEABODY® AWARD-WINNING ANIMATED SERIES

Beta Version Reaches Over Three Million Streams Of Full-Episodes And Clips In Less Than One Week

NEW YORK, March 25, 2008 -- South Park Digital Studios LLC, the joint venture between "South Park" creators Trey Parker and Matt Stone and COMEDY CENTRAL, a division of MTVN Entertainment Group, a unit of Viacom (NYSE: VIA, VIA.B), announced today the launch of the new southparkstudios.com, which will feature free, streaming, full-length episodes and clips from the entire 12 seasons of the Emmy® and Peabody® Award-winning animated series. The site which rolled out a beta version last Wednesday has already received over three million page views, over two million video plays, and more than a million streams of full episodes.

"The 'South Park' phenomenon began as a viral video clip. Now it continues its digital and creative leadership with the launch of an extensive site devoted entirely to 'South Park,'" said Doug Herzog, president, MTV Networks' Entertainment Group. "Southparkstudios.com is a true representation of Matt and Trey's vision and is the ultimate online destination for 'South Park' fans – allowing them full access to every 'South Park' episode ever created."

When asked about the launch of the new site, Stone and Parker said, "We got really sick of having to download our own show illegally all the time so we gave ourselves a legal alternative."

Anne Garefino, General Manager of South Park Digital Studios, had this to say about the future of southparkstudios.com, "One goal in moving forward is to make every episode of 'South Park' available world-wide. Currently, full episodes are not available in the UK, Australia and a few other foreign territories but we're not far off from making that happen. We have some contractual issues to sift through but we're getting there."

Southparkstudios.com will offer fans an all new "South Park" digital experience. The new site, which was designed by a creative team from "South Park" in conjunction with Schematic, a WWP Digital Company, invites fans to watch full episodes and clips of every "South Park" episode. Of all 169 episodes in the "South Park" Library, 168 are available today. Due to contractual obligations, all new episodes will be available as soon as possible after they premiere on COMEDY CENTRAL and remain available for seven days. These episodes will return to the site permanently 30 days after they premiere. Southparkstudios.com also features extensive video and behind-the-scenes information from all 12 seasons allowing users to see all their favorite "South Park" moments, comment on them and share them with friends.

In addition to the wealth of video content, southparkstudios.com worked with 65 Media to create the South Park Avatar Generator. Users can make themselves into a "South Park" character (Canadians included) with the Official Avatar Generator. They can pick from millions of combinations to create their perfect self portrait in the "South Park" world. To date 35,000 Avatars have been created.

"The interesting part of designing for 'South Park' is to remember that while it is a cartoon, it is not a show, or a site, for kids," said Andrew Solmssen, General Manager and EVP, Schematic. "'South Park' wanted a site that was as clean and well designed as anything on the Web, so that it would showcase and put the proper emphasis on the show content."

Toyota and Virgin are the launch sponsors for the new southparkstudios.com.

Launched in 1997, "South Park," now in its 12th season, remains the highest-rated series on COMEDY CENTRAL. "South Park" repeats Wednesdays at 12:00 a.m., Thursdays at 10:00 p.m. and 12:00 a.m. and Sundays at 10:00 p.m., 11:30 p.m. and 3:00 a.m. (all times ET/PT).

Trey Parker and Matt Stone are co-creators and executive producers of the Emmy[®] and Peabody[®] Award-winning "South Park," with Anne Garefino also serving as executive producer.

Let's go over this when you return. The priority should be the artists we sent you. Those have yet to be covered and need some attention as they will yield large numbers.

I don't want to find that we are falling below the 3000+/day. If that is occurring please have the tam contact me so I can provide different assets.

Adam,

I'm about to hop on a plane for Tokyo, so I'll be out of communication for the next 12 - 15 hours.

We can swap some of the assets for the lower yielding assets. At this point of the program I would probably recommend that we continue searching through the filing of the litigation. I believe that we will cap the number of assets for billing purposes (we'll do some kind of discounting), so send us whatever you have and we'll get right on it. If you tell us what the prioritization of the searches should be, we'll do the assets in that order. We are anticipating continuing to have our 2 shifts of 30 temps continuing until the litigation is filed, and then we should be able to return to normal staffing levels.

