AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSES

FIRST DEFENSE
(Failure to State a Claim)

Plaintiffs' Complaint fails to state a cause of action upon which relief can be granted.

SECOND DEFENSE
(Unclean Hands)

Plaintiffs' claims are barred by the equitable doctrine of unclean hands from obtaining the relief requested.

THIRD DEFENSE
(Statute of Limitations and/or Repose)

Plaintiffs' claims may be barred by the applicable statute of limitations and/or repose.

FOURTH DEFENSE
(Laches, Estoppel and/or Waiver)

Plaintiffs' claims are barred by the doctrines of laches, estoppel and/or waiver.

WHEREFORE, Defendant denies that Plaintiffs are entitled to any relief whatsoever, including, but not limited to, the relief set forth in Paragraphs (a) through (h) of the prayer for relief.

FIFTH DEFENSE
(Functionality)

Plaintiffs' claims are barred because its red cross symbol is functional in connection with first-aid and wound care goods.

SIXTH DEFENSE
(Genericness)

Plaintiffs' claims are barred because its red cross symbol is generic in connection with first-aid and wound care goods.

SEVENTH DEFENSE
(Abandonment)

Plaintiffs' claims are barred because it has abandoned its alleged rights in the red cross symbol in connection with one or more of the goods on which Johnson & Johnson was allegedly using the red cross symbol prior to 1905.

WHEREFORE, Defendant denies that Plaintiffs are entitled to any relief whatsoever, including, but not limited to, the relief set forth in Paragraphs (a) through (h) of the prayer for relief.

COUNTERCLAIMS

PARTIES

1. Magla Products, LLC is a New Jersey limited liability company, with its principal place of business at 159 South Street, Morristown, New Jersey 07960 (“Magla”).
2. Johnson & Johnson is New Jersey corporation with its principal place of business at One Johnson & Johnson Plaza, New Brunswick, New Jersey 08933-7001.
3. Johnson & Johnson Consumer Companies, Inc. (“JJCC”) is a New Jersey corporation with a main office at 199 Grandview Road, Skillman, New Jersey 08558, and is a subsidiary of Johnson & Johnson. Johnson & Johnson and JJCC are collectively referred to herein as “J&J.”

JURISDICTION

4. This Court has subject matter jurisdiction over these Counterclaims pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1331, 28 U.S.C. § 1338, 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201 and 2202 and 15 U.S.C. § 1121.
5. This Court has personal jurisdiction over J&J because it does business in this District and the products that are the subject of this action are sold in this District. This Court also has jurisdiction over the state law claims under the doctrine of supplemental jurisdiction, 28 U.S.C. § 1367, because the federal and state claims are based on the same operative facts, and judicial economy, convenience, and fairness to the parties will result if this Court assumes and exercises jurisdiction over the state law claims.

VENUE

6. Venue is proper in this District under 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b) and (c) because the acts complained of occurred and are occurring in the United States and in this District, and have caused damage to Magla in the United States and in this District.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

J&J's Use of the Red Cross Symbol

7. Prior to 1905, Johnson & Johnson allegedly used the red cross symbol in connection with certain products, including first-aid and wound care products. See Protection of the Name and Emblem of the Red Cross: Hearing on H.R. 6911 Before the H. Comm. on Foreign Affairs, 77th Congress, 2d. Sess. 429-433 (1942). Today J&J uses the red cross symbol with first-aid and wound care products only.

8. In addition to Johnson & Johnson, pre-1905 users of the red cross symbol included not only the American Red Cross but also the companies involved in the Red Cross Nurse disinfectant and the Red Cross toothache medication and a number of pharmacies using the red cross symbol in connection with first-aid and related goods and services. This is not surprising, given J&J's own admission in its First Amended Complaint that the red cross symbol functioned as a generic indicator for certain first-aid and related goods and services. See First Amended Complaint, ¶¶ 20-26 (“the red cross had acquired a medicinal connotation”). In fact, J&J concedes that the use of the red cross symbol as designating first-aid and related products is what prompted J&J's Mr. Seabury to appropriate the symbol for J&J's own corporate purposes. Id. at ¶ 24.

9. Today, numerous third parties use red cross symbols or similar marks to identify their first-aid and first-aid-related products. Attached as Exhibit A are printouts depicting such uses.

10. In view of the foregoing, the red cross symbol is unable to function as a source-identifier in connection with first-aid and wound care products. Instead, the red cross symbol has come to have a generic or functional meaning in connection with such products. Specifically, the red cross symbol has come to designate the first-aid nature of such products.

J&J's Actions Have Harmed and Continue to Harm Magla

11. J&J's institution of the instant action to enjoin the American Red Cross' use of its own Emblem on emergency, first-aid, and health supplies as well as to enjoin Magla from partnering with the American Red Cross in the sale of such products harms Magla, the American Red Cross and the American public.

FIRST COUNTERCLAIM

Declaratory Judgment For Trademark Invalidity Pursuant To 28 U.S.C. § 2201

12. Magla hereby realleges and incorporates by reference as fully set forth herein the allegations set forth in Paragraphs 1 through 11 above.

