

free competitive exercise of the Premier League Clubs' ability to license their rights, if disclosed, by revealing competitively valuable confidential information;

2. The redactions of percentage and dollar figures from Exhibits 305 and 334 are narrowly tailored for justifiable protection of its competitive and confidential sales, pricing and commercial information, whose disclosure would harm Music Forces' business interest in negotiations with future licensees, and their redaction is proper; and

3. The deletion of personal information from Exhibits 253 and 382 are fully justified in light of those items' immateriality, the lack of any public purpose or benefit in their disclosure, and the substantial values resting on personal privacy.

So ordered.