My biggest concern right now is that we get you the largest pool of infringement data for the litigation.

The asset searches are priced in 25 asset blocks with a 4 month minimum commitment, so we have some staggered start dates. We have an original list of 50 assets where we are searching 4 protocols (YouTube, MySpace, Google, Yahoo), and approximately 250 -300 other assets. We also have instructions to provide video capture / storage / reconsiliation for all of the assets we are scanning for.

Mark

I am not sure I understand the distinction you are making.

The objective is to reduce expense and personnel capacity from no longer pursuing assets that do not yield results whether this is from protection or actively seeking I don't know where the benefits lie. But again, intent is how to reduce costs and increase capacity from not working on assets that are not present at YouTube.

Please see the other email where I highlight 90+ assets that are yielding less than 10 results since began tracking them

Through the Wire

By Tom-Steinert-Threlkeld and Linda Haugsted - Multichannel News, 10/15/2006 6:00:00 PM MT

No Joke: 'South Park' Uploads Spared

YouTube users might get to keep uploading episodes of South Park after the video site gets acquired by Internet giant Google. In a passing comment on her way into the Cable Hall of Fame dinner Wednesday night, MTV Networks CEO Judy McGrath said she would allow the uploading to continue — for now. It drives more attention and potential viewers to the Comedy Central show, she said.

The satirical South Park animated series is popular among the young audiences that YouTube and MTV cater to.

YouTube doesn't charge visitors for viewing any of its content; and lawyers for programming companies want to pounce on the site for allowing what they consider to be illegal sharing of proprietary content to persist. Other video clip outlets, like the Google Video Store, charge visitors for each TV show episode they download.

Sumner Redstone, chairman of MTV parent Viacom, is reported to be miffed at the company's failure to acquire social networking site MySpace last year. That site was swooped up by Rupert Murdoch's News Corp., for $580 million.

Neither Viacom nor News Corp. got a chance to bid on YouTube, which, after a few days of negotiations, agreed to a sale to Google for $1.9 billion.

This time, it was Murdoch and News Corp. reported to be miffed.

Comcast to Techs: You Snooze, You Lose

A snoozing service technician has again tarnished consumers' perception of Comcast, which vows zero tolerance of such activities.

The tale buzzed through tech and consumer blogs last week about a Garden City, Mich., homeowner. The cable subscriber, identified in blogs as Misty Maironi, said she had requested a service call, and sent the tech to her basement to work on a connection. When he did not resurface for more than an hour, the woman sent her son down to see what the worker was doing.

Son Chris found the tech asleep on his bed, and snapped a cell phone picture of the napper before he woke up the worker.

The Maironis said that the worker fell back to sleep after the incident.

Jennifer Khoury, Comcast senior director of corporate communications, confirmed the incident, emphasizing that the man was a Comcast contractor. He will no longer work for Comcast, she said. Another technician was dispatched to the Garden City home and completed the service call to the customer's satisfaction, she said.

The Michigan division is retraining in-house and contract employees, re-emphasizing the company's code of conduct, she added.

Comcast is in the process of hiring more workers, lessening its reliance on outside contractors. The company has said 4,000 workers will be hired by the end of this year, 3,000 of them technical workers. More will be added next year. Training of those workers will include information on the company code of conduct and Comcast's zero tolerance for rudeness, Khoury said.

Earlier this year, a home video of a Comcast technician who fell asleep while on hold with a dispatcher became a popular download on YouTube. That Philadelphia-area worker was fired and the company offered a similar apology.

Could I get some more information on the clips that were passed on? I'm particularly surprised about the small number of videos taken down under and am curious as to the average size of the videos that apparently did not meet our criteria. I'd also like to discuss the take down procedure on Google Video. In conversations with Mark, I thought the agreement was that you would send notices to Google Video requesting that they remove the link to infringing material. Is that not the procedure? Is that something you have done for other clients?

Subject: a copyright rule

so last night, i was try to think of a good way to decide if something is rejected or not...

and I thought this was a good rule of thumb, simply look for obvious network branding... like the Major League Baseball logo or a new channel watermark, like ABC or NBC.

is there a way for me to review the old approved videos and reject them? or can we build this by adding check boxes and a reject button on the admin_allvideos page?