13. Pursuant to J&J's filing of the First Amended Complaint, an actual controversy exists between the parties.

14. J&J alleges ownership in the following United States trademark registrations: Nos. 54,308; 1,888,143; 1,889,576; 2,515,970; and 3,178,913 and common law rights thereof ("J&J Red Cross Symbol Marks").

15. Each of the J&J Red Cross Symbol Marks is comprised of or includes a red cross symbol and is used in connection with first-aid and wound care products.

16. The J&J Red Cross Symbol Marks are invalid, and J&J has no exclusive right to use the symbol of a red cross as a trademark in connection with first-aid and wound care goods, because the red cross symbol is generic in connection with the first-aid and wound care goods with which the J&J Red Cross Symbol Marks are used. As set forth above, the red cross symbol has been and is a commonly-used symbol in the first-aid field and has come to designate that goods and/or services offered in connection with the symbol are of a first-aid nature. Such a generic, commonly-used symbol cannot function as a trademark in connection with goods and/or services in the first-aid field because the symbol lacks the ability to serve as a source-identifier to consumers.

17. J&J's Red Cross Symbol Marks are also invalid because the red cross symbol is functional with respect to goods and/or services in the first-aid field. Consumers associate the red cross symbol with goods and/or services which are of a first-aid nature, as illustrated by the myriad number of marks in the first-aid and related fields featuring the red cross symbol. Thus, J&J's Red Cross Symbol Marks are functional and thus invalid as trademarks.

18. J&J's claim of exclusive rights to use the red cross symbol in connection with goods and/or services in the first-aid field threatens to monopolize the important generic message of the red cross symbol as used in these fields and puts Magla and others at a significant non-reputation-related disadvantage.

19. In view of the foregoing, Magla is entitled to a judicial declaration that the J&J Red Cross Symbol Marks are invalid because the red cross symbol is generic and/or functional when used in connection with first-aid and wound care goods, and thus, that although J&J is not prohibited from using the red cross symbol itself on first-aid and wound care goods, J&J has no exclusive right to use the J&J Red Cross Symbol Marks in commerce on first-aid and wound care goods.

SECOND COUNTERCLAIM

Cancellation Of Trademarks Under 15 U.S.C. § 1119 and 15 U.S.C. 1064(3)

20. Magla hereby realleges and incorporates by reference as fully set forth herein the allegations set forth in Paragraphs 1 through 11 above.

21. J&J owns the following United States trademark registrations: U.S. Registration Nos. 54,308; 1,888,143; 1,889,576; 2,515,970; and 3,178,913 ("J&J Red Cross Symbol Registrations").

22. Each of the J&J Red Cross Symbol Registrations is comprised of or includes a red cross symbol and covers first-aid and related goods.

23. Magla brings this claim under 15 U.S.C. § 1119 and 15 U.S.C. § 1064(c), seeking that the Court issue an order canceling the federal trademark registrations for U.S. Registration Nos. 54,308; 1,888,143; 1,889,576; 2,515,970; and 3,178,913, on the grounds that such trademarks are generic and/or functional.

24. J&J's Red Cross Symbol Registrations all contain a red cross symbol which is a generic, commonly-used symbol in the first-aid field and has come to designate that goods and/or services offered in connection with the symbol are of a first-aid nature. Such a generic, commonly-used symbol cannot function as a trademark because it lacks the ability to serve as a source-identifier to consumers.

25. J&J's Red Cross Symbol Registrations are also functional with respect to goods and/or services in the first-aid field. The general public views the red cross symbol as a functional symbol generally identifying goods and/or services of a first-aid nature, as illustrated by the myriad number of marks in the first-aid and related fields featuring the red cross symbol. J&J's Red Cross Symbol Marks are functional and thus not valid trademarks. Granting J&J exclusive rights to use the red cross symbol in connection with goods and/or services in the first-aid field would put competitors at a significant non-reputation-related disadvantage as they cannot identify their goods and/or services with the commonly recognized red cross designation for such goods and/or services.

26. Magla has a real interest in this cancellation proceeding because there is an actual controversy in which J&J has disputed the American Red Cross' rights to partner with Magla and use the American Red Cross' Emblem on certain first-aid related goods in view of J&J's alleged rights in the J&J Red Cross Symbol Registrations. Magla also has a real interest because J&J has alleged that Magla's actions dilute J&J's rights in the J&J Red Cross Symbol Registrations.

27. Given the existing controversy, Magla will be damaged in the absence of such cancellations.

JURY DEMAND

Magla demands a jury trial on all issues so triable.

WHEREFORE, Magla prays for the following relief:

- (a) That the Court enter judgment for Magla on all of the counterclaims set forth herein;
- (b) That the Court enter a judgment declaring that: (1) the red cross symbol is generic and functional as it relates to first-aid and wound care goods and (2) J&J's trademarks containing the red cross symbol are invalid;
- (c) That the Court enter an order canceling federal trademark registration Nos. 54,308; 1,888,143; 1,889,576; 2,515,970; and 3,178,913, and that the Director of the U.S. Patent & Trademark Office be provided with a certified order of the same; and
- (d) Any other relief the Court deems fair and just.