Scott--

Given that Viacom and its marketers register with YouTube using fake names (or no names) often using non-company email addresses, you know that your position is meritless. You alone have access to Viacom employees and agents who possess the responsive information. YouTube's discovery efforts have only scratched the surface. And despite your claims, you have not provided us with the name of a single Work in Suit and the corresponding dates on which clips from it were uploaded to YouTube, which is what Interrogatory No. 23 sought (and you agreed to provide in your March 1, 2010 letter). Nor do you (or could you) claim that your citation to a handful of documents is a complete identification of Viacom's extensive uploading practices. Indeed, it is facially deficient. We now have your answer will proceed accordingly.

Regards,
Michael.

Michael,

Our interrogatory responses are fully compliant and we have provided you with all of the information we agreed to provide. With respect to the specific interrogatory you reference -- No. 23 -- we have already exchanged correspondence on the interrogatory and made our objections clear. As reflected in that correspondence, we agreed to supplement our response and we have done so by identifying the Viacom documents that concern uploading of clips from the works in suit. Contrary to your claims, those documents identify clips for Works in Suit that were uploaded to YouTube with Viacom's authorization. Furthermore, as you are well aware, Defendants are in possession of extensive data for every YouTube account and video, including the accounts used by Viacom and third party marketing agents to upload authorized material. In addition, Defendants are in possession of all of the information that third party marketing companies have produced in response to subpoenas regarding uploading of the works in suit. There is no basis to demand that Viacom collate and produce Defendants' own records, or the records produced by third parties.

Regards,
Scott

Scott--

You have sent me emails on other topics, but remain silent on the issue below. As I have explained, we will raise this with the Court if you fail to assure us that Viacom will promptly correct its failure to respond to Interrogatory No. 23 with a compliant response, as you agreed it would.

If you would like to discuss, please let me know and we can do so after I review your response, which I expect today.

Subject: Viacom's Ongoing Failure to Respond to Interrogatory No. 23

Dear Scott,

Having initially objected in whole, by letter to Maura Rees on March 1, 2010, you committed to providing a response to YouTube's Interrogatory No. 23, which unambiguously asked Viacom to:

Identify each Work In Suit uploaded in whole or in part to the YouTube website by Viacom or with Viacom's authorization and the date of each such authorized upload.

Unfortunately, your supplemental response sent last Friday does not meaningfully improve upon Viacom's initial objection. Indeed, it does not identify a single Work in Suit. Instead, on two lone pages you list a smattering of Bates-numbered documents that you purport are responsive to the interrogatory. Even if that were an appropriate means of answering, given the scope of Viacom's marketing practices on YouTube, your response is manifestly incomplete. And it is further robbed of any value by the series of improper limitations you place on its scope and on the responsive information you unilaterally excluded from it -- unjustified limitations that cannot be sustained in light of the broad discovery you continue to demand from YouTube. If Plaintiffs actually intend to rely on documents to respond here, as you apparently do, there is a procedure for that and it involves far more than you have done. SDNY Local Civil Rule 33.1 requires the production of the related materials referenced in 33.1(b) and (c), such as computerized information, compilations, abstracts or summaries (none of which could be privileged on this topic, given Viacom's privilege waiver in the Aug. 24, 2009 Stipulation & Order regarding Viacom's Copyright Monitoring Privilege Assertions). Moreover, in light of the parties' various agreements to limit the scope of document production, merely referencing back to previously-produced documents could never form a complete response to this interrogatory. Viacom is required to respond fully and in good faith based on a diligent investigation of the information in its possession, custody and control. In any event, referencing documents is not an excuse for failing to provide a comprehensive answer.

Is Viacom now retracting its earlier agreement to supplement its response to this interrogatory with a complete answer identifying each Work In Suit uploaded in whole or in part to the YouTube website by Viacom or with Viacom's authorization and the date of each authorized upload? Please let us know promptly. If Viacom is retracting its agreement, we will raise the matter with the Court.

Regards,
Michael
